

SUMMARY OF DAY'S NEWS.

THE WEATHER. WASHINGTON, March 13.—Forecast for Saturday and Sunday: Virginia and North Carolina—Rain Saturday and Sunday; fresh northeast winds becoming southeasterly.

STATE OF THE THERMOMETER. A. M. 48 10 A. M. 50 12 M. 52 1 P. M. 54 2 P. M. 56 3 P. M. 58 4 P. M. 60 5 P. M. 62 6 P. M. 64 7 P. M. 66 8 P. M. 68 9 P. M. 70 10 P. M. 72 11 P. M. 74 12 M. 76

MINIATURE ALMANAC. March 14, 1903. Sun rises... 6:21 HIGH TIDE. 5:08 Moon rises... 7:34 Evening... 5:33

RICHMOND. Major Norman V. Randolph died at 9 o'clock last night. Picture of General N. B. Forrest presented to the City by Mrs. R. W. Power very ill. Chase City. Judge Campbell to be notified Monday or Tuesday of the charges against him.

VIRGINIA. Wilson Bryant sentenced at Wise for the murder of Vanover. Interest in good roads and some real estate sales at Chesapeake City's Mayor and Council were not held. Two negroes in connection with Kennedy-Crowder affair.

NORTH CAROLINA. Lula Glaser unable to appear in "Dolly Varden" at Greensboro. American Telephone and Telegraph Company installing a local plant at Greensboro. Preparations for the North Carolina base-ball team to play Brown University on March 20th.

WOMAN IS ACCUSED OF MURDER

Mrs. Catharine Danze Committed to Prison.

ALLEGED TO HAVE POISONED HUSBAND

Negro Who Sold the Drug Is Also Under Arrest.

CLEVER WORK DONE BY PRIVATE DETECTIVE

Feigned Sickness and Placed Himself Under the Care of the "Herb Doctor" in Order to Get Information Upon Which the Arrest Was Made.

(By Associated Press.) PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 12.—Charged with having poisoned her husband, William G. Danze, who died eleven months ago, Mrs. Catharine Danze was committed to prison to-day without bail, and George Hoosier, a negro "herb doctor" and fortune teller, who it is charged, sold poison to the woman, was also held without bail as an accessory to the crime.

The woman has been under arrest several days, but pending a further investigation she was not arraigned until this afternoon. The principal witness against her was a private detective, who was called to her in the manner of the husband's death. His investigations led him to call on "Doctor" Hoosier, the detective feigning illness. While he was being treated for "kidney trouble" the detective told him he was having trouble with a woman, and after further conversation the "doctor" volunteered to sell him a powder that would kill the woman in three days. The "doctor" said he had given a woman some powder more than a year ago to get rid of her husband. The woman promised the "doctor" $100, but only gave him $5.

A city officer then took up the story and told of having found two boxes of "Rough on Rats" in the negro's store. Mrs. Danze told the detective of having secured drugs from Hoosier and put it in her husband's coffee, to cure him of the drink habit, as he was a hard drinker. The detective said that she had Hoosier arrested and collected $3,000 insurance on her husband's life.

A chemist said that the package the negro intended to give the private detective to kill the nefarious woman contained 100 grains of white arsenic. The body of the husband was exhumed yesterday and the vital organs were turned over to a chemist for investigation. This will take several weeks, and pending his report no date will be set for the inquest.

Mrs. Danze, who has a daughter nineteen years of age and a son of eighteen, has always borne a good reputation. The physician who attended the husband in his last illness assigned rheumatism of the heart as the cause of death. The physician said he had been a chronic sufferer from this disease.

WOMAN'S FISTS WERE HER MEANS OF DEFENCE

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) YORK, Pa., March 12.—Miss Missouri Kipp, of this city, to-day told the authorities how she had put to flight an unknown man who had assaulted her in West York Avenue last on Tuesday night. When the man leaped from a hiding place and seized her, trying to drag her into a vacant lot, Miss Kipp, drag her into a vacant lot, Miss Kipp, drag her into a vacant lot, Miss Kipp, drag her into a vacant lot.

ENDED HER LIFE FROM DISAPPOINTMENT

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NEW YORK, March 12.—William J. Jordan, a motorman on the Union Trolley Line, in the Bronx, was instantly killed by a sheet of electrical flame, caused by the breaking of an overhead trolley wire. It burned his body horribly.

MISFORTUNES FOLLOWED HIM

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NEW YORK, March 12.—William J. Jordan, a motorman on the Union Trolley Line, in the Bronx, was instantly killed by a sheet of electrical flame, caused by the breaking of an overhead trolley wire. It burned his body horribly.

