

OLD YEAR PASSES IN FLAME OF GAITY

HOTEL PATTEN SCENE OF RARE ENTERTAINMENT.

Public and Private Parties Feature Last Hours of "Victory Year."

Chattanoogaans were reminded of the glad night the armistice was signed when Tuesday at midnight the whistles and bells began their announcement of the passing of the old year 1918. From the stroke of midnight there was continuous cheer, more or less accentuated in some sections of the city, and general enough to awaken any lazy ones who had been indifferent about watching the new year.

Hotel Patten Scene of Rare Entertainment.

Following the program, Capt. Hall introduced Brig-Gen. Scott, the speaker of the evening, and introduced the guests to stand for a moment of silent prayer in reverence to the blood of our heroes that has been spilled on the battlefields and in response to the voices from the French soil and the bottom of the sea.

Col. L. T. Dickinson Made New Year's Cards Which Are Unequaled in Originality.

When New Year's calling was in vogue, the radiance of the homes, the elegance of dress and courtly manners of the callers was a little short of brightness of old, so the bachelors and benefactors of not so many years ago say, and the glowing newspaper accounts embodied in the files of those years confirm the fact.

When New Year's Calling Was Custom OPEN HOUSE OBSERVED WITH RADIANCE.

Col. L. T. Dickinson, who was the leader in elite circles promoting New Year's calling, has a collection of most interesting cards of his own original design and drawings at it.

Free Pictures of Marshals Foch and Haig In Atlanta American

Historic Photographs of the Leaders of Our Allies in the Atlanta Sunday American of Jan. 5th and 12th.

In order that every Southern home may have a photograph of Marshal Foch, the great French General whose strategy turned apparent defeat into victory. The Atlanta Sunday American will include a handsome rotogravure photograph of this great man in its issue of Sunday, January 6th.

It was Foch, who, when the grey Hun hordes were sweeping on from the North Sea to Verdun, made the historic statement, "We have only begun to fight," and announced to a civilized world waiting with bated breath that "allies were safe."

It was Foch with the American Army of Reserve that stemmed the tide at Chateau-Thierry, and with a series of hammer-like blows all along the Western Front drove the Hun from French and Belgian soil, and forced him to lay down his arms, thus shortening the war and saving the lives of thousands of our boys.

Foch of France—friend of America. Have a picture of this great man hung in your home when your boy comes home. You can get one free of charge in next Sunday's issue of The Atlanta Sunday American.

On the following Sunday, Jan. 12th, The Sunday American will contain a handsome rotogravure photograph of Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, commander-in-chief of the British armies.

See the Georgian and American news agent in your city today, and get him to enter your order for these two issues so that you will not be disappointed in getting your copies of these famous pictures.—(Adv.)

Verney, who, for a number of seasons was with Ruth St. Dennis, presented a series of oriental and feature dances which delighted the audience.

The trio composed of Jack Stern, Dave Wohlman and M. Salander, of Camp Greenleaf, and who have become known as Chattanooga's "favorite trio," were present and were heard at their best. They responded with encores, consisting of the popular air.

A musical program was also given by the Patten orchestra.

Moment of Silent Prayer. Following the program, Capt. Hall introduced Brig-Gen. Scott, the speaker of the evening, and introduced the guests to stand for a moment of silent prayer in reverence to the blood of our heroes that has been spilled on the battlefields and in response to the voices from the French soil and the bottom of the sea.
