MONTAGUE'S SPEECH.

HE ADDRESSED A FINE AUDIENCE IN ROANOKE LAST NIGHT.

ANSWERS COL. HOGE'S CHARGES.

Declared That Some of His Assertions were Groundless—Allusion to Ballot-Box Frauds Interposed by a Negro—More About Good Schools.

ROANOKE, VA., October 12.—(Special.) Attorney-General Andrew J. Montague, Democratic nominee for the governorship, addressed a large audience to-night in the Academy of Music. There were many ladies present.

The meeting was quite enthusiastic. On the stage were a large number of leading citizens and Democrats.

Ex-Mayor James P. Wood opened the meeting by introducing H. A. M. Bowman, a candidate for the House of Delegates.

Mr. Bowman introduced Mr. Montague and for an hour and a half the latter held the closest attention of the large audience.

He said that he stood for the principles that encouraged cleanliness in the administration of government both in the Philippines, in Cuba, in Samoa, in San Francisco and at the Capitol at Washington. He wanted a clean government minus the speculation and thievery, such as had been witnessed at the hands of the administrators of our national government in our new possessions.

Mr. Montague referred to the address of Colonel Hoge, on September 7th, from the same stage, in acceptance of his nomination. He had a stenographic report of the speech and said some statements made by his opponent were absolutely groundless and without a shadow of truth for the foundation of such assertions.

The Colonel, Mr. Montague said, had accused him of saying unkind things about the Democratic party. He declared that he did not even charge Republicans; that Colonel Hoge and General Walker had been guilty of doing that thing and it had the effect of tumbling them into the Republican ranks. Mr. Montague said that he had not yet ready for such an acrobatic feat.

Regarding the statement attributed to him that a ballot box of crime was better than a ballot box of innocence, he said that what he had said was that the ballot box which is the receptacle of fraud is no worse than the ballot box which is the receptacle of ignorance.

Mr. Montague declared that his unflinching belief that the remainder of American patriotism lies within the ranks of the Democratic party. He was interrupted by an negro who gave him an answer good naturedly, and declared that he finally announced that the negro had been the tool of the Republican party in Virginia and the South for thirty-five years and negro's interruptions of the speaker finally caused him to be ordered out by the police.

Mr. Montague dwelt particularly on the improvement of the public roads, and the public schools, and declared that if elected Governor, he would use all honorable means in his power for the improvement of both.

MAJ. ANDERSON AT BUCHANAN. He Addresses a Large and Representative Audience.

BUCHANAN, VA., October 13.—(Special.)—A large and representative audience assembled in the town hall last night to hear Major Anderson, the Democratic candidate for Attorney-General, speak. Fully 400 voters were present. Colonel Robert Catlett was present, and made a few remarks, which were well received.

Major Anderson spoke in part as follows: He rapidly reviewed the history of the Underwood Constitution and negro suffrage in Virginia. He showed that the ballot in the hands of the negro has been a weapon which has been wielded ignorantly and to the injury of both the white man and the negro. He showed that the negro was not and had never shown himself to be capable of self-government; that he was still less capable of taking part in the government of white men, and that the attempts of the negro at government have proved a failure, a farce and a disaster, whenever they have been tried. He showed that the evil of universal negro suffrage had done a disaster in Virginia, and that this condition was gradually spreading over the whole Commonwealth.

Mr. Anderson said that the convention would adopt reforms which would save the State many times the cost of the convention every four years, said it was the duty of all patriots to sustain those who were in the convention, endeavoring to accomplish these reforms. He wanted the State regenerated and the Commonwealth to have a white man's government.

From seventy-five to one hundred ladies were present, and gave Major Anderson a hearty welcome to his native county.

Major Anderson's speech was cordially received, and every indication points to victory.

CARNIVAL WEEK CLOSED WITH STROKE OF MIDNIGHT BELL.

A REVIEW OF WEEK OF MISRULE.

