

Social and Personal

Mrs. W. T. Brooke, of Norfolk, Va., is a delegate to the education conference now being held in Richmond and is stopping at Murphy's Hotel.

Mrs. Brooke is the wife of the city engineer in Norfolk, and the daughter of Hon. John Goode, who was the president of the Constitution Convention. She has always been greatly in sympathy with all educational movements and is the founder of the Norfolk Kindergarten, it being due to her efforts and energy that the Kindergarten was made a part of the city school system.

Mrs. Brooke is broadly cultured in her tastes, having a great love for music and her many Richmond friends and those of her father are greatly enjoying her stay here, which they will strive to render as agreeable as possible.

West—Goolsby. The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Goolsby, No. 315 South Fourth Street, was the scene of a beautiful and impressive ceremony last evening at 6:30 o'clock, when Miss Louise Campbell Goolsby and Mr. Claude Lorraine West, of Columbia College, New York, were wedded, the Rev. Dr. Russell Cecil, of Second Presbyterian Church, officiating.

The house was covered with white and grouped with palms and lilies. The wedding chorus from Lohengrin was the professional: "Hearts and Flowers" was played during the ceremony.

The bride wore gray tulle, crepe de chine, a picture hat trimmed with feathers and pink roses, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The groom's gift, a diamond sunburst, gleamed in the laces of her corsage.

Miss Eleanor Gary and Miss May Johns Goolsby, the bride's two sisters, were her maids of honor, attired in French mill over tulle, with green tulle girdles and Easter lilies. Miss Lesia Archer and Miss Lucy Skelton were in white embroidered chiffon and white mull and had maidenhair ferns.

Congratulations were proffered after the wedding. Then Mr. and Mrs. West left by the 8:45 train for a bridal trip to Baltimore, Philadelphia and Atlantic City. They took with them the sincere good wishes of many friends for their future happiness and welfare.

Miss Emily Jennings's Wedding April 12th.

Miss Emily Jennings will, after April 1st, be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Haynes on South Third Street. Her marriage to Mr. C. Lee Morrison, of Woodbury, N. J., will take place there very quietly, April 12th, only relatives and a few intimate friends witnessing the ceremony.

Handkerchief Bazaar. A handkerchief bazaar will be held by the ladies of Chimborazo Hospital Board, in No. 7 East Broad Street, from April 17th to April 25th.

Fancy and other articles will be sold, also ice cream and punch. Luncheon will be served during the day and in the evening. Attractive features for children will enliven the afternoons and entertainments for grown people the evenings. Any one wishing to do so can send a contribution to Mrs. C. W. Massey, of 2721 East Broad Street.

The Dailey Quartette. The Dailey Quartette, whose singing in Richmond has so delighted the people, will give a concert at Calvary Baptist Church Friday night at 8:15 o'clock. A varied and attractive programme will be rendered. The concert is given under the auspices of the Woman's Guild for the benefit of the church building fund.

Personal Mention. Miss Helen Wadhill, of Danville, Va., will arrive Wednesday to be the guest of Miss Katherine Copeland.

Richmond society is interested in the arrangements, which are being made for a ball to be given by the officers of the Express Monies on the evening of April 4th, to the large number of distinguished guests who will be at the Chamberlin for the launching of the battleship Virginia on the following day.

Young ladies here are also looking forward to the Old Point german, which comes off April 12th.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wiesner, who have been taking a tour through the South, stopped several days in this city with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hickey, at their home in Fredericksburg.

Mrs. Wissner is a sister of Mr. J. A. Filppo. Mrs. Thomas H. Walker, of Pemberton, Va., who has been speaking, luncheon in San Antonio, Texas, and Hot Springs, Arkansas, will return in time to spend the Easter holidays with her sister, Mrs. J. T. Temple, on Marshall Street.

Miss Annie Jamieson is the guest of Mrs. J. W. Hickey, at No. 121 South Third Street.

Miss Mary Booth Walker, of Farmville, is visiting Miss Margaret Spratley, in West Grace Street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gilmore, of New York, are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Boyce D. Brooker.

Judge Edmund Wadhill, Miss Wadhill, Mr. John K. and Mr. M. C. Branch, of Richmond, have been among the recent visitors to Old Point Comfort, Va.

Mrs. Jackson, widow of "Stonewall" Jackson, the famous Confederate general, will in a few days visit her sister, Mrs. D. H. Hill, at Raleigh, N. C. Mrs. Jackson is for the vice-regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, while Mrs. Hill is the vice-regent for life of the Daughters of the Revolution. The latter organization will give a reception in honor of Mrs. Jackson.

