SATURDAY, SEPT. 8, 1900.

NEW JAIL. Undoubtedly Richmond needs a new jail. We have needed it for years. The present building is half a century or more old, and is far from being of modern type or creditable to the city.

If the city has unproductive property which it can dispose of, and which will yield enough ready money to pay for a new jail, well and good; if not, the City Council will have to consider where it can judiciously raise the requisite funds. Demands for more money are coming upon the city from several directions, and that, too, at a time when the necessities of the situation required that our assessments should be reduced. Large extra expenditures going hand-in-hand with an increased tax-rate will prove unpopular without a doubt.

An increase of our tax-rate will be unavoidable next year. So far as the community, as an entirety, is concerned, it will pay no more taxes than formerly; but with individuals it will be different. Suppose you own property assessed at $10,000, and no change has been made in that valuation! Doesn't it make a difference with you whether the rate be $1.40 or $1.50 on the hundred? Of course it does. True, the fellow whose lands and tenements have been reduced in assessed values will be saved harmless, but you may not be that fellow.

The truth is that it is needful that our City Council should rearrange our finances to some extent; it is bound to do so if it is to enter upon a large expenditure to supply our people with clear water. So it ought not to be hurried into building a new jail because one prisoner has escaped. Years and years pass without any escapes.

Mind you, the Dispatch favors a new jail, but it doesn't wish to see the City Council stampeded on account of the escape of one prisoner, even though that prisoner be so distinguished a man as "Topeka Joe." What we desire to see is calm and deliberate consideration of this question in co-relation with other momentous questions of finance, which must soon claim the attention of the Council.

WHERE WE STAND. The Staunton News, commenting upon the disappointment of Richmond people at the result of the United States census, and upon our purpose to have a police census, says:

"We would say to Richmond, 'Don't do it.' Staunton tried that ten years ago and found the population much larger than the census people reported it, but nobody paid any attention to the census gotten up by the city, and there are probably not ten men in Staunton to-day who can remember what the city's figures were."

"There is this consolation: Probably every city in the Union is slighted in the same proportion."

We would say to our friend of the News that we do not hope to take a census which will supplant the United States census, but we trust to be able to show that the latter is faulty; that the omissions are numerous and important, and that the Washington authorities ought to order a new enumeration here. Falling in that, we surely will be able to have added to the census lists the names of persons whom we shall be able to prove were not counted by the census men. Our aim ought to be to have their work corrected. Thus the services of the police will be valuable. And for our own satisfaction, though the world will receive it not—we should like to know what is the true number of people resident here.

We have long known that our suburbs were making heavy drafts upon our city population; but we never dreamed—nor can we yet believe—that things have been so bad as the census figures indicate.

It will be interesting to note the relative number of white and colored persons reported this year in comparison with 1890. The general impression is, that Richmond's white population is growing much faster than our negro population. Certain it is that hundreds, not to say thousands, of colored domestic servants have left here of late years and made their homes in the North and West, lured by the love of adventure and what appear to be high wages. And what is true of Richmond is, we learn, true of all other cities and towns in Eastern Virginia.

The impression was current at one time that most of these negroes stayed away a little while and then returned to their old homes in Virginia. But that is not the fact; especially is it not the fact with respect to young negroes. Most of them remain away; become permanent residents of other States. It is true that some of the young, and many of the old, return, but will warrant that the census figures of this year will show a very considerable loss of population to Virginia on this account. Some of the increase we expected to make, and which is not evidenced in the census returns, may be explained by that fact. But, conceding that, and not forgetting the trend of population towards the suburbs, there appears to be ground enough for us to challenge the accuracy of the late enumeration. Hence we see the Chamber of Commerce leading a movement in favor of a recount, and we doubt not that the City Council will grant the Chamber's petition.

