NO TRIFLING NOW.

The Republicans have trifled so much with the currency question we are not surprised to find that many people give the President and other leaders little credit when they promise that the matter shall receive the early attention of Congress.

It is true that there is a wide difference of opinion among Republicans, as among Democrats, as to what should be done to amend the national banking laws, but the fact is that the party in power has not yet set to work seriously to reach an agreement.

Understand, we do not believe that all the ills that afflict the land can be removed by currency reform. No. We do not hope for a congressional cure-all.

But the question is, How can conflicting opinions be reconciled? First, the Republicans must come to an agreement among themselves and present to Congress a bill that will commend itself not only as an administration measure, but as a patriotic measure.

DEATH OF MR. KIMBALL.

We are distressed to hear of the death of Mr. F. J. Kimball, president of the Norfolk and Western Railway Company, who died yesterday at his country home at Radnor, Pa.

FARMERS AND DEMOCRACY.

Several days ago, in referring to the effort which ex-Governor Hoeg, of Texas, has been making to organize the farmers of that State, "for political purposes," and otherwise, we expressed the opinion that any farmers' organization for political purposes would be sure to fall of its own weight.

A SENSIBLE GOVERNOR

Governor Terrell, of Georgia, recommends the enactment of a law providing for the adoption of a Torrens land registry system in that State. We hope that the recommendation will be adopted, and that the General Assembly of Virginia will follow Georgia's example.

ation of farmers. Every farmer ought to be a Democrat, for it is the Democratic party which stands for equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

MR. KEENE AND PARTNER.

James R. Keene, the New York broker, has been very much in the public eye since the recent failure of his son-in-law, Talbot J. Taylor. Mr. Keene has had a remarkable career. He began life upon his own account at the early age of fourteen, in the State of California.

But he went back on the market, dealt in various stocks, principally sugar, national cordage and tobacco, and amassed another fortune, which he subsequently lost in large part in dealing in Third Avenue stock. But he again recuperated, and is now said to be several times a millionaire.

AN OLD LANDMARK GONE.

The destruction of the old hotel at Nag's Head, N. C., removes one of the old landmarks of North Carolina. Before the war Nag's Head was a great resort for the wealthy planters of the eastern section of the State, many families moving down in the early summer and remaining until the cool weather of the fall.

We do not know when the old hotel was built, but it had been there for many years, and was very dear, from its associations, to many North Carolina people, as well as to eastern Virginians.

As we have said more than once, we believe many motives actuate the President in desiring to see currency reform accomplished. One of these is that he wishes to be elected President!

Understand, we do not believe that all the ills that afflict the land can be removed by currency reform. No. We do not hope for a congressional cure-all. Nor is the present demand merely the product of a shrinking stock market.

Three years ago the hotel took fire and would have been consumed but for the gallant work of the guests, who formed a bucket brigade and succeeded by and by in extinguishing the flames.

Notary Publics' Authority. Editor of The Times-Dispatch: An inquiry as to whether a notary could issue warrants, and you replied in the affirmative.

Section 3912, Code 1887, reads: "Every judge throughout the State and every justice, commissioner in chancery and notary within his county or corporation, shall be a conservator of the peace, and shall be so in the exercise of his office, and shall be held to account for his conduct as such conservator."

Section 3788, Code 1887, reads: "That any refusing or neglecting to assist a conservator of the peace in restoring order or making an arrest, shall be confined in jail not exceeding six months and be fined not exceeding $100."

Section 3789, Code 1887, also gives a notary the privilege of carrying a concealed weapon.

I might add that some four or five years ago, I issued a warrant for the arrest of a man, charging him with assault, who, after being arrested, was fined $10. The warrant was issued by me upon the statement of the present Commonwealth's attorney, that I had the power to do so, and, therefore, the case is closed.

I feel satisfied if every notary in this city will bear these facts in mind and whenever they see any violation of the law, and in accordance with the oath of office, a great deal of the disorder we have experienced recently will be eliminated and there will be no further need of the military being called to our beautiful city.

Half Hour With Virginia Editors.

Speaking of primaries and other kinds of elections, the Page News says: While it is argued that the viva voce system is a long step in advance toward pure politics, we cannot see this advantage in a plan that requires the corrupt voter to put up the name of the man he wishes to elect, thereby publicly deliver the goods to the purchaser who with such a system alone can be absolutely sure that his practices are successful.

The Danville Register remarks: According to an exchange the height of Miller's offending related to the fact that he gave business of the department plain that he was employed by the government could be satisfactorily dispatched with a re-education in the force as it is now. Here is a piece of interesting information from the Harrisonburg News: There was the finest bunch of Virginia politicians on exhibition at the Manassas Horse Show this week that has been seen in a long while. And there were some pretty decent horses on the side.

