

Miller & Rhoads

To Out-of-Town People.

Take advantage of the reduced rates on all railroads during Horse-Show week—10th to 14th—and come to Richmond to do your fall shopping.

Silk Remnants: Grand Clearing Sale To-Day.

(Main Floor, eastern aisle, Broad Street.)

We had a phenomenal September business in Silks—consequently Remnants are here by the hundreds of pieces in various lengths.

We've divided them into three lots, and marked each short length at a very low price for quick selling to-day.

Remnants of 50c and 50c Silks for yard, 25c	Remnants of 50c, 60c and 75c Silks for yard, 39c	Remnants of 75c and $1.00 Silks for yard, 50c
--	---	---

Remnants of WOOLEN DRESS GOODS are marked very low for Friday's selling.

GIVE SWANSON FINE RECEPTION

Activities Prevail in Both State and City Politics.

NORFOLK COUNTY CASE AGAIN

That and Amherst Committee Chairmanship Matter to Come Up Again.

Matters at Democratic Headquarters were moving on without a hitch yesterday.

City Chairman James B. Doherty had completed his arrangements for Mr. Swanson's rally here on Monday night, and State Chairman Elyson was engaged in matters relating to the State campaign.

Mr. Elyson said that there was a prospect of an early meeting of the State Committee. He is in receipt of a petition from "straightouts" from Norfolk county signed by Messrs. George W. Jones, C. W. Coleman, and E. F. Cromwell, asking a rehearing of their case. It is likely that the committee will meet here in a short while to take the matter up again, and that at the same time the Amherst county chairmanship case will be called up for a second time.

Mr. H. C. Joyner is being recognized as the regularly elected county chairman, but former County Judge C. J. Campbell contests his right to the place, and desires to bring the matter before the State Committee.

Mr. Swanson's Meeting. Congressman Swanson will speak at the Academy next Monday night, and his agents are making to give him a fine reception.

Following is the list of vice-presidents who will occupy seats on the stage: H. A. Gillis, P. Whitlock, H. L. Cabell, R. M. Taylor, E. Meredith, J. J. Creamer, R. L. Montague, C. Hall, John Lamb, John A. Curtis, Joseph Shelton, F. W. Cunningham, Charles H. Phillips, John Krauss, J. H. Kirkley, J. J. Crutchfield, C. E. Hawkins, C. B. Williams, W. S. Copeland, Edmund Pendleton, Carlton McCarthy, J. T. Booth, W. M. Turpin, R. L. Peters, Samuel Craig, B. E. Cain, E. C. Ebel, Samuel Cochran, W. T. Hancock, E. G. Leigh, Jr., B. B. Munford, A. C. Harmon, John B. Purcell, Charles J. Anderson, Newton J. Smith, James N. Boyd, M. J. O'Donnell, Henry Carter, E. W. Minor, L. C. Younger, M. B. Smith, Jr., E. B. Cox, C. E. Wingo, E. C. Basse, J. G. Glenn, R. E. Peyton, Jr., O'Rawley Puller, James C. Smith, John E. Epps, Henry R. Pollard, W. H. Walcott, E. J. Garrison, W. M. Thompson, W. E. Cuthaw, C. B. Bell, George S. Crenshaw, James Caskie, Thomas M. Landers, W. P. Knowles, E. J. Warren, Alexander Dulaney, W. H. Minor, J. Garland Pollard, J. B. Wood, James T. Gordon, Eppa Hunt, Jr., Daniel Grinnan, A. B. Witt, R. Carter Scott, J. H. Ingram, D. A. Ritchie, John Murphy, John M. Higgins, Joseph Bryan, E. Patton, Wallace, A. Crenshaw, F. L. Eury, J. W. Robinson, M. R. Pace, D. C. Richardson, A. S. Baker, C. E. Hughes, H. Lee Valentine, John S. Harwood, Preston Helvin, Ashton Starke, J. D. Patton, George W. Bennett, Hugh M. Taylor, S. P. Patterson, W. P. Lestman, D. C. O'Flaherty, Henry Cohn, J. G. Powell, E. M. Rowell, E. B. White, J. A. Hutcheson, R. C. Crump, Edward L. James, Thos. B. McAdam, W. C. Armistead, J. R. Harrison, Joseph T. Allen, James Hartley, Charles E. Straus, H. E. Griffin, W. C. Wayland, M. P. Brown, T. J. Smithers, John P. Branch, Robert Lasky, J. Z. Morris, J. R. Antrim, J. L. Shelton, Richard J. Bryan, E. C. Folkes, Henry T. Wickham, Simon Solomon, Louis Werner, Walter Christian, H. A. Atkinson, C. H. Ratcliffe, James T. Bailey, W. A. Manum, E. W. Moore, J. J. Carmichael, James H. Allen, J. N. Armstrong, C. W. Sims, John O. Traylor, E. B. Washington, W. M. Eurch, A. S. Montgomery, M. S. Valentine, Phil. G. Lusk, Charles Tutzler, James R. Gordon, E. L. Bemis, John C. Harris, Davis Bottom, M. S. Quartel, Wirt B. Taylor, C. O. Saville, P. P. Winston, A. L. Phillips, Eugene Walton, Samuel Kelley, George W. Barton, Oscar L. Pitta, John T. Nead, Richard H. James, M. Thomas Mussen, William Gibson, Jr., Willard M. Cottrell, J. H. Dansey, J. H. Graves, Ben Hessberg.