West Virginia is put down by those who know the drift of things as certain to swing back to the Democratic column this year. The Bryan tour has been of great value to the Democracy of the State, of course, but it is believed that even if that had not been made, the result would have been the same. Among recent events in the State showing the tendency towards support of Bryan and the Democratic platform, "Not the least in importance," says the Washington Times, "is the certainty that Colonel Thomas B. Davis is working earnestly, loyally, and intelligently for Bryan and Stevenson. At a sacrifice of personal interests Colonel Davis accepted the nomination for Congress in the Second District, which was for so long a time represented by the Hon. William L. Wilson, and he is now organizing the Democratic forces of the district for a determined onslaught all down the line of the enemy's defenses."

Colonel Davis is a brother of the Hon. Henry G. Davis, father-in-law of Senator Elkins. The Hon. Henry G. Davis presided at the Bryan meeting at Keyser, and in terms that were unequivocal, pledged his support to Mr. Bryan. Mr. Davis bolted Mr. Bryan four years ago, though his brother, the candidate for Congress, remained loyal to the party. The Davis influence in West Virginia is very strong and widespread. The family wealth is enormous, and as most of it is located in West Virginia, it can be understood what is meant to Mr. Bryan by the support of the Davis family." The Davises are well known in Virginia.

The First Secretary of the Chinese Legation at Washington, Mr. Shen Tung, is the father of a bouncing baby boy, who reached this country, without bag or baggage, on August 10th. The youngster is to be thoroughly Americanized, and has even had the name of Washington conferred upon him. The Chinese have a way of putting the surname first, and in Celestial circles the baby will, therefore, be known as Shen Washington.

Mrs. Shen, the mother of the Mongolian Washington, is justly proud of her boy. She has but two English words at her command, and these she uses when visitors bother her about seeing her baby. They are: "Washington asleep."

It is to be hoped that as the youngster advances in years the same language will be applicable to him. Our own observation, based on a study of the brats we see, leads us to the belief that newly arrived infants start out well and sleep the greater part of their time. But great Scott, how soon they get over their heavenly virtue! We'll give Mrs. Shen just three months to learn eight more words, and these words will be: "Washington awake all the time; no snooze at night."

Eighty young collegians, "every one of them prize orators," according to the Philadelphia North American, and representing twenty-four of the leading educational institutions of the country, including Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and Cornell, have banded together, it appears, to form the "College Association of Democratic Campaign Speakers." They will take the stump for Bryan, it is stated, and to denounce imperialism, and will work under the direction of the National Democratic Committee, at New York. George L. Rees, a Philadelphia boy, and a former student at Leland Stanford University, California, is the organizer of the movement, the North American says. He was a soldier in the war with Spain, having volunteered to go to Manila while still in college, and it was due mainly to the sights he witnessed while in the Philippines, he himself states, that he became opposed to military rule, and decided to espouse any party that was against it. He is, therefore, heart and soul with the party that is against imperialism and militarism, the party that, in this year of grace, is led by Bryan.

The Country Gentleman, published at Albany, N. Y., says there is nothing certain about the winter fruit market. The crop in the country at large has been very greatly exaggerated, and it is believed very generally by farmers that certain shippers are systematically spreading reports of over-production and large crops in all sections so that the fruit may be purchased at low prices. "The Orleans county growers have been making a few investigations themselves, and they find that the crop is not at all remarkable anywhere, and in Michigan and Missouri it is a total failure."

S. M. Byrd contributes to The American Illustrated Methodist Magazine for September "Prince Murat as an American Citizen." The article recites the story of the humorously eccentric son of the King of Naples, and nephew of Napoleon I., who came to Florida in exile, married a fair Virginian, and set up a princely establishment near Tallahassee. The article presents some historical facts not generally known, and the oddities of the Prince are shown in several humorous incidents.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., is the champion automobilist of America, it appears. His "White Ghost" ran away from all other "mobes" at the Newport meet, it is reported, and Mrs. Willie K. kissed the victor—that is, the owner and "driver" of the vehicle, not the vehicle itself, in full view of the upper 10,000 persons who were present, this last announcement being made by the northern papers with gusto.

