WE ELECTIVE.

So far, these are the Richmond candidates for the constitutional convention: S. L. Bloomberg, A. S. Buford, George L. Christian, John A. Curtis, James W. Gordon, A. S. Lanier, Hill Montague, Charles V. Meredith, John S. Moore, Virgilus Newton, John Garl'd Pollard, S. P. Patterson, W. L. Royall, R. Carter Scott, George D. Wise.

Democratic primary election March 28th.

BRING CONVENTION HERE.

Let the City Democratic Committee, our several Democratic clubs, and, as for us, our Democratic citizens generally, be up and doing in the matter of having Richmond selected as the meeting place of the next State Democratic Convention.

No time should be lost in organizing a movement to secure the convention. There can be no question that both as to hall facilities and hotels, Richmond is better prepared than any other city in Virginia to accommodate and entertain such a great gathering as will assemble on the occasion of the next State convention.

We say such a great gathering, because, apart from the fact that the convention will be a large body in itself, it is a foregone conclusion that, owing to the unusual interest taken in politics this year, there will be an unprecedented number of visitors to the convention.

But it will not do to rest our case on the conditions that make Richmond the best and most available place for holding the convention.

There is doubtless going to be sharp competition for the honor of taking care of the assemblage of the Democratic clans at so important a political period. Hence, if we would win, we must be prepared to go before the State Committee, not only with evidence that we have the hall and hotel advantages the occasion will demand, but with proof of civic ambition to entertain the delegates, alternates, and visitors.

So we repeat, let our Democratic organizations and citizens generally be up and doing. Let there be organized effort without delay to make Richmond the State Democratic convention city for 1901.

BEEF AND CABBAGE.

It having been published that Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan is very fond of a dish of corned beef and cabbage, that food item is now appearing upon the bills of fare of many of the aperters of aristocracy, or, of rich men, rather. The dish, which had heretofore been regarded by many as plebeian, is now looked upon as "the thing."

For our part, we are disposed to approve beef and cabbage, especially when the beef and cabbage are tender and well cooked; cooked together, not in separate vessels, as is too often the method adopted in large establishments. But there is another dish we like even better, and that is bacon and greens; fine Virginia bacon and young, tender cabbage leaves. It is a spring dish, and old-fashioned folks begin to long for it as soon as winter has departed, and cabbage plants have had time to be set out and grow a little. One of the best of the lectures of the late Dr. George W. Bagby had for its title the homely, but appetizing, name of "Bacon and Greens."

"During 'the civil war,' when cabbages were scarce down here, Confederate soldiers were not above eating the tender shoots of the pokeberry plant. And when properly boiled, after parboiling, they were not at all bad. Many a hungry old Rebel enjoyed a dish of fat Nassau bacon and pokeberry leaves as much as J. Pierpont Morgan, Esq., can possibly enjoy his finely selected beef and cabbage.

OUT WITH SCIENCE.

Chicago has a serious grievance against science, and "they do say" that, were the shade of the inventor of the microscope to visit the city, it would be subjected in emphasized form to the diurnal experience of the ghost of Hamlet's father.

If there is one thing, more than any other thing or things, Chicago prides herself on, that thing is being considered a literary center. Boston isn't in it with the Windy City in the matter of blowing about taste for literature.

Recently, however, some scientist, with the aid of a microscope, went hunting for microbes in the books of the Chicago public libraries, and discovered a varied and extensive assortment thereof in nearly every volume he examined. This he attributed to the Chicago habit of wetting the fingers in turning over the leaves of the books. Yet the microscopic colonies afforded additional proof of Chicago love for reading, and following the Chicago instinct for blowing his literary trumpet, he blew his discovery to the public. But, alas and alas, he did not foresee the other side. Straightway, there was a tremendous falling off in the number of books taken out of the Chicago libraries, and the reputation of the city as a literary and reading center began to go down, down, down. Consternation prevailed, and in the city's hour of gloom and humiliation the proper authorities sought the advice of bacteriological experts. It is now given out that a committee of these have carefully inspected all the microbe colonies in the public library volumes, and awarded each a clean bill of health. Indeed, the committee have given each individual microbe a certificate that he, she, or it is absolutely harmless.

