CITY WATER.

It is no joking matter to have to make out with our city water in its present muddy condition. In weather such as we are now having, most people delight to resort to their bath-tubs, but whoever does so runs the risk of coming out less clean than when he went in. It may be a nice, healthy, wholesome sort of stuff to drink, but as a bathing fluid it is a discount.

And yet, by the adoption of water-meters, the city is now receiving a much higher price for water than it demanded under the old system. Water-takers were discontented enough formerly, but they have no patience at all now with the dirty-looking water which much too often we find oozing out of the hydrants.

What is the remedy? So far as we know, there is none within easy reach at this time. Any one of the expedients which might be adopted for clarifying the water would cost a very large sum of money. And much as the Dispatch wishes to see provision made for furnishing our community with clear water at all seasons, we could not recommend that the City Council venture upon such an expenditure just now. We would better wait till we see the result of the general assessment of real estate here next year.

If it turns out that the taxable aggregate has increased a good deal beyond what it is at present, the Council may be justified in incurring the cost of extensive filtration basins or sedimentation basins. But if values are not increased, the question will present a graver aspect.

We read in our exchanges that many cities in this country are putting in filtration plants. But it is doubted in official circles here if the filtration process would clarify James-river water without the use of objectionable chemicals.

The water we use is chemically pure, and is healthful enough even when discolored by the plantation mud of Albermarle and Fluvanna, but in the latter condition it is a difficult water to clear. If sedimentation be resorted to weeks and weeks are required to convert it into a colorless liquid. Or, if bona-fide filtration be practiced, the process will be slow and unreliable. So we are told. It is true that some of the makers of filtration machines utterly deny the correctness of the latter proposition; but they have not yet converted our authorities.

We very much wish our City Council would make an appropriation to have thorough experimental tests made upon a considerable scale. We think it might go that far safely. The time is coming when the question must be faced boldly, and it were well that we fortify ourselves with unassailable facts before the day comes when we shall have to vote the money. When that day is going to come no man knows. It may be that in the not distant future our water-takers will become so disgusted by non-action and non-preparation that they will throw the matter into the pool of politics, as was done in the case of the new City Hall. Hence we hold that the City Council ought to arrange for experimental tests. Object-lessons might be made of them, particularly if the machines were put in a public place, in the centre of the city.

BELLO, BACILLI! There is a war on over the "Hello" bacilli question. Last month Dr. H. W. Hill, director of the Biological Laboratory of the Boston Board of Health, made a report showing that upon diligent examination of a number of telephones in public buildings and at public stations in the Hub, he found, with few exceptions, no growth of any kind resulting from their use. The exceptions, the report adds, "yielded in culture only the hay bacillus, from both the inside and outside of the transmitters, a harmless and widely distributed form, very common in dust."

Thursday, however, a special was sent out from Chicago, stating that Dr. Emanuel Friend, of that place, had made tests by which he discovered the germs of infectious diseases in the scrapings from the moustache of Windy City telephones. For his purpose Dr. Friend chose ten telephones in use in several downtown business-houses and offices, and says the special "culture media, with which the scrapings from the moustache of these telephones were embedded, developed eight varieties of bacilli more of less dangerous, some of them being pus-forming microbes." The results of his investigations, Dr. Friend asserts, refute the contention made on the basis of Dr. Hill's report, which was, that there is no danger of disease being spread by a careless use of the telephone.

This is pretty rough on the Boston doctor. But that is not all. It robs the Hub of all right to claim that it is the American centre of "culture."

MR. BOUTWELL'S ADMISSION.

In a letter expressing regret at not being able to make a speech in Boston on the Fourth, ex-Senator George E. Boutwell, of Massachusetts, takes Mr. McKinley and Imperialism, and in the process, among other things, he says: "There has been no other such departure from American ideas and principles in all our history, not even by Jefferson Davis, as is now in progress under the lead of the President. Jefferson Davis did not contemplate the destruction of the American republic, he only contemplated its division; President McKinley is transforming this republic into an empire, and the permanent establishment of our authority in the Philippine Islands is the consummation of the undertaking."

Every word of this is true, and Mr. Boutwell's reference to Mr. Davis involves a remarkable and significant admission coming from such a source. But the Massachusetts publicist might have strengthened his cause by going further in the matter of doing justice to Mr. Davis and the section he represented. He might have accentuated his warning against the dangers that threaten the republic by telling the whole truth, which is that Mr. Davis and the South never sought to divide the republic until the party of which Mr. McKinley is now the supreme representative began to sap the foundations of republican institutions.

