compelled Virginia against her will to defend them, and the suits being brought, and her State government being powerless to prevent Mr. ROYALL from prosecuting them to judgment...

Our esteemed contemporary of the Dispatch has written a long and interesting article on the subject of the 'Greenback'...

All right. Now read again what we said, and confess that we stated your position with perfect accuracy. Don't you hold now that the bill ought to be passed? Yes; for you said the failure to pass it would be a serious mistake...

The latest and most remarkable reason offered by the Richmond Dispatch for Virginia's vain effort to repudiate her securities obligations is the fact that her coupons have been photographed, which it seems to think, is all that is sufficient to prove that they have been counterfeited...

Well, as Judge STAPLES said to the Supreme Court of the United States, every man as every bank has the right to require any bank note or greenback to be proved genuine if he or the bank's officer has a doubt on the subject.

THE GAME OF BLUFF.—We suppose it wouldn't require the astuteness of a Philadelpha lawyer to enable even a Virginian to understand that her bondholders are at the bottom of the suit for one hundred thousand dollars brought yesterday against the State of Virginia...

JOHN SHERMAN is on record as having declared "that all leading officers of this Government ought to be in harmony with the political sentiments of the majority, and that in actual practice, in theory, and in fact, no Administration of this Government ever did or will exist without practically acting upon the rule that to the successful party belong the great offices of the Government."

"A Cleveland man is thrown out of bed by invisible hands." Spirits, we suppose.

A Republican contemporary says: "The Democratic party is going." Yes—going to stay.

The efforts of the National Republican to get up a boom for the bloody shirt are very amusing.

Virginia and the Supreme Court. It is our custom to publish all communications correcting mistakes made by ourselves or our correspondents.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

The President Transmits to Congress the Annual Report of the Civil Service Commission.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 25.—The President sent to Congress to-day the third annual report of the Civil Service Commission, together with a message, in which he says: "The exhibit thus made of the operations of the Commission, and the account thus presented of the reasons for the exclusion of the civil-service law cannot fail to demonstrate its usefulness and strengthen the conviction that the system for reform in the methods of administering the Government is no longer an experiment."

Shelby's face, and a duel was forthwith arranged. The weapons were swords. Miss Shelby was slightly wounded on the arm. The four seconds were Americans. These expressed themselves satisfied that the duel had been conducted fairly and that their honor had been vindicated and the insult avenged.

To the Editor of the Dispatch: It was not my purpose to leave the impression on the minds of your readers that all of the lawyers and doctors in this city were opposed to labor organizations and the means they used to redress their wrongs. To the contrary, we have some good, warm friends among the members of both professions...

Under this plea, it seems, the defendant, pursuant to an act passed last winter, (p. 37, Acts of 1885-'86), would have to prove the genuineness and validity of the coupons tendered by him, and would be precluded from making such proof by expert testimony alone. Should it be deemed better to adopt the action of debt for the penalty than to proceed criminally against these people—and perhaps the civil proceedings would be best—the act of 1874-'75 above referred to makes ample provision to insure that under that act an attachment may be issued against the defendant without the affidavit or bond required in other cases, and he may be compelled to give bond to satisfy the judgment of the court.

To reduce the matter to a simple business proposition the question for Jones to consider is: "Is my patronage of Brown worth more to me than the short amount of my testimony as a witness for a moment? If so, it is profitable for him to patronize Brown and lose the patronage of the workmen or to withdraw his patronage from Brown and hold the workmen's patronage."

Organized labor in this city numbers about twelve thousand—organized on the grand principle that "an injury to one is the concern of all"—and will patronize Brown. It is entirely optional with the workmen whether it is profitable for him to patronize Brown and lose the patronage of the workmen or to withdraw his patronage from Brown and hold the workmen's patronage.

Whenever the tax is such a one as may be levied for directly without first getting the consent of the people, the tax is due it will probably be best to levy.

If the party claim the levy to be illegal, by reason of his previous tender of coupons, he may sue the officer in damages, or on the same ground he may enjoin the levy. In either case—the damage suit or the injunction—the proceeding, as expressly decided by the United States Supreme Court, is against the individual, not the State, and in either case the action would require the plaintiff to prove his coupons by direct testimony.

Should the plaintiff prevail in his suit against the officer, ample provision has been made by the act establishing an "indemnifying board" for the officers' indemnity and protection.

It would seem best, if possible, to get a decision of your own court of Appeals in this matter before it becomes the subject of adjudication in the Federal courts, and steps should surely be taken for that purpose as soon as possible.

The attention of Commonwealth's attorneys should be called to these evasions of the license laws, and to the importance of immediate action.

W. D. D. CHARLOTTESVILLE, March 18, '86. Julia A., wife of ex-Governor Francis H. Pickens, died at Fairmont, W. Va., yesterday; aged fifty-eight years. She was well-known in Washington, Alexandria, and Richmond, Va.—Washington Post.

SPRING. Ends every body feeling dull, languid, sluggish, exactly in the condition to be vastly benefited by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Little W. McLean, 202 Fifth Street, Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "Every spring for years I have had indigestion, and a general nervous condition, and a general feeling of depression. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla in March, and have since enjoyed the best of health. My appetite is excellent, and I am strong and vigorous."

silver. Silver has not depreciated in the last fifteen years, when tested by any other standard than the market value of bullion in European countries. The laborers of England are to-day paid in silver coin, as indeed they are everywhere. In 1870 it took six dollars in silver to buy a barrel of flour; now one dollar only commanded eight pounds of sugar; now it will purchase sixteen pounds of sugar.