The West India cyclone which was to lower the temperature for us seems to have been lost, to have strayed, or been stolen. It will be cooler before Christmas, however, we may be sure.

THE PEANUT IN PERIL.

We have tried to bear up bravely, in spite of the drought and the hot weather. When we heard that the tobacco was burnt up we resolved to be philosophical; when they told us that the corn was a failure we determined to do without it. But now comes the "most unkindest cut of all"; they say the peanut crop will be short, and that farmers will lose half of their goobers. Think of it—the peanut crop short, and three cruises coming to town within the next month or so. Next we shall hear that the lack of rain has put a premium on red lemons, and that all cruises are a failure, anyhow.

But to return to our "ground-peas." The Suffolk Herald gives us the following sad information on the subject: "The peanut crop has been seriously damaged by the drought, and many experienced farmers say the crop will be more than a half one. It is certain that the injury has been serious, and the crop will be short, which should cause better prices for old and new nuts."

The Danville Register's commercial edition, which devoted many pages to the industries and prominent men of the town, was an excellent and readable paper. Aside from the journalistic enterprise it displayed, it showed that the "City on the Dan" is riding on the crest of prosperity's wave, and hustling for the front as a thrifty, hustling city. We are glad to note the prosperity of our south-side neighbor, and rejoice in her expansion.

The Bryan band-wagon is already giving promise of being crowded.

THE SCOTTSVILLE PEOPLE.

Farmers inconvenienced by the Drought—Personal Points. SCOTTSVILLE, VA., September 7.—(Special.)—We are highly delighted with our deliciously cool nights and with the prospect of cooler days. From 11 A. M. to 5 P. M. the sun blazes as hot as ever, and the dust is overwhelming. Most of the farmers not being able to plough, are keeping their teams waiting for the rain, when anything else they can find to haul. Many wells are nearly dry in this vicinity, which causes a good deal of inconvenience. We have not had rain enough to settle the dust well for many weeks.

Mr. H. Otty Hicks, who carried her little daughter to the Miller School last week after spending several days with friends, in Charlottesville, returned home Monday evening. Dr. A. P. Bowles, who spent several weeks visiting his father and family near Kent's Store, in Fluvanna county, Mr. B. A. Burgess, of Richmond, is here.

Mrs. Cornelius Cabell Rives, of River Lawn, is registered at one of our hotels to-day. There was a delightful "silver tea" given at the residence of Mrs. D. P. Powers on Tuesday night for the benefit of the Scottsville Baptist church. Quite a handsome sum was realized. Mr. George Norvell, a merchant, near Warren, and Miss Ames, of near Esomont, were married Wednesday.

The bride looked beautiful in a gown of white satin, and carried bride's roses. Rev. L. T. Hitt performed the ceremony. Mr. C. H. Hurd led a valuable horse from his livery yesterday. The animal was overdriven. Mr. Peyton S. Coles, Jr., and Mrs. W. D. Waters, of "Tailwood," were in town yesterday. Mrs. Waters drove the finest pair of hackneys to be found in this section. Mr. H. D. Forsyth, of "Aidvee," was in town to-day. Mr. Tapscott and Miss Edna Tapscott, of Warren, were in our town to-day. Mr. James S. Harris, of Damon, was here yesterday.

Mr. John Dawson, of Lynchburg, is here to-day. Mr. Hawkins, a citizen of the State of New York, has recently established himself here in the jewelry business, and intends buying property in this vicinity. Mr. George M. and Annie Nicholas, of Riverview, Buckingham county, are visiting in town. The many friends of Professor W. P. Ellis, formerly of this place, will be glad to learn that by the death of a friend he has been left in a considerable legacy. Mr. James Jarman, of Charlottesville, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Mary Jones.

VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE.