Referring to the periodical talk of a Southern man for the presidency in the Bedford Bulletin says: While every Southerner feels that this great country owes its existence and present prosperity mainly to the patriotism and statesmanship of the South, the past year has shown that they cannot fall to recognize that at present, other powers than patriotism and statesmanship have full control, and they must wait until the people realize their peril, and the danger to their time-honored institutions, before a Southern man can ever have an opportunity for preferment.

With a Comment or Two. Strikes come high. The one in Richmond lately is estimated to have cost about two hundred thousand dollars. Strikes are like wars—after they are over we wonder why some way wasn't devised to avoid them.—Greensboro Telegram.

Some estimates come high also. Directly and indirectly the strike has cost more than figures show on the surface, but $200,000 probably overshoots the mark.

DAILY FASHION HINTS.

GIRL'S SAILOR SUIT. The general becomingness of sailor styles is responsible for their continued popularity, and a jaunty little suit that will be very comfortable to their youthful wearers is pictured here in blue canvas. The blouse is cut low enough to slip over the head. It is embellished by a very quaint yoke, which gives a demure and a new model, having broad box-pleat, which seems to be especially for the emblem on the sleeve. The skirt is the regular style, having a front and side gores. The mode would be very artistic if dressed of white, with stitching and blue serge would make a serviceable dress for cool days at the seashore. Linen, pique, cheviot or any of the usual materials is charmingly used in its development.

"I lost courage and thought I would never regain my health." Three years of delicate health trying doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines without benefit might well sap the courage of any woman. And yet Mrs. Bryant proved that the question of the cure of womanly disease is only a question of using the right remedy. A few doses of "Favorite Prescription" restored her courage and revived her hope, because she could see "a decided change from the first." Three months' use of the medicine restored her to perfect health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures irregularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Mrs. Sarah Bryant, President of Memphis Social Science Club, residing at 371 Atkinson Ave., Memphis, Tenn., writes: "I suffered with delicate health for three years, trying doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines until I lost courage and thought I would never regain my health; but a few doses of your 'Favorite Prescription' made me change my mind. Could see a decided change from the first, so kept on taking it for three months faithfully and am now in perfect health."

HOTEL GOES UP IN SMOKE

Nag's Head Hostelry Burned to the Ground.

THE GUESTS ESCAPED

But Their Clothes, and in Many Cases Their Money, Were Burned—Proprietor's Wife Dies from Shock. The Loss $110,000.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NORFOLK, VA., July 27.—Nag's Head Hotel, on Albemarle Sound, North Carolina, burned yesterday afternoon and Mrs. John Z. Lowe, wife of the proprietor, swooned in the piazza, fell and died. She was subject to heart disease.

This was the only casualty, but many of the 140 guests escaped from the dining room only in time to save their lives. They lost their baggage, clothes and some lost their money.

The wire in the hotel burned so that there was no means of sending telegraphic news to the world outside till early this morning, when a telegraph operator walked many miles to the nearest station to send news of the distress of the victims of the fire.

The building was a large, old frame structure, hence it burned rapidly, and was enveloped in flames quickly. The fire's origin is unknown, but it is supposed to have come from a match near a can of gasoline. The loss is estimated at $110,000, with $3,500 insurance on Mr. Lowe's furniture.

The guests went to Elizabeth City by boat and started thence to their hotels. The body of Mrs. Lowe arrived here this evening and lies at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Leewood Walker, in Portsmouth, to be buried to-morrow.

Nag's Head is a solid sand promontory two miles long, extending into the Atlantic east. It has long been a popular resort because of its elevation. When the wire in the hotel was burned last night there was no communication with the outside world, and the first news of the disaster was sent from the life saving station of the coast, where many of the guests were sheltered during the night. There were no means of saving the house, but the least excited nature from the lower floors.

MRS. WILKINSON BETTER MADE PRESIDENT

Mr. Alf. A. Thompson Head of Raleigh and Neuse Cotton Mills.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) RALEIGH, N. C., July 27.—Mr. Alf. A. Thompson, banker, president of the Raleigh Cotton Mill and Neuse Cotton Mill, near Raleigh, to succeed the late Charles Latta. He is one of Raleigh's most prominent men, and has been president of the firm of Johnson and Thompson, cotton brokers, president of the Carolina Mills Company, president of the Commercial and Farmers Bank of Raleigh, and vice president and secretary and treasurer of the Carolina Ice Company.

The body of the two mills was first offered to Allen J. Ruffin, of Hillsboro, but he declined.