WALLACE'S CIRCUS WILL BE HERE

It is understood that the Great Wallace Circus this year has undergone a renovation in every one of its many departments, and from the monster exhibition tents to the cook tent everything is new, clean and up-to-date.

YOU MISS ONE OF THE PLEASURES OF THE TABLE UNLESS YOU HAVE THE CRISP, DAINTY

Grape-Nuts

for breakfast—brain and nerves well nourished all day.

New Tobacco Sold.

A few lots of new tobacco was sold on the Tobacco Exchange yesterday, the prices ranging from 11-2c to 11-2c. A few printings also appeared on the market. The new tobacco, however, will be in full swing until about October 17th, when it is expected that it will come in regularly, and when the buyers will be out in full force.

Hustings Court Trials.

In the Hustings Court yesterday three cases went to the jury and, by the decision of that body, reached an end. George Pantlister, colored, indicted for cutting Laura Wells, was acquitted. Henrietta Wade, indicted for slaying Blanche Tabb, also was acquitted. Harrison Minton, indicted for homebreaking, was given six months in jail.

GETTING READY FOR ROOSEVELT

Citizens and Councilmen Are All Making Preparations.

TO DECORATE THE TEMPLE

Commercial Hotel Makes the First Display, and Other Business Houses to Follow.

Commercial Hotel First.

There is hardly a doubt that the citizens of Richmond will take hold of the occasion of the President's visit and make it a grand affair.

PRESIDENT ARRIVES.

The city will afford a general holiday appearance. The business will be done, and excursions will be pouring in here for all over the State.

DONATION DAY.

Home for Incurables in Need of Money and Provisions.

RATING AND PRO-RATING.

An Appeal to Corporation Commission to Enforce Reciprocity.

DR. MAGRI RETURNS.

Greatly Enjoyed Trip to Europe and Honored by Propaganda.

MR. REID SWORN IN.

New Chief Clerk in Auditor's Office Gives Bond.

Another Deer on Market.

Mr. E. W. Evans, commission merchant, secured a deer yesterday which he is offering for sale at the market on the Richmond market.

THINGS HOT SHOT

JUSTICE JOHN

Captain A. B. Guigon and the "President" Exchange Glances.

FURNISHED THE DAY'S FUN

The Crowd Had Nothing to Do But Listen to the Cross-firing.

If Captain A. B. Guigon hadn't appeared in the court where Justice John Peter Crutchfield is monarch of all he surveys yesterday morning, there would have been little for the over-worked reporters to tell the yawning public about; for out of the great throng there didn't sneak one single item worthy of mention save the wit and repartee occasioned primarily by the presence of the Captain.

With his usual sarcasm, which is used only while he is upon the bench and is the great big boss, Justice Crutchfield handed out a few small packages to Captain Guigon. The hand-out started over a continuance of a case and the evidence that would be afterwards presented. The court thought one way about the matter and the Captain thought along different tuncles.