MEIKLEJOHN'S ASPIRATION.

And now Mr. George D. Meiklejohn, First Assistant Secretary of War, aspires to a seat in the United States Senate. He wants to succeed Hon. John M. Thurston, whose seat as senator from Nebraska expires on March 4th next.

That Mr. George D. Meiklejohn should seek senatorial honors suggests a guilty conscience. That he should ask the same vindication that his boss, Alger, asks excites a suspicion of consciousness on his part of more connivance in Alger's shortcomings than the public have been disposed to credit him with.

Indeed, as a matter of fact, Mr. George D. Meiklejohn has heretofore been kept so in the shadow by reason of the force light bearing upon Alger that very few people knew of his existence, and there was practically no disposition to associate his name with the War Department scandals.

On the whole, therefore, it looks as if Mr. George D. Meiklejohn had given himself away.

Robert Bonner, whose death we announced yesterday, was born in Ireland in 1824, and came to this country when 16 years of age. Soon after reaching America he was apprenticed to the Hartford Contract, where he became a compositor, and a very fast one at that. He also wrote occasionally for the paper. In 1841 he went to New York to accept a position as a proof-reader. After a number of changes, and after gaining some success as a writer, he became connected with the New York Ledger. In a few years thereafter he became sole owner of it, and of dint of good management and judicious advertising he ran its circulation up to 200,000. Some years ago he turned the Ledger over to his son.

The New York Sun says Mr. Bonner secured his first contribution from Edward Everett by offering a $10,000 subscription for the fund for the purchase of Mount Vernon. He gave Tompkins $5,000 for a poem, Beecher $20,000 for the novel "Norwood," and Longfellow $3,000 for some verses. He also gave $3,000 toward a gymnasium at Princeton, $10,000 to the sufferers of the Chicago fire, and $20,000 to the Fifth-Avenue Presbyterian church, and his anonymous charities have been greater than these.

Mr. Bonner spent a good deal more than $60,000 in the purchase and breeding of trotting horses. He was advised to drive for his health by Dr. Samuel Hall in 1856. Some of his most notable purchases included Pocahontas, for $40,000; Dexter, $35,000; Edward Everett, $35,000; Maud Macy, $10,000; Edwin Forrest, $10,000; Rarus, $35,000; Maud S., $10,000; Sunol, $11,000; Russell, $10,000; Maud C., $1,000; Don L., $1,000, and Praxtel, $5,000. A catalogue of his stables at Tarrytown and New York, issued in May, 1888, describes thirty-seven horses, many of them of his own breeding. The last time deceased was out was on Tuesday a week ago. He drove Praxtel, and said when he came back that she had made better time than 2:30.

The kissing bug seems to be a humbug, after all. Leastwise, the Pennsylvania State Zoologist, Dr. Fernald, says of him: "He is a fake pure and simple. I have known of him for fifteen years, and have never heard before that he had a habit of alighting upon the lips of people and biting them. He feeds upon fruit juices."

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan's offer to loan the interior of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, England, with electricity has been accepted. It appears. It is estimated that the installation will cost $25,000.

Prominent Lynchburg Dead.

LYNCHBURG, Va., July 7.—(Special.)—Robert H. Over, one of the most prominent business-men of Lynchburg, died last night of appendicitis. He had an attack of cholera first, and in Philadelphia on June 24th, and appendicitis developed after his return home. Deceased was born in Madison county, Ala., in 1824, and came to Lynchburg in 1870 and engaged in the tobacco business. At the time of his death he was president of the Dental Supply Company of this city, a director of the Atlantic City, a member of the Philadelphia, and director in a number of important local corporations. He leaves a wife and three children.

North State Bar Association.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 7.—(Special.)—The North Carolina Bar Association today ended its first annual meeting at the Grand Hotel with a banquet. It elected the following officers: President, Charles F. Warron, of Washington; Vice-President, Thomas G. Skinner, of Thomas Hill; L. J. Smith, of M. Monroe; E. H. MacRae, of Charles W. Tillet; Charles Price, of Robert O. Burton; J. A. Widdell, and Cyrus B. Watson, Secretary and Treasurer. J. Crawford Biggs, of Chapel Hill.

Death to Dickenson.