The young ladies of Grace Episcopal Church will repeat their sale of stocks and fancy articles at No. 315 East Main Street Saturday, April 24, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M. No stock will be sold for more than fifty cents, and many for less.

The concert to be given under the auspices of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities will take place in the Y. M. C. A. hall on the evening of April 10th.

The programme is a brilliant and beautiful one, and the fine artists in the city will take part in it. The names

The Flight of Youth.

By R. H. STODDARD.

Richard Henry Stoddard was born in Hingham, Mass., July 2, 1853. His father, a sea captain, was wrecked and lost on one of his voyages, while Richard was a child, and, in 1865, the boy went to New York with his mother, who had married again. In 1882 he began his literary work. Writing as a subterfuge became such a burden that he obtained a place in the custom house. He was literary reviewer on the New York World from 1890 till 1896. He also edited The Aldine, an illustrated periodical, which was discontinued. He died May 12, 1902.

THERE are gains for all our losses, There are balms for all our pain; But when youth, the dream, departs, It takes something from our hearts, And it never comes again.

We are stronger and are better, Under manhood's sterner reign; Still we feel that something sweet Followed youth, with flying feet, And will never come again.

Something beautiful is vanished, And we sigh for it in vain; We behold it everywhere, On the earth, and in the air, But it never comes again.

MRS. DAVIS AGAIN SICK.

Had Attack of Acute Indigestion Saturday Night.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 28.—Some alarm was caused Saturday night over the condition of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, the widow of the President of the Southern Confederacy, who is here building up her strength. She is at the Marlborough with some friends. She was taken suddenly ill and her condition was considered serious enough to have a physician near her throughout the night. Acute indigestion caused the collapse.

Owing to her age and the recent attack she recovered from, there were fears expressed regarding her condition, but her vitality caused an immediate rally, and no apprehension is now expressed.

Alleged Forger Recaptured.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) BRISTOL, TENN., March 28.—J. S. McKinney, an alleged forger, who broke jail here last fall and made his escape, has been recaptured, having had the liberty to venture back to Bristol, when he was picked up by the chief of police and his assistants. McKinney is said to have committed several forgeries here. He succeeded in getting one of his checks cashed at the Dominion National Bank.

BROKE HER RIB FOR CALLING HIM "LIAR"

She Is Now Suing Him for Ten Thousand Dollars Alleged Damages.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 28.—Trouble over a shirt, which, it is alleged, a laundryman failed to return, has resulted in a broken rib for a woman and a suit for $10,000 damages. The plaintiff is Mrs. Elizabeth Fort, an artist, living at No. 154 North Sixth Street, and the defendant is Jerome Craven, proprietor of the Original Laundry, Franklin Street, below Jefferson.

In speaking of the case yesterday, Mrs. Fort said: "In an argument concerning the shirt Craven charged me with trying to steal a shirt and I called him a liar.

"In the presence of his wife and book-keeper, he grabbed me and threw me out of the place. I sustained a fractured rib, and have suffered greatly since. My doctor fears I sustained other internal injuries.

"When Craven threw me out of his place I lost my purse, containing $14. The purse was returned to me later, but it contained no money.

LYNCHINGS DISCUSSED

Champ Clark Said They Would Stay Until Criminal Assault Ceased.

GILLET ADIRED PRESIDENT

Yankee Congressman Commended Roosevelt for Eating With a Negro—Social Equality.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 28.—Although the sundry civil bill constructively was under discussion in the House of Representatives to-day, the debate took a wide range, Mr. Gillet, of Massachusetts, devoting considerable time to answering some of the statements recently made on the floor by Mr. Spight, of Mississippi, regarding the race question.

Mr. Clark, of Missouri, declared unequivocally in favor of the tariff programme for the Democratic party as outlined by Mr. Williams, the Democratic leader of the minority. Mr. Gillet said he did not believe it fair or wise for the Democrats of the South to say that they intend forever to prevent the negro from participation in government.

There are ten million negroes in the South, he said, who cannot stay as they are, who either have got to go up or down. Nobody, he declared, wants to submit to negro domination, but the outrageous thing was that they say the negroes cannot be developed into the equality of evolving or becoming sense. He was surprised, he said, that no one on the Democratic side of the House had denounced lynchings.

