U. D. C. CONVENTION

ECHOES OF THE MEETING HELD IN NEW ORLEANS.

DAVIS ARCH INSCRIPTION.

Daughters of the Confederacy Everywhere Invited to Make Suggestions—No Pledge to Buy General Jackson's Home in Lexington.

At the convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, held in New Orleans last week, the two amendments which were offered in regard to holding biennial meetings and that the officers serve two years were lost.

The following notes from the convention, clipped from the New Orleans Picayune, will be of interest to the members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and other Confederate organizations in this city.

"On the purchase of Stonewall Jackson's home, the convention voted 'No,' because the ladies felt that they could not bind themselves so far ahead as to pledge for the purchase of the place after completion of the Jefferson Davis monument.

"Speaking of the Jefferson Davis monument that is to be erected in Richmond, Mrs. Rounsaville said that the contract would be given out shortly, and the work begun.

"The design, as accepted, will be constructed, and the only thing that remains is to select a suitable inscription. The chairman of the inscription committee is Mrs. E. G. Weed, wife of the Bishop of Florida, and former president of the Daughters of the Confederacy.

"The thought of bringing children into the work was undertaken simultaneously by two States, Georgia and Virginia, and they have worked most successfully along this line.

"Mrs. William R. Vawter, one of the representative women from Richmond, Va., and representing the Richmond Chapter in the convention, is another of the brilliant women of the Mother of States.

"Mrs. Vawter is the chairman of the calendar committee of the Daughters of the Confederacy. She has brought to New Orleans some of the most beautiful souvenirs, water-colored paintings of Confederate soldiers, and scenes, that are being sold for the benefit of the monument.

"The Tennessee Room in the Virginia Museum at Richmond, and is a member of the Holywood Chapter, and is a member of the most faithful workers, and will do anything to keep alive the memories of the past.

"The monument must be built, she said, in her own constructive way, and we women of the South, as we are working zealously, and hope to have it unveiled in 1904.

"The convention has been a great success. I have greatly enjoyed my visit to New Orleans, and often in my far-off of Staunton I will think of the delightful days spent in this beautiful city.

"Mrs. Robert Turner Meade, president of the Virginia Grand Division, was equally pleased with the results of the convention. She said that a great deal had been accomplished, and the ladies had reason to congratulate themselves on the fact.

"The year after year the work is broadening, and this means that more daughters are coming into the work; more interest is being paid to the work of perpetuating the memory of our city heroes as well as keeping their graves

INTERSTATE COMMISSION.

History of a Strenuous Fight Against Rate Discriminations, Won by the City of Danville, to Be Subsequently Lost in Federal District Court.

A case of peculiar interest to Virginia came up in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday. It is styled Interstate Commerce Commission, appellant, vs. Southern Railway Company, appellee, an appeal from the decision of the United States Court for the Western District of Virginia.

This is the old case of the city of Danville vs. the Southern railway, argued and fought, and finally won before the Interstate Commission, by the city, but appealed to the district court by the railway company.

The court, Judge Henry Clay McDowell sitting, reversed the verdict of the commission and held that the freight rates of which the city of Danville complained were not exorbitant nor unjust, but were justified by the conditions and the interests of the appellant.

As a matter of fact, the commission had elaborated hearings of the testimony in the case, and finally, after listening to argument of counsel, decided in favor of the city.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. J. W. Mosley; vice-presidents, Mrs. E. M. Snellings, to represent Temple Lodge No. 9; Mrs. A. T. Rahm, Richmond Lodge No. 10; Mrs. S. Murray, Lodge No. 11; Mrs. A. W. Fitzgerald, Manchester Lodge No. 14; Mrs. W. F. Richardson, Richmond Randolph Lodge No. 19; Mrs. W. H. Hase, St. John's Lodge No. 25; Mrs. L. T. Christman, Joppa Lodge No. 40; Mrs. A. Arsell, Dove Lodge No. 51; Mrs. L. Bloomberg, Fraternal Lodge No. 53; Mrs. A. R. Courtney, Amity Lodge No. 75; Mrs. J. S. The papers were never so filled with advertisements of remedies that will cure every known disease, as they are to-day; these are invariably accompanied by letters from people, testifying in the strongest terms to the virtue and merit of the medicine.

"For several months past I have received so many inquiries from sufferers asking if my testimonial is authentic, that I have included in a bill to you for postage and stationery.

"It is now two years since I was last troubled, and my recovery is as clear and clean as any man who never had piles, although I suffered with protruding, bleeding and internal piles for twenty-seven years. I will not attempt to detail the agony I suffered, being too happy to say I believe I am cured after two years of evidence.

"I will answer any communication that a sufferer may ask, and will refer to any business house, bank or manufacturer of Canton, O., concerning my identity, among whom I have lived for forty-eight years."

A FAVORITE POEM.

THE BLESSED DAMOZEL.

(By Dante Gabriel Rossetti.) The blessed damozel leand' out From the gold bar of heaven;

Her eyes were deeper than the depth Of waters still; even so She had three lilies in her hand, And the stars in her hair were seven.

Her robe, unglint, from clasp to hem, No wrought flowers did adorn, But a white rose of Mary's gift, For service mostly worn.

Her hair that lay along her back Was yellow like ripe corn. It seem'd she scarce had been a day One of God's choristers;

Surely she leand' o'er me—her quite gone, Albeit, to them she left, her day Had counted as ten years.

(To one, it is ten years of years, Yet now, and in this place, ment surely not so quite gone, Fell about my face. Nothing, the autumn-fall of leaves The whole year sets apace.)

It was the rampart of God's house That she was standing on, By God built for the sheer depth The which is Space begun;

So high, that looking downward thence She scarce could see the sun. And still she bow'd herself and stoop'd Out of the coping (bars), Until her bosom must have made The bar she leand' on warm.

And the lilies lay as if asleep Along her bend'd arms. "There will I ask of Christ the Lord Thus which for him and me Only to live as once on earth With love—only to be, As then a while, forever now Together, I and he."

She gazed and listen'd and then said, Loos'd all of speech than mild—"All this is when he comes." She ceas'd, The light thrill'd toward her, fill'd With Angels in strong level flight, Her eyes pray'd, and she smil'd.

(I saw her smile.) But soon their path Led on in distant spheres; The golden barriers, And laid her face between her hands, And wept (I heard her tears), And then she cast her arms along
