The editors were both members of the bar. They were ordered by the Court of Quarter Sessions to show cause why of Quarter Sessions to show cause why they should not be disbarred for contempt of court in making this publication. They duly appeared and avowed their responsibility for the article and their readiness to make good the charge before a jury, saying that it was published solely in their capacity as conductors of a newspaper, in good faith, without malice, and for the public good.

Americans in Europe.

THERE are more reasons than onein equity, as apart from what is called the balance of trade—why gold should continue to flow from Europe to the United States for some time to come. It is, we believe, a fact susceptible of demonstration that a greater number of Americans have visited Europe in 1880 have proportionately spent more money than any flight of American travelers that has ever preceded them.

It is computed by investigators who that sixty thousand Americans have mixture; bake in a quick oven. landed in England alone this year. It dollars, which makes a total of one hundred and eighty millions of dollars for the whole. We do not understand that all this vast sum is supposed to have been disbursed in Great Britain alone: out to have included the aggregate outlay of the travelers during their stay upon the continent of Europe also. The great majority of these persons do their business through London bankers; and the foregoing figures are founded upon what is known of these agents' American transactions.

One hundred and eighty millions of dollars is a prodigious sum to be thus expended, and at first sight the statement looks a decided exaggeration. No doubt there have been hundreds or even own fat.—Cor. Country Gentleman. thousands of Americans who have been in Europe this year without spending three thousand dollars, or anything like it. But we must remember that the price paid for pictures and other costly articles swells the average. A single painting like the Meissonier for which Mr. Vanderbilt is said to have given forty thousand dollars counts heavily here; and, although this is in its magni-tude an exceptional sum, the transaction is but one of a great number that have gone to swell the aggregate of individ-

This does not smack much of republican simplicity, but that of course is not the matter under discus-

When the expenditure of the army of American travelers in Europe is duly weighed it will appear, as we have said, that the flow of European gold to our shores is not entirely without counter-poise in American gold aiready distributed in the older continent during the current season. This of course has no direct relation to the commercial adjustment that occasions the exportation of bullion; but it has a certain equitable bearing on the situation which may wisely be kept in mind .- New York Eve-

A Test of Pronunciation.

THE following rather curious piece of composition was recently placed upon the blackboard at a teachers' institute, and a prize of a Webster's Dictionary offered to any person who could read it and pronounce every word correctly. The book was not carried off, however, as twelve was the lowest number of mistakes in pronunciation made: "A sacrilegious son of Belial, who suffered from bronchitis, having exhausted his finances, in order to make good the deficit resolved to ally himself to a comely, lenient and docile young lady of the Ma-lay or Caucasian race. He accordingly purchased a calliope and coral necklace of a chameleon hue, and securing a suit of rooms at a principal hotel, he engaged the head waiter as his coadjutor.
He then dispatched a letter of the most unexceptional calligraphy extant, invit-

Court of Quarter Sessions adjudged them guilty of professional misbehavior, and ordered their names stricken from the roll of attorneys. A writ of error to review the conviction was then sued out of the Supreme Court, before which the case was argued by able counsel, among whom was Alexander K. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, in behalf of the appellants.

The size attained by icebergs is sometimes prodigious. From measurements made upon one, Dr. Hayes estimated it to contain about 27,000,000,000 feet, while its weight must have been not less than 1,000,000,000 tons. It was grounded in water nearly half a mile in depth. What, then, must have been the thickness and size of the glacier from which this mass had become detached.

HOME AND FARM.

THE thorough housekeeper suns and treats her straw tick to washings and refillings twice or thrice a season. CRACKERS that are not fresh can be made to appear so by putting them into a hot oven for a short time. Watch them carefully, as a minute too long

A Sale Business. A MAN of industry and good sound judgment, under favorable circumstances, will make himself a comfortable home and accumulate a competence on the farm. His industry will cause the acres to bud and blossom, and his judgment will keep him out of the risky side enterprises and from getting head over heels in debt. The curse of any man or of any basiness is debt, and outside speculation usually leads the farmer into it. As a rule, it is best to stick to one wait patiently for the downfall of any man with two or three kinds of business on hand, and if such a man happens to get through all right, instead of getting credit for being a legitimate exception, he is turned off with a simple exclamation, What a lucky fellow! Subcessful-farming requires all the force and ingenuity of one brain. Slipshod farming will conduct itself, but not so good farm-

Anybody can plant and sow, and anybody can gather what grows. But not everybody can do either as it ought to be done. Farming is a complicated science—the grand aggregate of all sciences—and it requires hard study and close attention.

Entertaining the now pretty generally exploded idea that anybody can farm, or that the farm will take care of itself, many a farmer has tried to live on the farm, and devote the most, or, to be reasonable in expression, a part of his time to other callings. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred disaster has resulted, and both farm and outside business have been smashed; and in view of what the past has shown in this particular, the best advice that can be given is to stick to the farm if you have one, or to let the farm alone if you are determined to enter upon or continue in some other

The risks in farming, as already stated, are comparatively few. There is no danger of ruin arising from competition; there is none arising from the treachery of business associates. The farm, under ordinary circumstances is sure to furnish enough to make the family comfertable, and extraordinary circumstances, which are of a providential character always, are not very apt to exist. The farmer is engaged in the production of articles which the public must have. It makes no difference what else the people do without, they must have bread. They can wear their old clothes, but they must have new flour, and while a depression of the times may limit the demand, it can not wholly destroy it. Thus is the farmer engaged in a business which is always active. If other kinds of business are flourishing, agriculture must be on the very topmost round; if other kinds of business iness are depressed, agriculture must still be on a round a little above any other business.

In mercantile or purely speculative business, there is no certainty of safety for a week, and scarcely for an hour. Financial panies may come and swallow up values until the merchant is ruined and the speculator stranded; competition may bankrupt one, ten, or scores of merchants. But if news should come that a farmer who had for years been entirely free from debt, and had been raising good crops all the time, had gone into bankruptcy, it would astonish every one, except that they would account for it upon the grounds of outside speculation. Farming is a pretty sure business, and if it can be relieved of some of the unjust burdens that are pressing it down the farmer can afford to be content. - Western Rural.

-In the second volume of the "Memoirs of the Science Department of the University of Tokio, Japan," Prof. Netto gives an account of the mineral resources of that country. The whole subject is reviewed candidly and at length, and he comes to the conclusion that Japan will never realize the former sanguine dreams in regard to its production of the precious metals; that, as regards lead, tin, quicksilver, cobalt and petroleum, the produce will will never reach any con-iderable figure; but that as regards copper and coal, they have before them a probably great future, the realization of which will in great measure depend on the mines being worked on a modern system.

-Through the benevolence of Miss Catherine Lorillard Wolfe, a new east side lodging house for newsboys and shoeblacks has been erected at the in-tersection of East Broadway and Gouverneur Street, New York. There are nearly two hundred beds in this institution, and the price for a night's lodging is six cents. If the newsboy or bootblack can not pay this price he is not turned away, but the price of the bed is laid to his account, and he generally discharges the indebtedness as soon as he gets the money.

-The base-ball season has ended, and the mellifluous mouthings of the umpire, as he manfully argues with the second-base man, are hushed. The arnica market is dull, and the new wing for the hospital will not need to be built until another season. The base runner has "got under" for the last time (we wish some of them had), the home plate has got a "slide," "fly" time has passed, and the only batter in the land is in the griddle-cake pan. The boys have earned this run.