BIG BREAK OF TOBACCO

Sixty Thousand Pounds Sold in Wilmington—Grade Inferior.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WILMINGTON, N. C., July 27.—The second big tobacco break of the season was held at the Wilmington Warehouse, over 60,000 pounds having been sold at an average of fifty dollars a hundred. The grade was inferior, mostly sandy and low.

The American Tobacco Company bought the majority of the weed sold. The warehouse was a big break of the season, and the prospects for a successful market continue promising.

USED AXE ON HER SPOUSE

Woman Charged With Killing Her Husband.

THREW CLOTHES IN WELL

These and Pieces of the Bed Ticking Covered With Blood, Help to Fix the Unusual Crime on Her.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) GREENSBORO, N. C., July 27.—Developments before a coroner's jury here yesterday and to-day show the commission of a foul murder in the outskirts of the city one night last week, and all the circumstances point to the wife of the victim as the perpetrator. Mary Lattie has been placed in jail without bail, charged with the murder of her husband, Charles Lattie, a negro man of good reputation, who has worked for several years for the Brooks Lumber Company.

The circumstances leading up to the discovery that of the body and afterwards to the commission of a crime, as a dastardly crime, as elicited at the inquest, are interesting and unusual.

The body of a man in an advanced stage of decomposition was found by Henry Jefferys late Saturday evening, in a clump of bushes, some distance from the main street of a negro settlement in the outskirts to the city.

The body was identified after some difficulty as that of Charles Lattie, whose child, where he lived with his wife and two other children, was not more than seventy-five yards distant. His wife was summoned and was reluctant to go to the scene. When there she declared that she could not identify the body as that of her husband. She stated that he had left home Wednesday morning with his Sunday clothes on and told her it would be several days before he came back. On Friday a well used by the negroes in the vicinity was found to have feathers in it. This was examined, and it was drawn out of bloody clothes, feathers clotted with blood, and some bed ticking with blood stains on it. Some of the negroes identified them as the clothes of Charles Lattie, but Mary declared they were not. The man found dead had been butchered with an axe, his head being nearly severed from his body and a fatal stroke out across the top of it. He had been apparently stricken while lying face downward. The feathers, the ticking and the bed ticking while lying asleep in his bed, other clothes substituted for the ones he had on, and those thrown into the well, along with the saturated ticking and feathers of the bed. The jury found that a new piece of cloth had been sewed on to the old bed ticking, the piece found in the well fitting the patch and being of the same goods as the old ticking. On the floor, which had been scrubbed, were found blood stains, and a razor, which was found in the headboard of the bed. An axe was also found, with distinct evidence of blood stains, although it had been rubbed with a brick.

No motive for the crime could be discovered until this morning, when the jealousy of another woman, to whom her husband was attached, and the theory now is that she dealt the murderous blows and carried out the ghastly plan of secreting the body and hiding the evidence of the crime. The coroner's jury declare that he came to his death at the hands of his wife, and she is in jail awaiting trial at the next term of the Superior Court.

The late murder here was committed by Green McAdoo (colored), who, out of jealousy, caught his wife by her hair in the presence of three visitors in the home, pulled her head back, and nearly severed it from her body with a razor. Green escaped unscathed, but hid the razor. This was about a year ago.

The similarity in the cold bloodedness of the two crimes, one by a husband, the other by a wife, are subjects of comment.

VETERINARIANS

State Board of North Carolina Meets To-Day in Wilmington.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WILMINGTON, N. C., July 27.—The State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners met here to-day for the first time, and organized here to-night, and first organized by the election of Dr. Tait Butler, of Raleigh, president, and Dr. T. B. Carroll, of Wilmington, secretary, and treasurer. The examination for license to practice veterinary medicine will be submitted to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Thus far only three applicants have appeared for examination. The meetings are being held in the city of Wilmington. The Veterinary Association will hold its opening session to-morrow morning.

ANIMAL STORIES

FOR OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Fair Play. Little Bill had gotten the craze for using a sling-shot. He had played hooky from school one day to cut the "crotch." He had crept softly into his father's library, opened the table drawer and extracted a rubber band to furnish the shooting force. He had cut the palm out of his sister's kid glove to make the "stone-holder," and now he had left the schoolhouse behind him once more and was off in the green meadow after some frogs to shoot.

"Jug-a-rum; jug-a-rum!" croaked the frogs along the bank. "Knee-deep; knee-deep!" piped the "peepers."

Bill lay upon the bank and waited. "Hope they's a big hummer here," wished Bill to himself. "I've got a dinky round stone here to soak him with."

Presently a green head and two big eyes appeared above the green acorn on the brook. Bill turned to get his "dinky stone" to put it in the sling-shot; then he turned.

"Why don't you shoot?"

But what a sight met his eyes; these eyes nearly popped out of his head. He croaked to stagger out something about "Beg pardon; I didn't e-c-come out f-for you."