But the real harm had been done. As Chicago has also a wide reputation for whitewashing performances, thousands upon thousands of her people, it appears, look upon the deliverances of the expert committee with very lively suspicion, and, therefore, the chances of the city's regaining her literary prestige continues to grow small by degrees and beautifully less.

THE MAN WE WANT.

We sincerely hope that there will be found somewhere in Virginia a leader equal to the task of drawing up a suitable franchise article for the new constitution, and of presenting it to the convention with irresistible eloquence and force.—Richmond Dispatch.

We thought it was generally understood that Senator Daniel had been for some time devoting his attention to this subject, and that when the convention met, whether the Senator were a member of it or not, his draft would be submitted to the body. If this be true, all will agree that it will come as near running the Supreme Court gauntlet as is possible for a restrictive suffrage provision to do.—Fredericksburg Free Lance.

We know that Senator Daniel has been studying this subject, but his duties in Washington, followed by the extreme illness of one of his sons, must have left him little leisure for this purpose. If he would take the lead, probably he could come nearer than any other man to reconciling the conflicting views held by press and people on this subject.

Most of the Democrats of Virginia know what they wish, but they do not know "how to get at it." There's where they need guidance and leadership.

QUESTION OF AVAILABILITY.

May we venture to ask the D's-patch to state its reasons why Mr. Bryan should not again allow his name to go before a Democratic convention?—Williamsburg Gazette.

We gave our reasons pretty fully in these columns last Saturday. Mr. Bryan is, in the eyes of the masses, the embodiment of an issue upon which the Democracy have been twice defeated. Should Mr. Bryan be nominated in 1904, the real issues the Democracy might put forward to the contrary, notwithstanding, the opposition would place the burden of the dead and crushing issue of 1896 upon our party as they did in the last presidential campaign. Our admiration for Mr. Bryan is, as we have repeatedly said, unabated, but our judgment is that Democratic victory is not a possibility with him as our presidential candidate.

Albert L. Johnson, of New York, brother to Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland, has descended upon Philadelphia, and proposes a street-railway campaign there for 3-cent fares and universal exchanges. He will undertake to arouse public sentiment in behalf of his programme, and he asks the use of such streets as are not already occupied for railway purposes. He says, moreover, that he has charters and the rights of way for trolley lines from Philadelphia to New York and from the Quaker City to Allentown, in the Lehigh Valley, and he proposes to build on these rights of way and to make the fare between Philadelphia and New York, and between Philadelphia and Allentown not more than 50 cents. "The roads will be laid with 35-pound rails," he continues, "and the cars will be run on a system guaranteed by the General Electric and Westinghouse companies at the rate of fifty miles an hour." The scheme seems to be a pretty large one, but Mr. Johnson insists that he has undertaken just as large ones before, and has never yet failed in any one of his enterprises. In case he fails to obtain the right to enter the Quaker City he affirms that he will land passengers from his New York line at a point as near as possible to the present traction cars, so that they can go into the city for a single fare. He has apparently all the indomitableness of his brother Tom.

Fifty thousand sons of Erin paraded in New York Monday in honor of St. Patrick. Hon. John Daly, Mayor of Lima, Rick, was the guest of honor during the day, and Archbishop Corrigan reviewed the procession from the Episcopal residence, on Madison avenue. The novelty of the parade was the first appearance in public of the Catholic Infantry Cadet Corps, which, with a band of 50 pieces, led the forty-two divisions of the procession. An army officer from Governor's Island, who had inspected the cadets at their school, pronounced them the best drilled body of youngsters in the country.

The club woman of the day seems to be prosperous. We observe that two four-story dwellings in Forty-fifth street, New York, have been purchased by the Professional Women's League for $60,000, and that the organization in question will spend $40,000 more in constructing a clubhouse.

ALARM IN ST. PETERSBURG.