BURK & CO. Four Big Leaders in Men's Suits This Week! HERE ARE MEN'S SUITS OF THE RIGHT SORT—AT THE RIGHT TIME AND AT THE RIGHT PRICES to turn them into money on right short notice. Here are drops of ink to make economists think. Men's Suits of choice Cassimeres, Serges, Worsteds, Flannels, Tweeds, and many other seasonal and desirable fabrics. Men's Suits that not only look well but will wear as well they look. Men's Suits that are tailored in faultless fashion—made up in various lefts—full lined, half lined, or skeleton—trimmed in perfect harmony and as accurate fitting as it is ever possible to get ready-to-wear garments. Here goes a large variety of Men's Suits especially selected for this week's sale—Suits fashioned in our own tailor shops by our own first-class tailors, warranted thoroughly shrunken and every other necessary detail that insures good wear properly taken care of. Here are Suits that no man that studies real economy would hesitate to wear. Men's Suits that are up to date in materials, designs, cut, make, and finish—and down to date in prices. Men's Suits that bear the Burk & Co. trade mark on each and every one of them—a guarantee for genuineness, an evidence of standard manufacture, and a sure sign of satisfactory service. Men's Suits at Four Ninety-Five, Six Forty-Eight, Seven Twenty-Five, and Nine Seventy-Five, that are by far the best and biggest values that have been quoted throughout the entire season. Don't lose sight of the fact that the best pick of the best patterns and choice of sizes go to the earliest callers. THESE SPECIAL VALUES IN MEN'S SUITS HEREIN MENTIONED ARE THE CONSOLIDATIONS AND CONCENTRATIONS OF BROKEN SETS and a general average of the higher cost lines throughout the entire Men's Stock, and in many instances, or if not in most of them, the cloth and trimmings—or the high-grade workmanship either, independently, would actually represent near about the intrinsic worth that is charged for Suits made up ready to wear. Every body knows, or could know if they would think for a moment, that in stocks as large as this it becomes necessary to prevent accumulations of broken scales of sizes, hence these special values are created to convert the goods into ready cash. There is no question about the extraordinary savings made possible by these wonderful under-value quotations, and every prudent buyer that anticipates buying a new outfit will find the time profitably spent to make an investigation of the worth and value of the Men's Suits on sale at this store this week at Four Ninety-five, Six Forty-Eight, Seven Twenty-Five, and Nine Seventy-Five. These are odd figures and are calculated to be conspicuously attractive, but the Men's Suits included in these averages are far more conspicuous in worth and value than the oddities of their figurements, and it goes without saying that there will be very many less to talk about before the week will have expired. Bear in mind that special values of this sort will not hold good for an indefinite period, and if interested the sooner the selection is made the better the facilities of getting matched sizes and pick of patterns.

$4.95 $6.48 $7.25 $9.75 At that you can take your pick Blue Serge and Black Worsteds Suits, single- and double-breasted, round and square cuts; also, of several lots of Cassimeres and Cheviots in lighter effects—Suits that are well made and trimmed, worth nearly double what we are asking for them. It won't take economical buyers long to find out the real value of these goods, so to be on hand early and get best choice. In Men's Suits now in force at this store this week means more to the real economist than the casual mind will give it credence. These Suits are good in quality, reliable in wear, and in every way good for soft worth and value as Sixty and Eighty-eight pennies would be in your inside pocket. Too much stress cannot be placed upon the importance of making a prompt response for the best selections of patterns and sizes.

Three Big Bargains in the Youths' Department $3.33 $4.89 $6.75 Another batch of Youths' Suits of better grades have been marked as above to close out single, small lots, and broken-size scales. Lots of these Suits will suit men of small build, and there is no doubt about capturing a prize in value when the size strikes just right. Four Eighty-Nine pulls big buying strength in the youths' stock. Remember, it costs nothing to look.

Substantial Bargains in the Children's Department Special value Boys' Knee Pants, all-wool, double seat, double knee, patent bands, hold fast, buttoned, 47c. Special value Boys' Woolen Knee Pants, 23c. Special value Boys' Double-Breasted Suits, 68c. Special value Boys' Crash Suits, 84c. Special value Boys' Woolen Suits, serviceable cloth, strongly made, 47c. Special value Boys' Summer Suits, by design, made and trimmed, $1.98. Special value Boys' Cassimeres Suits, all sizes, choice patterns, every day special price comes in at a handy season.

BURK & CO., MANUFACTURERS AND RETAILERS. 1003 EAST MAIN STREET. Don't get it in your mind that twenty-dollar Suits are being quoted at Sixty-Five, for they are not. There are very many that heretofore sold at high as fifteen and sixteen fifty, and scattering few up to eighteen. Each every suit in the bunch is a good value for the Nine Seventy-Five charge, and we have no hesitancy in asserting that no man will ever regret the Sixty-Five and Seventy-Five Cents of his investment of any Suit on sale this week at this store at this price. There is no time to delay for the best results.
