TRADE IS VERY DULL. Englishmen Holding Off on Account of Prices. CIRCULARS JUST RECEIVED. Mr. Gallaher on the Market for About a Week, but is Not Talking Much for Publication—The New Crop.

The condition of the export tobacco trade with England just at this moment is rather unsatisfactory. The independent concerns there, the only ones on the market since the organization of the Imperial, are not pleased with the prices, which they regard as too high, and they are standing off at present. Local dealers here report very little business with the Britishers. Circulars from London commission merchants, giving account of the status of the trade during the past month, have just arrived here. They report things as being "somewhat quiet." John C. Miller & Co., of London and Liverpool, say as follows: "Our market was somewhat quiet during the past month, holidays and stock-taking by several buyers helping to accentuate the dullness. Sales generally were small in character, being more or less for immediate requirements, though bids were made for larger lots with a chance of business resulting if difference in views between buyer and seller can be adjusted."