BATTLE OF RAILROAD MAGNATES

Keene and Harriman Interests in Litigation.

FIRST BLOOD DRAWN BY KEENE INTERESTS

Temporary Restraining Order Granted by U. S. Court.

ARGUMENT WILL BE HEARD FOR INJUNCTION

Keene Interests Declare That Union Pacific Directorate is Managing Southern Pacific Interests of Former With Ultimate End of Depreciating Value of Later Road and Buying It.

STATUE OF ROBT. E. LEE

Gen. Fitz. Lee Endorses the Legislature's Action.

THE HOWL AT THE NORTH

Made Mostly by Those Who Were Inevitable in the War, and Are Now Endeavoring to Appear Invincible.

(By Associated Press.) CINCINNATI, O., March 12.—In the contest between the Keene and the Harriman interests in the Union, the Central and the Southern Pacific Railway Companies, the former to-day secured a temporary restraining order and notice was served on the latter that at Nashville, on April 1st, there would be a hearing of cause why an injunction should not be issued as prayed for. As the date for the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Southern Pacific is April 8th, it was desired to have the petition heard before the next election of directors.

The Southern Pacific has a Kentucky charter, although it owns no property in that State. Its legal headquarters are at Beachmont, Ky., a suburb of Louisville, where its legal representatives lives, and for this reason the petition was filed in Louisville yesterday, but the attorneys found no circuit judge, and they in chambers.

Taylor, the complainant, is a son-in-law of James R. Keene. The bill filed by attorneys for the complainants, Taylor, J. Taylor, and James B. Taylor, Taylor & Company, and discloses an alleged condition of affairs in which the Union Pacific interests in the Southern Pacific the latter company in the interests of the former. During the years of 1900 and 1901 the Union Pacific Company acquired a holding of Southern Pacific shares, amounting to $75,000,000, which he represents, which, it is charged, he has been using, it is charged, to elect a director, a member of which was and is interested in Union Pacific as against the Southern Pacific.

Best of Them All To-Morrow's Will Be

It has been the earnest desire and effort of The Times-Dispatch to make the issue of each Sunday surpass any that had been previously printed. With what success this has been done the public can judge. The growing popularity of the paper and the large increase in sales indicate the appreciation of the people.

Richmond has never had such large or such superb Sunday papers as these issues by The Times-Dispatch in the last six weeks. And to-morrow's issue will be the brightest and best of all. Every department will be up to the highest standard; the news of the world will be thoroughly covered by the Associated Press and our great army of correspondents; and in addition to all of our regular features, there will be many special articles of popular interest.

ALL PASSENGERS AND DRIVER KILLED

(By Associated Press.) LOS ANGELES, CAL., March 12.—A dispatch from Tucson, Ariz., to the Herald says: Mexican bandits held up the stage which runs between Potam and Torin on the Yaqui River, in Sonora, last Tuesday night, killing all of the six passengers, including three women. Among them was Filiberto Alvarado and his wife, who had taken the stage from Potam to Torin, and the bandits thought he carried a large sum of money with him.

BANDITS HOLD UP STAGE AND MURDERED THE OCCUPANTS, INCLUDING THREE WOMEN.

(By Associated Press.) LOS ANGELES, CAL., March 12.—A dispatch from Tucson, Ariz., to the Herald says: Mexican bandits held up the stage which runs between Potam and Torin on the Yaqui River, in Sonora, last Tuesday night, killing all of the six passengers, including three women. Among them was Filiberto Alvarado and his wife, who had taken the stage from Potam to Torin, and the bandits thought he carried a large sum of money with him.

HE PASSES ACROSS THE DARK RIVER

Major N. V. Randolph's Useful Life Ended.

MOST EXCELLENT CITIZEN IS GONE

Many Years Identified With Richmond's Interests.

WAS ONE OF MOSBY'S GALLANT SOLDIERS

Ever True to the Memory of the "Lost Cause" and Never Unmindful of the Needs of Those Who Fought Under the Stars and Bars.

A Condensed History of His Career.

Throughout the entire city there will be read this morning with the profoundest sorrow news of the death of Major Norman V. Randolph, Confederate veteran and public-spirited gentleman, who, after a lingering illness, passed peacefully to rest at 9 o'clock last night at his residence at Sixth and Grace Streets.

While the announcement in the light of the rapid decline of the deceased during the past few days causes no surprise, it carries with it none the less its burden of grief, which will be borne by all classes alike. Perhaps no other individual in Richmond was so closely identified with the life of the city and so bound up in it, and now at the death of this individual, many will mourn. To many it will come with a keen sense of personal loss.