The Attendance Promises to Be Larger Than Usual. LEXINGTON, VA., September 7.—(Special.)—Every incoming train this week has brought a number of new cadets to the Virginia Military Institute. The enrollment of students is larger than the same date preceding the opening of the school a year ago, the number now reaching considerably over eighty. From this fact we may judge that the attendance the coming session will exceed that of last year.

General Scott Ship, the superintendent, estimates that fully 110 new cadets will be enrolled this year, and that as many as 100 old cadets in the various classes will return, which will make at least 200 men in the corps. That will be a slight increase over the attendance of last year. The session will formally open next Wednesday, the 12th.

The new resident surgeon, Dr. Hamilton P. Howard of Alexandria, has arrived. His mother, Mrs. Howard, accompanied him. They will make their home in the hospital building. Three new assistant professors, recent graduates of the institute, have arrived—Captain J. H. Derbyshire, of Richmond; Captain J. H. Marshall, of Fauquier, and Captain J. H. Woods, of Bristol. Captain Derbyshire is well remembered here as first captain of the corps in 1899, and the one graduate of that class who, owing to peculiar circumstances, took no part in the famous escape of January 1st, which escape caused the dismissal from the institute of the first class, except Captain Derbyshire. Next fall, after graduation, he was made commandant of cadets at the Wentworth Military Academy at Lexington, Mo. Shortly after the opening of the season, Grand Chief Templar, Rev. W. F. Shepard (re-elected), of Surry county; Grand Vice-Templar, Mrs. L. B. Staats, of Vienna; Grand Counselor, Rev. J. E. Deshazo, of Matthews county; Grand Superintendent of Grand Temple, M. George W. Hawkshurst, of Falls Church; Grand Treasurer, C. H. Walker, of Hampton; Grand Secretary, George W. Hawkshurst (re-elected), of Falls Church; Past Grand Temple, Rev. W. F. Shepard, of Loudoun county; Grand Chaplain, Rev. Z. Parker Richardson, of Louisa county; Grand Marshal, Ray Marcey, of Alexandria county; Deputy Grand Marshal, Mrs. Dottie R. Conway, of Fairfax county; Assistant Grand Secretary, Miss Ethel Payne, of Falls Church; Grand Guard, W. H. Blanch, of Mecklenburg county; Grand Sentinel, A. F. Mullen, of Newport News; Grand Messenger, W. G. Morgan, of Mathews county.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS.

Result of Their Recent Meeting at Newport News. NEWPORT NEWS, September 7.—(Special.)—The thirty-sixth annual convention of the Virginia Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Good Templars, was brought to a close Thursday afternoon in Hampton with the election of officers for next year. The following were chosen: Grand Chief Templar, Rev. W. F. Shepard (re-elected), of Surry county; Grand Vice-Templar, Mrs. L. B. Staats, of Vienna; Grand Counselor, Rev. J. E. Deshazo, of Matthews county; Grand Superintendent of Grand Temple, M. George W. Hawkshurst, of Falls Church; Grand Treasurer, C. H. Walker, of Hampton; Grand Secretary, George W. Hawkshurst (re-elected), of Falls Church; Past Grand Temple, Rev. W. F. Shepard, of Loudoun county; Grand Chaplain, Rev. Z. Parker Richardson, of Louisa county; Grand Marshal, Ray Marcey, of Alexandria county; Deputy Grand Marshal, Mrs. Dottie R. Conway, of Fairfax county; Assistant Grand Secretary, Miss Ethel Payne, of Falls Church; Grand Guard, W. H. Blanch, of Mecklenburg county; Grand Sentinel, A. F. Mullen, of Newport News; Grand Messenger, W. G. Morgan, of Mathews county.

Parker Richardson.

WINCHESTER PRESBYTERY.

Proceedings of the Session—Mrs. John L. Summers Stabbed. WINCHESTER, VA., September 7.—(Special.)—The session of Winchester Presbytery, held here since Tuesday, culminated to-day in the celebration of the 100th anniversary of Presbyterianism in Winchester.