Three Students and One Cossack Killed in Monday's Rioting.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 19.—Alarm pervades high circles here. The police have notified house-owners to have their dormitories, or house police, report for duty, and hold themselves in constant readiness. A scintilla, or company, of Cossacks passed the Moscow gate this morning, on their way to Tsarskoe-Selo, seventeen miles south of St. Petersburg, whither the Czar has just removed. The police said they would escort the Czar back to the Winter Palace, and that he would return by carriage, instead of by rail. It appears more probable, however, that the Cossacks were merely sent to Tsarskoe-Selo as a precaution, since his Majesty is more easily protected there than here. It is apparently confirmed that three students were killed yesterday. The Cossacks rode into the crowds on the sidewalk and in the streets, and cut open by their knotted whips. Students and workmen threw rubber shoes, canes, and snowballs at the Cossacks. It is reported that one Cossack was killed.

A THOUSAND PRISONERS. An official of the political police said a thousand prisoners were taken, among them being a number of workmen. The presence of workmen among the rioters rendered this demonstration more dangerous than any known in a generation.

After reading the manifesto, the students threw their crumpled copies into the crowd, and raised a flag inscribed "For Liberty." The students also shouted, "Help us get our rights," and the mob responded with cheers.

FELTZ GRANTED BAIL.

Feeling Against Him in Wytheville and Const. WYTHEVILLE, VA., March 19.—(Special.)—T. L. Feltz, the Norfolk and Western railroad detective who shot and killed Walter Vaughan, at Kent's Siding, three miles east of Wytheville, yesterday afternoon, waived an examination this afternoon, and was sent on to the grand jury. Bail in the sum of $2,000 was granted, and given, and the accused left for Roanoke this afternoon. The report of "threatened violence" against Feltz by the friends of Vaughan in this place, and the county is without foundation, though there has been a good deal of feeling here and at Max Meadows, where Vaughan lived, against the detective. Vaughan's mother and two brothers, though crushed under the blow, say that they want nothing but a fair investigation and trial, and that they want the law to be supreme. Young Alford, who was on the ground with Feltz, and when the trouble between them began, refuses to talk. He says that he will make no statement until he is put on the witness-stand.

A PLEASURE PIER.

Another Big Enterprise Projected at Newport News. NEWPORT NEWS, VA., March 19.—(Special.)—The Hampton Roads Pier Company has been organized, with a capital of $100,000, for the purpose of building at the foot of Ivy avenue, on the Roads, an immense pleasure pier, with summer theatre, dance hall, dining hall, merry-go-round, etc.

The Newport News and Old Point Railway and Electric Company, and the Citizens Railway and Electric Company, are interested in the company financially, and the cars of the latter will run on the pier, where they will connect with the steamer to Sewall's Point, the terminal of the Norfolk and Atlantic Terminal Company's electric road. Work will be started at once, and the resort will be ready for the summer business. The company's officers are: President, Mayor A. A. Mosser; Vice-President, J. H. Gilkerson; Secretary, J. H. Gilkerson; and Treasurer, T. C. Powell.

BAD COIN AFLOAT.

Arrest of a Blacksmith Charged With Making It. CHARLESTON, W. VA., March 19.—(Special.)—William Cantrel, aged 47, was arrested in this city to-day by Captain Walsh, of the United States Secret Service, on the charge of making and issuing spurious coin.

The prisoner had in his possession molds for $1 pieces, but he had no bad money. His wife is said to live here. He is a blacksmith, gun, and silversmith, and works at a machine shop in this city. Cantrel will be taken before a United States Commissioner to-morrow for a preliminary hearing.

HOT SPRINGS.

Among the distinguished guests at the Homestead is Mr. Seward E. Payne, of New York.

Mrs. D. B. Tennant and Miss Tennant left here yesterday morning. Their visit was cut short by learning that Mrs. Henry Fairfax was not well.

Mr. J. A. Davenport was among the Richmond people who have been here in the past few days.

Mr. H. G. Merry, of Cleveland, O., formerly with the Low Moor Iron Company, as its general manager, is now associated with Mr. Jacob Rubins in the management of the Rubins Heating Springs. He and Mr. Rubins are here now.

The bathing capacity of the large bathhouse at this point is now being taxed to meet the requirements of the persons coming here.

A West Virginia Corporation Moving on a Special Train.