In Point of Attendance, The Period Was a Record-Breaker—Some High Water-Mark Figures—Planning for Next Year—Electrical Feature.

Carnival week closed at midnight. The reign of the King of Misrule is an end and the people are round about in the manner of the days before he asserted his sway. Last night it was perfectly proper to hall every girl you met on Broad street, and address her even in the most familiar terms. If you so much as smile at her on your way to church this morning she will tell papa. You could throw confetti in her face by the handfuls and could even chuck her under the chin, but she won't stand for it.

"Good morning, Carrie," was the favorite salutation from the boys for the girls as they met them on the street last night, but it was "so do do," "How do do," "Tommy," was the expression of the night, but if it is suggested that they use such a form of salutation this morning they will shudder with horror at the mere idea. It was the fashion to be impolite and to display the most good breeding and good manners. That is the difference between Carnival week and other weeks. Conventionality ruled then and it will rule now.

The week, in point of crowds, was more of a success than anything the city has ever seen. There were never so many visitors in the city as were here on Thursday and Friday last night, and even on the week-end. The streets were thronged with people never in any two weeks before brought so many people into the city.

The railroads brought to Richmond during the week, in round numbers, forty-five thousand people.

The street-car lines hauled more than half a million passengers in the week ending last night.

Over 200,000 people went into the shows on Broad street during the week. Over five thousand people attended the Horse-Show from Tuesday night.

"The Carnival Association is prepared to meet every obligation," declared H. Funsten, secretary of the organization, last night. "We will pay all bills when sent in, and we want them just as soon as possible. I wish the Dispatch would urge that all such bills be sent up at once for inspection, approval, and settlement."

Already the members of the association are beginning to think of next year. They are not united in their opinion. They want like that of this year. Every one of them is agreed in saying that this was the great feature of the week. There is a general feeling of regret that the week of 1922 an exhibit of the Richmond manufacturing industry, and if the manufacturers will only give up their doubt that the show next year could be made the greatest ever attempted by any city of the South, without the aid of the Federal Government.

Richmond is a manufacturing industry of the world, and the exhibit in this line alone could be easily made attractive enough to draw to the city thousands of visitors. Of course, it is the intention of the managers of the show to include the merchants of the city from having their booths on the street, as usual. The idea of a manufacturers' exhibit is a popular one, and is very likely of adoption.

The Carnival Association will be ready to give to the public on next Tuesday night a statement of the total receipts and expenditures for the week. It will be interesting, especially in view of the fact that it will show that the receipts will equal the outlay. There was necessarily a very large expenditure of money, but the income was not by any means insignificant.

Every outgoing train was crowded to the steps last night. There is still many people here, as was evidenced by the number of visitors from the counties who had come to the city during the week. The thoroughfare was not so crowded as on the other nights of the week, but there was a great throng, and the people seemed to have as good a time as they could be having preceding nights. The week was indulged in may be called enjoyable.

The electrical features of the Carnival were the subject of much comment during the week. There has never been seen the kind of action of the Union anything of the kind that is, anything on such a stupendous scale as was attempted by the Carnival Association, and carried out by the city of Richmond.

It is said that there would not be a fair in the country until the Pan-American Exposition, at Buffalo. The illumination was the chief feature of the Carnival. The thanks of the thousands of spectators on the streets during the week, and the fire-electrician and Superintendent of Fire-Alarm W. H. Thompson. He has worked night and day to make the illumination feature of the Carnival a success, and there are thousands of Virginians who are ready to testify that he has succeeded beyond all his expectations, may be, though no one knows his powers so well as he does himself. It is a triumph for the little Napoleon.

Delegates to Staunton. All delegates that will attend the convention of the Grand Division of Virginia, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will be held on Thursday next, at 4 P. M., in the spacious ladies' assembly-room of the Pine-Street church.

