

ANOTHER RICHMOND.

TWO REPUBLICANS FOR CONGRESS IN SECOND DISTRICT.

DIFFERENCES TO RECRUESCE

Promise of a General Outbreak in Virginia of the Old Factional Troubles, and the Extermination of One or the Other—Fight on Allan.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 8.—(Special.)—There will probably be something of a sensation among the Republicans of the Second Congressional District in Virginia when it is known that the chances are strong that there will be two Republican candidates for Congress from that district. It is learned here from a trustworthy source that the Wise faction of the Republicans of the district are seriously considering the question of calling a convention to nominate a man, and believe that if they do so their candidate will be recognized by the Republican Congressional Committee, headed by Chairman Babcock. It is recalled that in two campaigns prior to this the nominee of the Wise faction was recognized. The fact is learned that some of the Wise supporters are already in communication with the Republican Congressional Committee. They are making the direct charge to President Roosevelt, if necessary, that there is no sincerity in the proposed nomination of C. H. Causey, of Suffolk, by the organization committee. The declaration is going to be made that Causey is the weakest man who could be nominated, and that the organization Republicans are playing the old game of putting up a man who can carry no strength in the district; that they really desire defeat, and that they do not propose to nominate any man who has before him any prospect of becoming popular.

The determination of the opposition faction in the Second District will undoubtedly make trouble, and will call into question the sincerity of the Bowden Republicans at a time when the genuine issue is already suspended as to the genuine issue. What will be the outcome is not yet known, but the Wise Republicans, and the people back of them, declare that they will make more trouble for the Bowdenites than the latter have known for years. WHO WILL BE NOMINATED? If the nomination is made, it will probably go to one of several men. L. Burroughs, former postmaster at Portsmouth, and for eight years, chairman of the district committee, is most prominently regarded at this time. Next to him comes Hugh Gordon Miller, assistant United States attorney at Norfolk; John L. Roper, of Norfolk, and ex-Congressman Harry L. Latham, of Hampton. John D. Dole, of Southampton, is also spoken of. Mr. Burroughs is ambitious for the nomination, and that he can probably get it. He has a strong friend behind him in Congressman Hull, of Iowa, who is connected with the Bowden campaign. Mr. Burroughs is not only ambitious, but he wants to pay off some old scores with the Bowden people. It is said that he attributes his troubles as postmaster at Portsmouth to the jealousy of the Bowden people, because they saw in him the prospect of a man who might get a footing among the people and in Washington. Practically the same charge is made in the case of Hugh Gordon Miller, the Wise adherents declaring that he has been kept down because there was promise of political development and strength in his career.

THERE IS FACTIONAL TROUBLE. A prominent Republican from the Second District, in Washington said today: "The impression is created that factional differences in the district have been settled. But this is all based on the fact that a few of the leaders who were hostile to him, but there are many men remaining in the district who will not accept his leadership." It is stated that Mr. Bowden has recently had an understanding with Alvah H. Martin, county clerk at Norfolk, by which their differences have been settled, but outside of this Mr. Bowden has not succeeded in bringing about any strong acquiescence to his nomination. Mr. Burroughs was succeeded as chairman of the Second District by Harry Walcott. It is alleged that Burroughs was put out because Mr. Walcott, an Ohio man, and it was hoped by his selection to stand in better with the McKinley administration, which was then in power. It is charged that D. Lawrence Groner, who has recently withdrawn from the race for United States attorney in the Eastern District, aided in counting the votes of the convention that dumped Burroughs. THE FIGHT ON GENERAL ALLAN. The fight on General Allan for United States attorney is on a serious footing. If General Allan is defeated for the place it will not be until a hot fight has been made on the Bowden element. Frank Ingratitude is charged against the Bowden ring in its treatment of General Allan. It is alleged that when the two delegates in the Philadelphia Republican National Convention, years ago, were threatened by contesting delegates of the Wise faction the Bowdenites made a strong appeal to General Allan to stand them from defeat. They sent for him to Atlantic City, where he was sick in bed, and against the advice of his physicians he went to Philadelphia and saved the day for the Bowdenites. It is said that Mr. Bowden is to be informed that the fight on General Allan dates from the race made by the district attorney against Congressman Lamb, of Richmond. The charge is made that Mr. Bowden has nothing against General Allan until he opposed their wishes and made the race against Mr. Lamb, the organization Republicans not desiring to have a man in the field in that district. It is said that Judge Waddill issued instructions that he did not want opposition to Mr. Lamb, and that despite his wishes General Allan made the race. In this case, as in all others, the Virginia law is not to be carried with not General Allan or anyone else to secure any position that would detract from their own leadership. As to Hugh Gordon Miller's candidacy for United States attorney, the information here is that Mr. Miller is positively not a candidate against his chief, General Allan, but he is a candidate if it is seen that General Allan cannot be appointed. In other words, the Bowden faction has centered all its strength for United States attorney on Congressman T. Thorpe, D. Lawrence Groner having withdrawn, while the opposition faction is to have two candidates, one as a substitute for the other, in case the first man has no show for the place. The anti-Bowden faction declares that Mr. Miller is stronger in Washington than Thorpe, having defeated the latter in the race for United States attorney in the Eastern District.