The overwhelming proportion of lynchings, he asserted, occurred in the South. Some occurred in the North, too, he said. In the North, however, it was the disorderly element which conducted the lynchings, but the great mass of the people openly disapproved it, whereas in the South, he said, they did not. Respect for the law, he contended, should always be present, but every time a man was lynched, it infringed that respect for law, without which no republican government could long endure.

People of the North recognize, he said, that mob violence ought to be stopped, not because of sympathy for the criminals, but from the results that are expected to come from it. In many cases burnings are not too good for the criminal and no punishment is too severe for the criminal should escape his punishment than to have the law transgressed.

Answering a question by Claude Kitcher (North Carolina), Mr. Gillet declared that he condemned lynchings on any terms.

Mr. Richardson (Alabama) interrupted to say that whenever the negroes cease committing crime of rape, the lynchings and burnings will cease with it.

North More Bitter.

Mr. Gillet declared that the feeling in the North toward the negro is stronger than it is in the South. In the North, he said, there is a stronger natural repugnance toward the negro. At the same time, he said, the people of the North "don't recognize this preposterous talk of social equality and inequality." He supposed, he said, there were good grades in the country. Every man, he said, should choose his own friends and can associate with whomsoever he pleases. All classes socially are equal, he said, but that doesn't mean we are going to associate together. Every man, he contended, should be his own master, and in sympathy with him. He spoke of the Booker Washington incident at the White House, and said no one had the right to say it was a disgrace to invite Booker Washington to the White House.

Mr. Gillet was asked by Claude Kitcher if he had ever invited a negro to his table. Upon Mr. Gillet's answering that he had not, Mr. Kitcher remarked: "I want you to practice what you preach."

A statement by Mr. Gillet that it is not blood that makes caste brought Mr. Slayden (Texas) to his feet, who declared that it does not make caste in this country. "It does in some parts of the country," retorted Mr. Gillet.

You are apologizing for the President," remarked Mr. Slayden.

Admired President for It.

This Mr. Gillet denied, but he said he admired the President for what he had done. "It was," he said, "an evidence of a big heart and done by a man who had birth, breeding and cultivation."

Champ Clark (Missouri) declared that only when men of all races cease committing criminal assaults will lynchings cease. He had, he said, known white men and riding on this offense, and he added, "they ought to be lynched, if you want my opinion about it."

Mr. Clark then turned his attention to the tariff question, commenting on speeches by Messrs. Hepburn and Grosvenor, and riding on this offense, and he added, "they ought to be lynched, if you want my opinion about it."

were kicking because their ox was gored, but had nothing to say of the reactions of other trusts. Mr. Clark declared that there is no free trade party in the United States.

"Whenever our standpoint friends get into a hole, they resurrect 'the boy man' of free trade, and hold him in terror over the heads of the American people. 'Nobody knows better than I that there is no free trade party in the United States and they ought to quit asserting that there is. We can all be honest even if we cannot be great.'"

Mr. Trimble (Kentucky) spoke in behalf of the tobacco growers of the country and said they should be put on the same plane as the cotton and wheat growers. He made another plea for the removal of tax of six cents a pound on this article, so that the producer may reach the consumer without paying "an enormous and ridiculous tax." The grower, he said, had had no buyer, the tobacco trust, and he said because of this tax, "a foreign corporation is robbing the American tobacco grower every year to the amount of $10,000,000. Although the tax had been reduced from twelve to six cents, he declared, the consumer has been benefited.

As a result of the tobacco trust, Mr. Trimble said that the negro was in a worse position than he was in a slave, because then his matter food and clothed him, and cared for him in sickness, but to-day the tobacco trust had forced on him half rations and left him go hungry and half naked and had no compensation for him.

The House adjourned until to-morrow.

THREE LONG SHOTS WON.

Was Notable Feature at Bennings Two Favorites Successful.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 28.—The notable feature of the races at Bennings was the winning of three long shots, Julia M., at 10 to 1; Little Woods, at 12 to 1, and Mohlen at 20 to 1. Two favorites were successful.

Third race—six furlongs, three-year-olds—Conkling (20 to 1) first, Tol San (7 to 2) second, Moonson (10 to 1) third. Time, 1:17.

Fourth race—seven furlongs, three-year-olds and upwards—Nine Spot (8 to 3) first, Punctual (20 to 1) second, Millad Love (6 to 1) third. Time, 1:32 1/2.

Fifth race—six and a half furlongs, four-year-olds and upwards—Uxton (6 to 1) first, Love Not (8 to 1) second, Jesseley (30 to 1) third. Time, 1:25 1/2.