"It makes no difference to me what you think. We always did disagree," shot out the man who handles the hammer when the hot shot was reasonably well and, he continued, for there was nothing important to do and he could afford to talk his arm off if he wished, "I remember some years ago when you voted wrong. 'Twas when Bryan was running. Then you got crooked," insisted the justice and he looked across at the smiling faces.

THINGS HOT SHOT

JUSTICE JOHN

Captain A. B. Guigon and the "President" Exchange Glances.

FURNISHED THE DAY'S FUN

The Crowd Had Nothing to Do But Listen to the Cross-firing.

If Captain A. B. Guigon hadn't appeared in the court where Justice John Peter Crutchfield is monarch of all he surveys yesterday morning, there would have been little for the over-worked reporters to tell the yawning public about; for out of the great throng there didn't sneak one single item worthy of mention save the wit and repartee occasioned primarily by the presence of the Captain.

With his usual sarcasm, which is used only while he is upon the bench and is the great big boss, Justice Crutchfield handed out a few small packages to Captain Guigon. The hand-out started over a continuance of a case and the evidence that would be afterwards presented. The court thought one way about the matter and the Captain thought along different tuncles.

"It makes no difference to me what you think. We always did disagree," shot out the man who handles the hammer when the hot shot was reasonably well and, he continued, for there was nothing important to do and he could afford to talk his arm off if he wished, "I remember some years ago when you voted wrong. 'Twas when Bryan was running. Then you got crooked," insisted the justice and he looked across at the smiling faces.

Then it was that the choice language flowed. It came rippling from the cherubic lips of the Captain like unto the easy flow of a riverlet down a mountain side. Nothing stopped him and he continued to wonder the multitude gazed upon the two fencing masters, drinking in the words of wisdom and wisdom.

Captain Guigon Shocked.

"I am shocked that you should inject into the sacred precincts of this White Chamber such a subject as politics," shot out the Captain and the expression upon his countenance was that of a person suffering from some serious mental trouble. His voice shook with the emotion he felt and he was almost convulsively as he laid particular stress upon the great transgression that had been committed. Really it looked as though he felt some pity for the man on the high seat.

"You are always making mistakes," feebly shot out the court as one looking around for a place to stand upon, "and you did it when you were a part of the city government," emphatically declared the man behind the counter in a voice that echoed like that of a bassoon player who had been called out for not touching the second sack. "And—"

"Distinctly I remember having made some previous mistakes in my life. There comes to my memory at this time the recollection of having cast a vote for a certain eminent jurist whose name I now hold sacred in my heart. My posterity will ever forgive me, when for doing such a trick," came fast and true from the mouth of the Captain.

"Sergeant Talley will you please call the case. Stop listening to what that lawyer is saying. There is no good any way; don't know what anybody ever wanted with a lawyer, now," floundered out the one John.

He was looking at this reporter here and not listening to the attorney, "came from the meekly and lowly Seaman." "Looking at a reporter. Help us to get right. First thing you know all of this will be in the paper. Stop that laughing Mr. Gibbons and keep order in this courtroom," commanded the President of the Atmospheric Association.

Things resumed the even tenor of the way, as the novellists chronicle, and Frank Anthony, a drunk who has sworn off repeatedly, but who, like the bad coin, is ever turning up, ambled to the front. Frank didn't want to go to jail but thirty days was his lot.

One other drunk was dismissed and the other cases were continued.

BUSBY'S CASE.

Third Trial of Famous Case Fixed for October 30th.

Mr. William L. Royal, counsel for J. H. Busby, of Broad Street merchant, has announced that he will bring an action against Sol. L. Bloomberg, M. L. Dawson and Harry Marks is not done with. The case is now in the hands of the third trial in the Law and Equity Court on the 30th of this month.

