TUESDAY, DEC. 3, 1901.

ARMY-POST MOVEMENT.

If the movement to secure the location here of a United States army post is to succeed we must press it vigorously and unrelentingly. Already Charlottesville and Winchester are competing with us for the prize, and we may expect other cities to follow them.

That no place in the State can meet as fully as Richmond the demands of the authorities in respect of this matter is, we think, clearly demonstrable.

Mr. William C. Jutte, a Pittsburg coal operator, recently demonstrated the fact that he is possessed of an abnormally hard head. To this minute the doctors are unable to understand the adamant qualities of his skull.

It seems that in some way Mr. Jutte became a victim of nervous despondency and insomnia, and last Saturday he attempted to commit suicide.

Mr. Jutte has not explained his "rash act," which proved so injurious to the bullet, but his father-in-law says that for some reason the unfortunate man has lately talked of imaginary business reverses and financial losses—a good excuse for suicide, if there be any excuse for it.

PROBING PUZZLES.

From the Nation we take a synopsis of the work that has been done and is being done under the patronage of Joseph Florimond, Duke of Loubet, in the way of stimulating interest in study of American antiquities, which encourages the hope that the day is not far distant when the hieroglyphics and puzzling picture writings of Mexico and Central America will be an open book.

THE EXPOSITION PAID.

Glasgow, Scotland, answers very decidedly in the affirmative the question can exhibitions be made to pay? She made out of her exposition venture a net profit of $500,000.

THE PENITENTIARY FIRE.

The fire at the penitentiary Sunday evening little loss, but it was in one of the cells nearly unburned, the hospital building, and was accompanied with exciting incidents. That the convicts should have taken fright and should have become panic-stricken and cried aloud to be released from the cells is no wonder. They could not know the extent of the fire, and it was human for them to object to being roasted alive.

A GRAND UNION DEPOT.

A week or more ago the Dispatch said the time probably would come when all the passenger trains arriving in or departing from the city would enter the Main-Street Depot. Already we hear a very general desire expressed that an arrangement should be made, and the City Council is moving in the hope of accomplishing that result.

It would be of great advantage to the travelling public, to this city, and to the roads to have a grand union depot here. And as we pointed out some time ago, the Main-Street Station is the place for it. Topographically considered, there is no other spot here affording such facilities for incoming and outgoing trains.

It is estimated that during the first session of the Fifty-sixth Congress, which lasted from December, 1889, to June, 1890, there were 9,156,737 words spoken in the Senate and House. It is further estimated that during the session of the Fifty-seventh Congress which opened yesterday, 13,426,237 words will be spoken.

FATAL TEACHING.

The latest contribution to the New York Journal's series of articles on "How Education Will Solve the Negro Problem" is by Dr. Thomas Nelson Page. After arguing to the conclusions that elementary education should be universal; that compulsory education should follow compulsory taxation for educational purposes; that with this education should go such industrial training as may be beneficial, and that education should be accompanied with moral teaching, Dr. Page says:

"It is the belief of a large section of the whites, who from their situation have the best means of knowing, that the longer only for political equality; his aspiration is for social equality; this the young 'educated' negro to-day is taught, this he cherishes in his inmost heart and discloses more or less according to his boldness and surroundings. He could not have more fatal teaching."

All of which is very true. And who, we ask, stands to-day most prominent before the world as the teacher of that fatal doctrine? Why, President Roosevelt, the head of the party that exploits itself to the world as the negro's best friend.

Mr. William C. Jutte, a Pittsburg coal operator, recently demonstrated the fact that he is possessed of an abnormally hard head. To this minute the doctors are unable to understand the adamant qualities of his skull.

It seems that in some way Mr. Jutte became a victim of nervous despondency and insomnia, and last Saturday he attempted to commit suicide.

Mr. Jutte has not explained his "rash act," which proved so injurious to the bullet, but his father-in-law says that for some reason the unfortunate man has lately talked of imaginary business reverses and financial losses—a good excuse for suicide, if there be any excuse for it.

THE ROAD QUESTION.

Clarksville, Va., November 30, 1901. To the Editor of the Dispatch: I notice in yesterday's paper, under the head of "Current Comment," that the Buchanan Banner thinks the Constitutional Convention should provide for one responsible head in charge of the roads and bridges of the State.

EVERY DAY WORK.

Grand deeds are trumpeted; loud bells are rung, and men turn round to see The high peaks echo to the peans sung 'O'er some great deed; who for And yet grand deeds are few. The mightiest men Find opportunities but now and then.

Shall one sit idle through long days of peace, Waiting for walls to scale? Or lie in wait until some "Golden Fleece" Lures him to face the gale? There's work enough; why idly, then, Delay?

FOUR HOTELS TURN AWAY EX-QUEEN.

Hedged about by the divinity appearing to a monarch, the former Queen of Hawaii, Liliuokalani, yesterday exercised her prerogative of refusing to grant an audience to an army of callers. The ex-Queen was tired out. She arrived in New York on Friday, and for several hours travelled about with her entourage seeking a hotel. By a strange coincidence, the Waldorf-Astoria, the Savoy, the Netherlands, and the Murray Hill all had no vacancies. It was found impossible to accommodate Mrs. Liliuokalani. Finally, the ex-Queen had recourse to a hotel in East Fifty-ninth street, where she will remain until her departure for Washington in a day or two.

DEATH OF EDWARD VALDEN—SOME FINE FISH CAUGHT.

WILLIAMSBURG, VA., December 2.—(Special.)—Mr. Edward Valden, son of Mr. Jacob Valden, died Saturday at a fall-house, near James City, after a long and painful illness. The body was interred in Cedar Grove Cemetery here yesterday afternoon. Dr. W. P. Hoy and Mr. C. J. Person this afternoon caught four chubs, black bass, that weighed about twenty-four pounds. They were fine specimens of the finny tribe, and were brought to town "kicking."