Sixth race—mile and forty yards, maiden three-year-olds and upwards—Maiden (20 to 1) first, Mammon (9 to 10) second, M. Churchill (8 to 1) third. Time, 1:48 2/5.

FOR AN OPERA-HOUSE.

Business Men Determined That Hill City Shall Have One.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

LYNCHBURG, VA., March 28.—At a meeting of business men this morning definite shape was given to the plan of securing a new opera-house for Lynchburg. Nearly twelve thousand dollars of the proposed forty thousand dollars of capital stock, which it is proposed to raise, was subscribed at the meeting, and a committee was appointed to call on citizens and endeavor to obtain the balance of the amount. The committee is now hard at work, and they expect to secure every dollar that is necessary within a short while.

Rev. Dr. James D. Paxton, who has accepted a call to become the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will reach Lynchburg some time this week.

Crust Was Perforated.

Representative Hay, of Virginia, tells this:

"My State is rich in almost everything, and it is a matter of history that oil, I think, there more than anywhere else. I have heard a story about the first borings for oil, away back in slavery days. The prospectors were in luck. They completed a certain test, and kept the negroes at work during the night. In the dead hours of night a vein of gas was struck. Rushing and blowing with force and lightning from the fire, the gas shot up a stream of brilliant flame hundreds of feet in the air. The terrified workmen cried out: 'Wake up, master! We've broken through into hell!'"—Minneapolis Tribune.

Richmonders in New York.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NEW YORK, March 28.—York, P. Belvin. TWO BIG HAULS MADE BY THIEVES

Three Places Within a Saturday Night.

Midnight thieves got in some good ticks during the storm on Saturday night, and early Sunday morning the police of the upper district were dismayed to find that they had been outwitted, and that the following places had been entered: Cullingsworth and Company's coal office, Harrison and Broad Streets, one box stolen; Gunn's lumber yard, one, opposite corner, safe found open and $50 stolen; E. J. Murphy and Son's coal office, next door, safe broken open and $150 stolen; Patrick Harter's saloon, South Seventh Street, window broken open, but nothing taken.

The fact that the thieves of the robberies were committed within a block, on Broad Street, and that the axe stolen from one place was used to batter and break the safe at another, indicated that the robbers spent considerable time in that immoderate vicinity.

It is a fact, however, that each policeman has such a large territory to cover on his beat that it is utterly impossible for him to loiter in any one spot. He may be watched by the thieves from cover better than he can watch them from the open. This was the argument made by the board when they asked Council to give them more funds with which to enlarge the force.

WINTER LINGERS IN THE LAP OF SPRING

Cold and Raw Sunday and Yesterday Brought Along Some Spits of Snow.

Old winter's backbone may have been broken the other day, as was joyfully announced by some of the weather-wise and joyously repeated by the thin-blooded and cold-natured, but considerable life seems to have been left in some of the scattered joints of the aforesaid spinal column.

Sunday the air grew crisp and chilly as the morning progressed, and men who went to church without overcoats and women who ventured there without wraps shivered no little on their way home after the benedictions had been pronounced. It grew still colder as night came along, and yesterday morning the mercury reared its head in the thermometer a very little way above the point where the freezing letters are readable.

Yesterday was all sorts of a day. Sometimes the sun shone out and some times it didn't, and all day the air was raw and chilly. Several times during the day there were little spits of snow, but at no time enough to make a show on the ground.

All through the hours there was enough taste of old winter to make gardeners who had been hoping for early vegetable feel uneasy. It was cold and raw again at night and the prospects for a big frost made all the women folks take their flower beds in the house and cover the flowers in front yards with paper blankets. Altogether the last days of March are giving old Virginia a decided representation of winter lingering in the lap of spring.

FOR A NEW ORGAN.

Centenary Church Growing Under Dr. Young's Pastorate.

The board of stewards of Centenary Methodist Church took the initial step last night looking to the purchase of a new organ. A committee was appointed composed of John C. Freeman, Dr. T. D. Merrick and Burnett Lewis, on ways and means. The present organ, though a serviceable one, has long been in use and a larger and more modern instrument is desired.

Centenary Church has grown more rapidly under the pastorate of Dr. W. J. Young than ever before in its history, and congregations that fill the church almost to its capacity are the rule at all services. There were seventeen accessions to the church Sunday morning, fourteen of which were by profession of faith.

Colored Pythians to Celebrate. The colored Pythians and members of the Courts of Calanthe will celebrate their anniversary at the Second Baptist Church, colored, this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Rev. Z. D. Lewis will preach a sermon, and there will be special music. A pasteurist will follow the service.