Large numbers of visiting clergymen and Presbyterians were present from this and other States, and the exercises were of a very interesting character. In the morning Rev. Dr. James R. Graham, for fifty years pastor of the Kent-Street branch of the Church here, delivered an address on "Presbyterianism in Winchester." Rev. Dr. Henry M. White, for twenty-five years pastor of the Loudoun-Street branch, gave a sketch of the progress of the Church in Frederick county.

AFTERNOON SESSION. Rev. W. H. Woods, D. D., of Baltimore, presided at the session commencing at 3 o'clock this afternoon. During this session the following ministers spoke on the various subjects assigned to them: "Life and Services of Rev. D. H. Riddle, D. D.," by Rev. F. M. Woods, D. D., of Martinsburg; "Life and Services of Rev. William M. Atkinson, D. D.," by Rev. P. D. Stenerson, D. D., of Woodstock; "Life and Services of Rev. H. H. Boyd, D. D.," by Rev. Jonah Lupton, D. D., of Leesburg; "Life and Services of Rev. W. H. Foote, D. D.," by Rev. E. D. Washington, D. D., of Romney, W. Va.; "Some Elders," by Rev. James P. Smith, D. D., editor of the Central Presbyterian, Richmond; "A Century of Foreign Missions," by Rev. Charles Ghieselin, D. D., of Shepherdstown, W. Va.; "Presbyterianism Tested by its Fruits," by Rev. W. C. Hopkins, D. D., of Charlottesville. To-night Rev. Abner Hopkins, of West Virginia, presided. The leading feature of the services was the address of Rev. W. W. Moore, D. D., of Richmond, Va., on "The Episcopal State of the Presbyterian System."

A WOMAN BADLY STABBED. This afternoon John L. Summers, a well-known carpenter, who belongs to an excellent family, stabbed his wife with a knife and inflicted serious wounds. Summers, it is said, had been drinking, and went home long after the dinner hour. He ordered his wife to get him his dinner, and when she refused he became infuriated and plunged a knife into her side and the countess of his breast. Neighbors rushed in and carried her to a house across the street. A wound four inches long and two inches deep was inflicted. During the excitement, Summers escaped and has not yet been captured. Summers' father was at one time a well-known Lutheran minister of this city.

WORK OF THE SUPREME COURT.

But Three Judges Sat—Examination of Applicants to Practice.

STAUNTON, VA., September 7.—(Special.)—The following business was transacted in the Supreme Court of Appeals at Staunton to-day: Bennett T. Gordon, of Nelson county, qualified to practice as counsel in this court. The case of the Southern Railway Company against John Dawson, from the Circuit Court of Nelson county, was argued and submitted. Argued on behalf of the plaintiffs in error by Charles M. Blackford and on behalf of the defendant in error by S. B. Whitehead and Diggs & Perkins.

The case of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company against James Sparrow's administrator, from the Circuit Court of Nelson county, was argued in part, and continued until Monday morning next for further hearing. But three members of the court were on the bench to-day, Judge Buchanan being engaged in conducting the written examinations of thirty-three applicants for licenses to practice law.

A Coming Gloucester Marriage.

GLOUCESTER COURTHOUSE, VA., September 6.—(Special.)—The marriage of Miss Blanche Richmond, of Gloucester county, to Mr. Burr Noland, of Baltimore, will take place on Wednesday evening, the 12th, at Sherwood. Only the immediate friends and relatives will be present.

At this season of the year there are always many deaths, particularly among children, from summer complaint, diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera morbus, cramps, etc., and every one ought to know that a sure and speedy cure can easily be obtained by taking Perry Davis' Pain-Killer in sweetened water every half hour. It never fails. Avoid substitutes, there is but one Pain-Killer, Perry Davis'. Price 25 cents and 50 cents.