HIS LONG ILLNESS. The serious illness of Major Randolph dates from some months back. In the last summer, while sojourning at the mountains of Virginia, he was stricken down. For some days he was very ill, but he rallied and gradually grew better. Finally he was able again to sit up and receive friends who came without number to chat with him. He then, however, he enforced confinement. This meeting with old comrades and trusted friends was one of the chief joys of his last days.

Lately the condition of Major Randolph began to grow worse, and on Wednesday a marked decline was noticed. From that time onward he sank rapidly, and during the past day or two the end has been momentarily expected. It was recognized that the last days of his life were devoted to the good of the community were drawing to a close, and relatives and friends gathered sorrowfully around the bedside, watching without hope. At 9 o'clock last night the end came, and the sick man passed away peacefully, unconscious of the loving ones who stood about him.

At the hour of the death Leo Camp, Confederate Veterans, of which the deceased was a devoted member, was in session with a distinguished company present. Until the meeting was over no word was given them of the sad news. Afterwards, however, they learned, and the old comrades of Major Randolph were bowed with grief. Here, particularly, was his loss felt, for he felt one thing dearer to his heart than another, it was the memory of the Confederate cause, kept sacred in his own mind, without him, in the death of Major Randolph there is removed from the life of the city one of its noblest and truest characters—a staunch and ready friend, public-spirited citizen, an capable man of affairs, whose many and noble accomplishments which are indissolubly connected with the name of Major Randolph, there is one that perhaps may be said to overtop the rest—his labors for the memory of the "Lost Cause." No Confederate assembly was complete without him; his words were the guiding words of the aged veterans, he gave to them the best of his heart and the best efforts of his energetic spirit. The Soldiers' Home remains a monument to his memory.

The business career of Major Randolph and his public-spirited acts, which won to him the regard of a city and State, are told in the sketch of his life given below. He was the founder of the Randolph Paper Box Factory, and was an early advocate of the employment of white labor. He was for many years at the head of the Virginia Life Insurance Company; in other ways he was identified with large interests here through it all he was the same honored and esteemed citizen and gentleman, beloved of all.

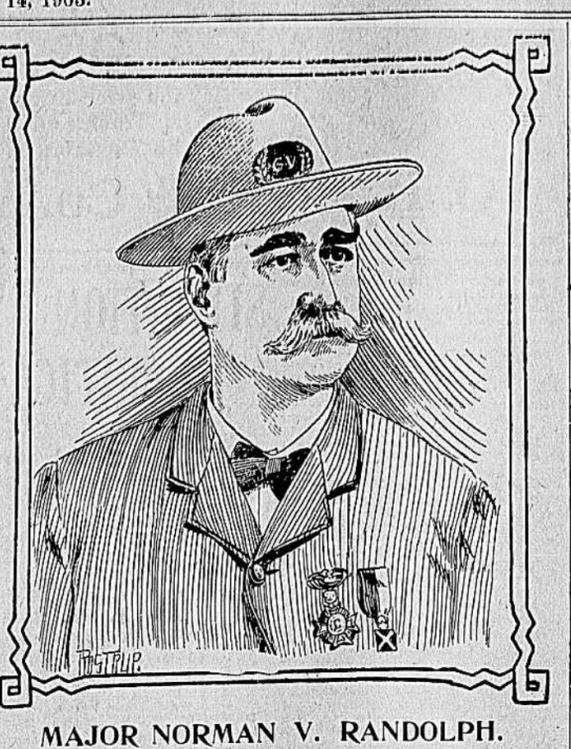

No arrangements have been made for the funeral services. To-day, however, all will be completed. The services will probably be held from St. Peter's Cathedral.

Major Randolph was stricken down while on a visit to the mountains of Virginia. He was very ill for some days, but gradually got better until able to sit up and receive friends who frequently dropped in for a chat. The meeting of comrades and their talk of old times, and the consciousness that he was in the midst of those who loved him tenderly, were the abundant joys of his last days.

Major Randolph was born fifty-six years ago in Henrico county, near Richmond, his father having been the late J. W. Randolph, long the leading book merchant of this city, having established the well known firm of J. W. Randolph & Engle, which did business here up to a few years ago.

Major Randolph received a good education and began his business career as a youth in his father's store. When the war broke out he volunteered his services to his State, though a mere stripling, and saw his first service as a brave courier on the staff of General Sherman.