The next high water mark for the city's guests during the week. It was no small undertaking to keep that which immense crowds upon it from fifteen to eighteen hours each day, but Superintendent Cohn did his work well.

It was done in such a manner that few knew it was accomplished. At midnight, each day, Superintendent Cohn, with a large force of men, began the work. Generally it was finished before the crowd began to gather for the next day's activity.

The efforts of Mr. Cohn in this direction deserves the highest praise, especially from those who take pride in the neat appearance of the city's streets.

Woman's Missionary Circle. One of the four meetings of the year of the Baptist Women's Missionary Circle, of the city of Staunton, will be held on Thursday next, at 4 P. M., in the spacious ladies' assembly-room of the Pine-Street church.

ACROSS JAMES RIVER.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE TO CONFER AT COURT-HOUSE MONDAY.

WILL PROBABLY ENDORSE MADROEA

Campaign Expected to Assume New Phases—Outlook Good for Toney—Lost Child Found—Back from the Carnival—Free Ride—Church Notes.

The Republican Committee for Chesterfield county will hold a meeting at the County Courthouse on Monday. The business for which the meeting has been called has not been given out, but it is likely that another candidate will be endorsed for the Legislature against the four Democrats now in the field. It is understood that Mr. D. S. Maddrea, of Manchester, has announced himself as a Republican candidate. In view of this fact, it is likely that the County Committee has been called to endorse Mr. Maddrea and make him the running mate with Mr. A. W. Wilson.

There are yet developments to be made in the fight in the district, and the contest is becoming more and more interesting in the entire State. Just what these developments will be cannot be learned yet, but the politicians of both parties are on the still hunt, and anything may be expected.

Mr. Maddrea, who hails from the First Ward stated yesterday that he felt certain that he would receive the solid negro vote of Manchester. He thought, however, he could secure some white votes in the city.

Mr. Toney, one of the regular candidates, is receiving letters every day from voters in the district, particularly from the city, assuming that he will be the voters' would support and work for him in the campaign. These letters, in connection with other information from various parts of the district, assures Mr. Toney that he will not doubt as to his election next month.

Another child lost. Considerable excitement was occasioned in Manchester yesterday morning by the loss of a child, in a short time there was a general turnout of the people of the city, especially in the business section, and a search was instituted. The child was found in the hands of a boy named Powhatan, who was stopping in the city. The little fellow was located on Mayo's bridge a short time afterwards.

"BACK FROM THE CARNIVAL." Many people who were on the streets of Manchester last night than all of the preceding nights of the week. All during the week the city presented the appearance it usually does on Sunday. The people entered thoroughly into the Carnival celebration during the entire week. A merchant remarked yesterday that one of the people went to Richmond on Monday at the opening of the Carnival, and returned yesterday. Another merchant said that the Carnival had ruined the retail trade in Manchester. He said many of his customers spent all their money on the Carnival, and he had to get credit, and followed this up by borrowing money.

The people of Manchester are glad that the Carnival is in history, but a large majority of them will always remember the week.

FREE RIDE FOR CHILDREN. On Thursday, the school children of Centralis, in Chesterfield county, were given a free ride on the new road line to participate in the children's portion of the Carnival. They came in on the construction car and returned late in the afternoon after an enjoyable day.

The subject of the sermon to be preached at Bainbridge-Street Baptist church this morning by Rev. E. B. Baldy, will be "Visions of Horses in Divine Revelation."

Rev. Charles Myers will preach at the Presbyterian church this morning at 11 o'clock. There will be no service at night.

Rev. H. H. Moore will conduct both services at the Cowardin-Avenue Christian church to-day. The communion service will be held after the preaching this morning. Instead of before, as has been the custom in the past.

Rev. Mr. Kinchloe will preach at the Stockton-Street Baptist church this morning and to-night.

Rev. Mr. T. W. Sisk, who is supplying the pulpit of the Oak Grove Baptist church, will preach this morning and to-night.
