

THE HORSE SHOW TO BE ATTRACTIVE

An Excellent Programme Is Arranged for Every Evening.

While the programme for the various nights of the Horse Show and the matinee performance have not yet been made up, and cannot be until the entries are all in, it is certain that the classes are all so arranged as to afford variety at each exhibition. Harness classes and hunters and jumpers will be shown each evening, and the greatest possible variety will be provided in order to attract and hold the interest of all. Some who care more for the exhibition of roadsters in single harness and in pairs to vehicles of various kinds than for the saddle classes, including hunters and jumpers, will find enough in each evening's programme to entice their interest. There will be single and double harness exhibitions, tandem, both park and sporting; four in single harness; combined pair, saddle and driving horses; runabout teams, traps, hunters in many classes, jumpers, hunt club teams, ponies in harness and under saddle, and every phase of equine exhibition. These will be so interspersed as to make monotony impossible.

Each evening's programme will be equally attractive. The visitor will find it just as interesting on one evening as another. The matinee, too, will be one of the most interesting of the entire series. It is the policy as well as the interest of the association to please its patrons, and it desires to please those who attend on Tuesday night just as much as those on Thursday or Friday evening. Unless the entire show can be made interesting it will not be successful, and it is to the interest of the association to make the entire exhibition successful.

Tickets are still selling steadily, and many have already been engaged, but the spacious hall is sufficiently commodious to leave many yet unreserved. Those who desire cheap seats for any evening would do well, however, to make application for their reservations as early as convenient.

The merchants of the city, and especially the jobbers in various lines, are looking forward to the Horse Show as a busy season. Many out-of-town merchants take advantage of the reduced rates to the show and the opportunity to witness the exhibition and buy their fall and winter stocks while in the city. The retail merchants, too, anticipate that their trade will be largely augmented during the Horse Show. In fact, the show is regarded as a better drawing card for the merchants than fairs and carnivals, for the reason that the well-to-do class who will attend the show are usually buyers of better grades and of larger bills than those who attend carnivals. # CRITICISM OF THE REPORT

Likely to Cause a Fight in the Convention—How It Is Viewed Here.

Considerable opposition has been developed here in Episcopal circles to the report just completed and promulgated by the special commission appointed by the last general convention to suggest a provincial grouping of the several dioceses and missionary jurisdictions of the church, a matter of great importance to the entire denomination.

The commission, appointed under article VII of the Episcopal constitution, and was directed to report to the next convention. The members were the bishops of Albany, Fond du Lac, Vermont, and Los Angeles. The Rev. Dr. P. P. Davenport, John Williams, W. M. Grosvenor, B. W. Taylor and P. P. Reese and Messrs. C. G. Saunders, John H. Stiners, M. F. Gilbert, R. H. Battle and G. C. Burgwin. It has just finished and published its report, which bears the name of the commission.

The report will probably cause a big fight in the convention. It is much criticized in Episcopal circles here. In the first case it is declared that the commission has assumed to propose an amendment to the constitution, an act clearly beyond the intention for which they were appointed. They were to do certain work, "as provided in article VII of the constitution." Instead of doing this, they have proposed a canon which necessitates a change in the constitution. The general convention adopted this article of the constitution after full and thorough consideration, and debate and through consideration, and an alteration without condescending to assign a reason. Again, this entire proposed new canon seems to be a cumbersome, round-about and inefficient way of accomplishing what the general convention has already refused to do; that is, to establish an appellate court. The general convention, it is held, is the proper body for deciding so important a question, and not a motion on provisions.

SWAN TAVERN TO BE DEMOLISHED

Ancient and Once-Famous Hostelry to Go Down Before Modern Stores.

Mr. John Tyler, who owns the once famous Swan Tavern, on Broad Street, between Eighth and Ninth, expects soon to demolish the old structure, now a century old and erect stores on the site. It is not Mr. Tyler's plan now to erect permanent buildings there, but to put two or more comfortable but comparatively inexpensive stores there. The site for stores is unexcelled, the demand for business places on the north side of Broad Street having greatly increased in the past few years. He thinks that stores would bring him a better yield for the property than the old "Swan" as an office building, as used at present. Two nicely painted modern stores would also look much better than the ancient hostelry does.

The Swan covers nearly seventy feet on Broad and the lot runs back 125 feet, leaving space for a structure of mammoth proportions. It is possible that the walls of the proposed buildings on the site will support four or five floors when the occasion shall arise for such structures there. Captain M. J. Dimmock, architect, is looking into these matters for Mr. Tyler.

'SQUIRE LONNIE SEES BALL GAME

Rushed Things Through the Police Court—Story of the Docket.

'Squire Lonnie chased himself and the slavers along in the Police Court yesterday and it took just twenty minutes to close the docket.

"There's a ball game on to-day," said the 'Squire, "and we gotta get through." Then the wheels ground fast, and Mike Tompkins and the 'Squire, and the 'Squire, who, like the story of old, knelt before the same Juliet, were each fined $5 for creating a disturbance out in front of the balcony.

Jim Jackson, a dusky swain, don't seem to like his spouse. He has just completed a term of sixty days for beating her, and now he has a similar term for threatening to do the same thing.

Harry Jackson, a ten-year-old boy, just about so high, threw a rock, which struck the child of a neighbor. About forty witnesses, more or less, got in the way, and the judge said he didn't go to do it, and wouldn't do it no more, the case was dismissed.

Tom Fains, colored, got drunk and in his condition declared he would do various things against Policeman Johnson. Afterward he didn't know nothing about it, and he had to pay the sum of $50 to settle the matter.

After one or two common drunks had been disposed of, the 'Squire, of Blackstone, read a copy of Spaulding's Guide and read up the rules on base-ball for this season.