Later on, he joined Scott's Rangers and fought gallantly with them in the ranks until the last year of the war, when he joined Mosby's command in Northern Virginia as a private in Company E. Major Randolph for several times wounded

MAJOR NORMAN V. RANDOLPH.

VETS MEET AFTER YEARS

Touching Scene on Floor of House and a Great Reunion.

There was a touching scene enacted on the floor of the House of Delegates yesterday during the session of the body, when two old Confederate soldiers, who had known one another on the field of battle forty-one years ago, but who have been separated since, met and embraced one another, their eyes streaming with tears of joy.

The story is an interesting one. Forty-one years ago Mr. J. H. Walker was stricken almost to death by a Federal bullet on the bloody field of Kernstown, and Captain A. O. Sullivan, the one-legged veteran, who is the faithful door-keeper of the House, was detailed to haul the wounded man from the field. Among those who recovered and who is now a tenant of Captain W. W. George, of Smyth county. The bullet which lodged near Mr. Walker's spinal cord, was never located until yesterday, when on account of long suffering he came to Richmond and submitted to the X-ray treatment. The ball was located and to-day it will be extracted by Dr. George Ben Johnston, at the Old Dominion Hospital. Yesterday morning Mr. Walker, grizzled with the weight of the passing years, was on the floor of the House to see his landlord and representative, Captain George. He asked who was representing Montgomery county in the House, as he desired to inquire of him if Arthur Sullivan was still alive.

Mr. Walker was still alive. Mr. Sullivan personally replied Captain George: "There he sits," he went on, pointing to the old battle-scarred veteran, whose crutches stood beside him at his seat. "Come on; I'll introduce you to him," continued the Smyth county representative, but it was no use, for in the twinkling of an eye Mr. Walker sprang past him and the two brave hearts that had beat for their sunny southern country on a hundred hard fought fields, were locked in a long and tender embrace. Reminiscences were in order and the two remained together in happy conversation for a long time.

WILL SPEND MONEY. Mr. Hooley and associates will take over the entire interests of the Trigg Company, and propose spending vast sums of money in the complete re-equipment of the plant. The plant will be greatly enlarged and arrangements at once made to standardize the smaller type of vessels heretofore turned out by the Trigg Company.

Upon being notified that the creditors of the Trigg Company have agreed to his proposals, Mr. Hooley will at once nominate the corporation to put up the money and take over the affairs of that company.

The name of the new corporation has already been decided upon, but cannot at this time be made public, but I will say that it is a good one, because one of the beautiful young ladies of Richmond was the author of it. We have every confidence in the future of the new company, and will not hesitate to put up a sufficient amount of money to provide such a plant as will be capable of turning out high-class vessels.

This is a great thing for Richmond. It will mean the putting out of much money and the employment of many men.

DEEP RUN CLUB'S JUMPING CONTEST

Will Take Place To-Day, After a Number of Postponement.

The jumping contest of the Deep Run Hunt Club, which has been postponed several times on account of the weather, will be held at the club house to-day at 1 o'clock. Those entering horses have been busy schooling them for the past two weeks. Mr. Stewart Bryan was out with "Elevator" on Wednesday, and the gray gelding was as clever as you please over the jumps. "Jack" was also over them with inches to spare. Mr. J. T. Anderson's green hunter, recently purchased, is said to be taking to his schooling kindly, and shows great promise. "Jack Diamond" was taken over the jumps several days ago. This chestnut gelding has improved immensely since the Horse Show, and will take a lot of beating. "Virginia C." and "Blue" and "Little Fellow" are jumping as consistently as ever, and the entries of Mr. J. D. Matthews are said to be doing all that has been asked of them. Other entries have been hard at it, and everything points towards an interesting and enjoyable contest.

PRISONERS ESCAPE, LOCKING JAILOR UP

John and Robert Shanklin Took French Leave from Union, W. Va., Jail.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) CASHTOWN, W. VA., Mar. 12.—At Union, W. Va., tonight at 6 P. M., as Mr. Honaker, the jailer, unlocked the cell of John and Robert Shanklin, two noted and much-desired prisoners, they made their escape. Mr. Honaker unlocked the cell, took up a large water with the supplies of several prisoners, walked into the cell, when the men rushed and locked the door behind them, leaving the jailer a prisoner in their stead.

A reward of two hundred and fifty dollars was offered in a few hours. It is not known in what direction the Shanklins went. They were in jail awaiting the Circuit Court, which will convene on the 17th instant, for numerous house-breakings.

HE PASSES ACROSS THE DARK RIVER

Major N. V. Randolph's Useful Life Ended.

