up of the large military units into segments, governed solely by the location of the home of the individual soldier.

The United States will be divided into districts, each of which is to be fed by one or more Atlantic ports from Galveston to Bangor.

Routine to be Followed. Commanding officers of divisions will be instructed to detach, for instance, men from the "first demobilization district," which might include men from Maine and Massachusetts, and entrain them for a specified French port, where adequate shipping will be waiting.

These vessels will proceed directly to the ports selected for the first district, and after disembarking their passengers, will return on a routine schedule to meet the next detachment of soldiers for that territory.

By carefully controlling the return shipments, military authorities believe they can to a great degree regulate the flood of discharged soldiers so that no single section of the country will be swamped.

Back to Civilian Life. Secretary Baker later announced that, so far as practicable, all men who have been called and who have not yet completed their training will immediately be turned back to civilian life.

Mr. Baker made this statement after a conference which included the heads of practically every important bureau of the war department. He said that a more comprehensive announcement concerning the subject would be made later.

THE BIG FOUR OF VICTORY!

RULER WITHOUT COUNTRY The former German kaiser, who is now a fugitive in Holland, reigned as German emperor and king of Prussia, for a little more than thirty years. He was proclaimed king of Prussia on March 9, 1888, and on the following June 15, the German emperor.

They put the kibosh on the Hun! Here you see President Wilson, and the premiers of our three chief western allies—Clemenceau, of France; George, of Britain, and Orlando, of Italy.

LAST ACHIEVEMENT OF THE ALLIED FORCES BEFORE PEACE

London, Nov. 11.—The mighty fortress of Mons, on the Franco-Belgian frontier, was captured by Canadian troops this morning, the British war office announced. The foregoing is probably the last achievement of the allied troops before the cessation of hostilities. Mons was the scene of the beginning of the British retreat from the German hordes in 1914.

PASSAGE GERMAN COURIER DELAYED BY HUN BATTERIES

London, Nov. 11.—(British Wireless Service).—The German courier bearing the text of the armistice conditions arrived at German headquarters at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, according to the official announcement. The courier, Capt. Heldorf, was long delayed while the German batteries persisted in bombarding the route he had to follow. On Saturday morning the German delegates suggested that the courier's mission might be accomplished by airplane. The French commission saw no objection to this and offered to furnish a machine on condition that the German high command pledged itself that the airplane would not be fired at. A radio message was sent to German headquarters, which was replied to without delay as follows: "We grant free passage to the French aeroplane bringing our courier. We are issuing orders that it shall not be attacked by any of our machines. For the purpose of recognition it should carry two white flags very clearly marked."

All that can be said now, he said, "that further calls and inductions under the draft have been suspended, and that, so far as we can, those men who have been called but have not completely passed through the camps will be turned back to civilian life."

Considered in Army. A small number of men in eastern states commenced entraining at 8 a.m. today for cantonments under the calls and the cancellation comes too late to alter their status. They will be considered as in army until demobilized.

Many Calls Unaffected. Calls for the navy and marine corps are not affected by the cancellation, and entrainments of men for these services will continue as ordered. Draft boards will continue classification of resistants of Sept. 12.

In the meantime, although draft calls have been suspended, all the agencies of the government are being held ready to continue hostilities if necessary.

The work of returning the soldiers to their former civilian status in the industrial life of the nation has been turned over to the department of labor. An organization is ready for the use of the authorities in the same machinery which has carried out the provision of the "work or fight" order and it is understood that this will be used largely in the task of finding positions for the men. Under this plan, each local draft board will be constituted a central labor office for the district in which it is situated and will place the men who were sent by it to the army, in the positions found vacant. While full authority is held by the war department for the demobilization of the armed forces, the return of the nation's mobilized industries to a peace basis, it is thought, will necessitate important legislation by congress to prevent a period of acute disruption in business. Officials here expect that congress will be called upon soon to consider a "demobilization bill" which will deal with this and kindred problems.

Stupendous Task Ahead. Designation of the units of the army to remain in France over the period of settlement has not been taken up by the war department. It should be realized, officials point out, that even after terms of peace have been signed, a work of stupendous magnitude will remain. Millions of tons of material, comprising railroad equipment, as well as arsenal supplies, repair and refitting plants and the strictly military accoutrements must be collected and involved preparatory to their disposal, either to one of the allied governments or shipment to the United States. An army of considerable size will be needed for this work for months after the war has ended.

It has been suggested that the United States force to remain in France for this work be obtained by calling for volunteers in the expeditionary forces.

Under existing law authority is given for the maintenance of a regular army up to a strength of about 375,000. Military men believe, however, that a much larger force will be required in Europe for possibly two more years.

"Dress Rehearsal" Success. The British government began its preparation for demobilization nearly a year ago. Its plans have been so thoroughly worked out that when a "dress rehearsal" was held recently a unit of the British army in France was sent through the machinery of its final operation, where each man found himself in his native town, clad in civilian clothes, possessing a government voucher which could be cashed at any postoffice, sufficient to cover a period of idleness. Each British soldier also will be handed a government insurance policy against unemployment.

Complete plans for breaking up the French forces also have been prepared, but it is considered probable that the demobilization process in the case of these armies will be much slower than for the American or even the British, because of the necessity for guarding Alsace-Lorraine and also in view of the gigantic task of reconstruction in the invaded districts.

WILL JOIN IN Local Boy Scouts Receive Instructions for Celebration. Local Boy Scouts are to stage a big celebration just as soon as the official word reaches the city that an armistice has been signed with the German government, according to Roy D. Bachman, chief scout executive. The Boy Scouts may be turned over to the police to help handle the crowds during the celebrations, which are expected to follow the signing of the armistice. A telegram was received by Mr. Bachman Saturday morning instructing him to get ready to cooperate from James R. West, of the southeastern division of the scout organization. The chief executive has issued orders for all scouts to hurry to the scouts' headquarters just as soon as they hear the first bomb fired to take part in the celebration.

STILL ALIVE AND FIGHTING

Negro Reported Killed in France Writes Home That He is Still Alive.

Knoxville, Nov. 11.—(Special).—James Ellis, negro, reported to have been the first Knox county soldier killed in battle, has never suffered a wound and is still engaged in killing boches, according to information received by his mother, Gladys Ellis.

Many months ago the name of James Ellis appeared in the casualty list, and not long afterward his mother received her first check from the war risk insurance bureau, her son having taken out $1,000 worth of insurance. A few weeks ago she received a letter from James, relating some of his experiences, and shortly thereafter another one, convincing her that her son was not dead, but very much alive.

Upon communicating with the war risk bureau at Washington, it was discovered that an error had been made in the announcement of James' death. The government authorities wrote that they deemed it proper that, as Gladys had suffered from the reported death of her son, she be allowed to keep the insurance money sent to her.