SOMEWHAT OF A JUMBLE. All in all, there is a promise of a red-hot outbreak of the old factional differences in Virginia, and the extermination of one or the other of the factions. If the anti-Bowden element nominates a candidate, the Bowdenites are going to charge to the President that the Bowden people have made no effort to secure proper registration of the negro vote. It is claimed that in Nansemond county the Bowdenites made no honest effort to register the negro vote, and that as a consequence only about 18 per cent of that vote is on the books. It is further charged that the Bowdenites have really away from the negro vote, and really want to cut away him registered for good. Whether this argument will help the Wise people in the face of the President's desire for a white party in the South is not count on.

POST-OFFICES AND PERSONALS. The post-office site at Stony Point, Albemarle county, has been changed, the office now being about a quarter of a mile in a westerly direction from the old site. The following star-service routes have been discontinued by order of the Post-Office Department: Fancypack to Fancypack, Fancypack to Fancypack, Fancypack to Lundy, mail for Sells to Flatridge. The commission of John R. Muir, as postmaster at Ophelia, Northumberland county, has been extended to October 1. Mrs. M. B. Patterson has been appointed postmistress at Beaville, Buckingham county, to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of James T. Trevillian. Mr. Trevillian has served his four-year term. Among Virginians registered at Washington hotels are the following: R. S. Blackwell, Ashland; Charles D. Griffith, Norfolk; W. H. and Mrs. Nelson, Richmond; R. S. Wiley and Mrs. Wilson, Richmond; Alden M. Beach, Leesburg; William A. Barr, Roanoke; Charles Strous, A. H. Strous, Richmond; J. W. Brown, Covington; C. E. Crawford, Norfolk; Mr. and Mrs. Williams, Richmond; T. D. Newell, Richmond; J. Kinderwater, Richmond; S. N. Miller, Richmond; John E. Graham, Henrico; Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Philson, of Richmond, are spending a few days at the Raleigh. Mr. S. B. Lambert, of Chase City, Va., will leave today for his home, to spend a vacation of eight or ten days. Mr. Lambert is engaged in the dairy business in this city.

Not Registration in Primary. No new registration is necessary for a voter to participate in the Democratic congressional primary in this district, September 11th. This fact has been emphasized by Captain Lane and Mr. Wallace frequently, but the matter is not generally understood by those who wish to vote, but who have not attended any of the meetings of either candidate, and have received no definite instructions upon this point. In order to vote in the general election November 4th, new registration, as provided for by the recently promulgated constitution is necessary. This registration will commence in this city September 15th, and will be held in every ward of Southern Republican Matters Will be Taken Up, and Trusts Will be Discussed.

NEW YORK, September 8.—(Special.)—When President Roosevelt returns to Oyster Bay his most important visitor will be Marcus A. Hanna, Senator from Ohio. Mr. Hanna has been asked to spend the day at Oyster Bay, and it is understood that he has fixed Wednesday, next week, as the date most convenient for him. The President has no personal business for that day, and he has so informed the Ohio Senator. No one knows what subjects will be discussed when these two influential party leaders get together, but it would not be a far way to guess to say that Southern Republican matters will be taken up, and that the Congressional campaign will be gone over thoroughly. Perhaps the trusts will be touched upon, too. Senator Hanna will reach Oyster Bay a few days earlier in order to have a talk with Chairman Babcock, of the Congressional Committee.