MOST EXCELLENT CITIZEN IS GONE

Many Years Identified With Richmond's Interests.

WAS ONE OF MOSBY'S GALLANT SOLDIERS

Ever True to the Memory of the "Lost Cause" and Never Unmindful of the Needs of Those Who Fought Under the Stars and Bars.

A Condensed History of His Career.

Throughout the entire city there will be read this morning with the profoundest sorrow news of the death of Major Norman V. Randolph, Confederate veteran and public-spirited gentleman, who, after a lingering illness, passed peacefully to rest at 9 o'clock last night at his residence at Sixth and Grace Streets.

While the announcement in the light of the rapid decline of the deceased during the past few days causes no surprise, it carries with it none the less its burden of grief, which will be borne by all classes alike. Perhaps no other individual in Richmond was so closely identified with the life of the city and so bound up in it, and now at the death of this individual, many will mourn. To many it will come with a keen sense of personal loss.

HIS LONG ILLNESS. The serious illness of Major Randolph dates from some months back. In the last summer, while sojourning at the mountains of Virginia, he was stricken down. For some days he was very ill, but he rallied and gradually grew better. Finally he was able again to sit up and receive friends who came without number to chat with him. He then, however, he enforced confinement. This meeting with old comrades and trusted friends was one of the chief joys of his last days.

Lately the condition of Major Randolph began to grow worse, and on Wednesday a marked decline was noticed. From that time onward he sank rapidly, and during the past day or two the end has been momentarily expected. It was recognized that the last days of his life were devoted to the good of the community were drawing to a close, and relatives and friends gathered sorrowfully around the bedside, watching without hope. At 9 o'clock last night the end came, and the sick man passed away peacefully, unconscious of the loving ones who stood about him.

At the hour of the death Leo Camp, Confederate Veterans, of which the deceased was a devoted member, was in session with a distinguished company present. Until the meeting was over no word was given them of the sad news. Afterwards, however, they learned, and the old comrades of Major Randolph were bowed with grief. Here, particularly, was his loss felt, for he felt one thing dearer to his heart than another, it was the memory of the Confederate cause, kept sacred in his own mind, without him, in the death of Major Randolph there is removed from the life of the city one of its noblest and truest characters—a staunch and ready friend, public-spirited citizen, an capable man of affairs, whose many and noble accomplishments which are indissolubly connected with the name of Major Randolph, there is one that perhaps may be said to overtop the rest—his labors for the memory of the "Lost Cause." No Confederate assembly was complete without him; his words were the guiding words of the aged veterans, he gave to them the best of his heart and the best efforts of his energetic spirit. The Soldiers' Home remains a monument to his memory.

The business career of Major Randolph and his public-spirited acts, which won to him the regard of a city and State, are told in the sketch of his life given below. He was the founder of the Randolph Paper Box Factory, and was an early advocate of the employment of white labor. He was for many years at the head of the Virginia Life Insurance Company; in other ways he was identified with large interests here through it all he was the same honored and esteemed citizen and gentleman, beloved of all.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral services. To-day, however, all will be completed. The services will probably be held from St. Peter's Cathedral.

Major Randolph was stricken down while on a visit to the mountains of Virginia. He was very ill for some days, but gradually got better until able to sit up and receive friends who frequently dropped in for a chat. The meeting of comrades and their talk of old times, and the consciousness that he was in the midst of those who loved him tenderly, were the abundant joys of his last days.

Major Randolph was born fifty-six years ago in Henrico county, near Richmond, his father having been the late J. W. Randolph, long the leading book merchant of this city, having established the well known firm of J. W. Randolph & Engle, which did business here up to a few years ago.

Major Randolph received a good education and began his business career as a youth in his father's store. When the war broke out he volunteered his services to his State, though a mere stripling, and saw his first service as a brave courier on the staff of General Sherman.

Later on, he joined Scott's Rangers and fought gallantly with them in the ranks until the last year of the war, when he joined Mosby's command in Northern Virginia as a private in Company E. Major Randolph for several times wounded

POSTAL TO HAVE LINE ALONG UNION PACIFIC

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) OMAHA, NEB., March 12.—The Union Pacific Railroad Company and the Postal Telegraph Company have come to an agreement by which the Postal Company will build a line of cable from Omaha to the Pacific coast. The poles and wires have been stored here for some time and the work of construction will begin at once. The line will carry six wires, and the total cost of construction will be $1,000,000. The object of the new line is to connect the Postal Company's system more directly with the Pacific cable, now being laid by the Mackay interests.