CHARLESTON, KANAWHA COUNTY, March 19.—The stockholders of the Columbus Gas, Light and Heat Company, of Columbus, O., arrived in this city on a special train, and held a business meeting to-day at the Virginia hotel, incorporated in this place, and the incorporation of the company was completed.

After transacting some business of a private nature, the stockholders elected General Samuel Thomas, of New York, president; J. G. Deshler, of Columbus, vice-president and treasurer; J. O. Johnson, of Columbus, O., general manager, and H. M. Work, of New York, secretary. Directors—General Samuel Thomas, H. D. Turney, J. G. Deshler, J. O. Johnson, G. W. Sinks, E. K. Stewart, and F. G. Hubbard.

While here the stockholders visited Governor A. B. White, at the Capitol. He is a native of Columbus, O. There were a crowd of fully one hundred.

Scottsville Notes. SCOTTSVILLE, VA., March 19.—(Special.)—Among the sick with grippe, Rev. J. R. Daniel and Miss Rose Parrar, Saturday, Dr. Bowles was called in great haste to visit a 5-year-old son of Mr. George W. Robertson, who had swallowed a draught of carbolic acid, and was called to try the Coleman-Sanders breach-of-promise suit, and the Sheriff and his deputy were dispatched to summon a number of others to select from.

"Robin Redbreast" is a very scarce bird in this section of the country this season. The boys go in pursuit of him are poorly rewarded.

Pittsylvania Court.

CHATHAM, VA., March 19.—(Special.)—Yesterday was County Court day, and a large crowd was in attendance, but there were no cases of special importance to be disposed of.

Hon. Charles A. Swanson was here in conference with his many friends in regard to the gubernatorial contest.

THE PLOT OF "WAY DOWN EAST."

Something About Next Week's Great Academy Attraction. Combining the marvellous character drawing of "The Old Homestead," the wealth of detail notable in "Shora Acres," and the stirring story of "Lover's Lane," the William A. Brady production of "Way Down East" has enjoyed a term of prosperity rarely equalled in these days of the drama. That the piece has never before been seen here is due simply to coincidence, there being probably not another large city in the country which has not been visited twice or three during the past few seasons. In fact, of these plays the presentation has had remarkable runs. It has been seen 47 times in New York, 200 times each in Boston and Philadelphia, and 175 times in Chicago.

"Way Down East" was written by Lottie Blate Parker and elaborated by Joseph Grismer. It tells a story simple, and yet so absolutely human, that its appeal is universal. The story in question concerns Anna Moore, a young woman who finds a mother-in-law in her own roof of a certain "Square" building. The "Square's" son, David Bartlett, comes to love the stranger in their midst, and the "Square's" wife, a gentle woman as is to be found in many a quiet home, has to take a tumble. The "Square's" wife, when a gossip-vending spinster brings to them a harsh account of the girl's life, Anna Moore has loved a young collegian, who has ruined her by means of a "rocking-chair" hearing this, the "tolerant" "Square" turns the wanderer out into a driving snow-storm, from which she is brought back by brave, manly David. This plot is said to be unfolded in a simple manner, as to reveal numerous episodes of a humorous and pathetic nature. It also permits the display of much beautiful scenery, and of at least one remarkable mechanical effect—the snow-storm mentioned.

The New York company will be seen here during the engagement at the Academy, which begins Monday, and includes three evening performances, and a bargain matinee Wednesday.

My Condition Could Have Been No Worse. In the fall of 1897 I contracted Blood Poison. I tried various remedies, but they did me no good; I was getting worse all the time; my hair fell out, ulcers appeared in my throat and mouth, my body was almost covered with copper colored spots and offensive sores. I suffered several times from rheumatism in my shoulders and arms. My condition could have been no worse; only those afflicted as I was can understand my feelings. I had almost lost all hope of ever being well again when I decided to try S. S. S.

I had a little left in my medicine. After taking the first bottle I felt a change in my condition. This was truly encouraging. I continued to take S. S. S. until I was completely cured. My ulcers healed and I was free from all signs of the disorder. I have been strong and healthy ever since.