On the first trial Busby sued for $50,000, and the second trial was for $25,000, his credit and his good name. There have been two trials, and this will be the third. On the first trial Busby was given five years in jail and on the second the jury disagreed.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is not heralded as a wonderful discovery, nor yet a secret medicine; neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and other stomach troubles, with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets, containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure soap and pepsin (government test), golden seal and dill seeds. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to test the digestive power of Stuart's Tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is here capable of thoroughly digesting 3,000 grains of food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after-dinner pills and cheap cathartics, nor yet a secret medicine. They act directly upon the stomach and the intestines, without having any effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion. The medicine can be used as it is, or it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water-brash, indigestion, gas and flatulence after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack, and unless that lack is supplied by the use of "tonics," pills and cathartics, which have absolutely no digestive power. Stuart's Tablets are the only medicine found at all drug stores, and the regular use of one or two of them after meals will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

THINGS HOT SHOT

JUSTICE JOHN

Captain A. B. Guigon and the "President" Exchange Glances.

FURNISHED THE DAY'S FUN

The Crowd Had Nothing to Do But Listen to the Cross-firing.

If Captain A. B. Guigon hadn't appeared in the court where Justice John Peter Crutchfield is monarch of all he surveys yesterday morning, there would have been little for the over-worked reporters to tell the yawning public about; for out of the great throng there didn't sneak one single item worthy of mention save the wit and repartee occasioned primarily by the presence of the Captain.

With his usual sarcasm, which is used only while he is upon the bench and is the great big boss, Justice Crutchfield handed out a few small packages to Captain Guigon. The hand-out started over a continuance of a case and the evidence that would be afterwards presented. The court thought one way about the matter and the Captain thought along different tuncles.

"It makes no difference to me what you think. We always did disagree," shot out the man who handles the hammer when the hot shot was reasonably well and, he continued, for there was nothing important to do and he could afford to talk his arm off if he wished, "I remember some years ago when you voted wrong. 'Twas when Bryan was running. Then you got crooked," insisted the justice and he looked across at the smiling faces.

Then it was that the choice language flowed. It came rippling from the cherubic lips of the Captain like unto the easy flow of a riverlet down a mountain side. Nothing stopped him and he continued to wonder the multitude gazed upon the two fencing masters, drinking in the words of wisdom and wisdom.

Captain Guigon Shocked.

"I am shocked that you should inject into the sacred precincts of this White Chamber such a subject as politics," shot out the Captain and the expression upon his countenance was that of a person suffering from some serious mental trouble. His voice shook with the emotion he felt and he was almost convulsively as he laid particular stress upon the great transgression that had been committed. Really it looked as though he felt some pity for the man on the high seat.

"You are always making mistakes," feebly shot out the court as one looking around for a place to stand upon, "and you did it when you were a part of the city government," emphatically declared the man behind the counter in a voice that echoed like that of a bassoon player who had been called out for not touching the second sack. "And—"

"Distinctly I remember having made some previous mistakes in my life. There comes to my memory at this time the recollection of having cast a vote for a certain eminent jurist whose name I now hold sacred in my heart. My posterity will ever forgive me, when for doing such a trick," came fast and true from the mouth of the Captain.

"Sergeant Talley will you please call the case. Stop listening to what that lawyer is saying. There is no good any way; don't know what anybody ever wanted with a lawyer, now," floundered out the one John.

He was looking at this reporter here and not listening to the attorney, "came from the meekly and lowly Seaman." "Looking at a reporter. Help us to get right. First thing you know all of this will be in the paper. Stop that laughing Mr. Gibbons and keep order in this courtroom," commanded the President of the Atmospheric Association.

Things resumed the even tenor of the way, as the novellists chronicle, and Frank Anthony, a drunk who has sworn off repeatedly, but who, like the bad coin, is ever turning up, ambled to the front. Frank didn't want to go to jail but thirty days was his lot.

One other drunk was dismissed and the other cases were continued.

BUSBY'S CASE.

Third Trial of Famous Case Fixed for October 30th.

Mr. William L. Royal, counsel for J. H. Busby, of Broad Street merchant, has announced that he will bring an action against Sol. L. Bloomberg, M. L. Dawson and Harry Marks is not done with. The case is now in the hands of the third trial in the Law and Equity Court on the 30th of this month.

On the first trial Busby sued for $50,000, and the second trial was for $25,000, his credit and his good name. There have been two trials, and this will be the third. On the first trial Busby was given five years in jail and on the second the jury disagreed.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is not heralded as a wonderful discovery, nor yet a secret medicine; neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and other stomach troubles, with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets, containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure soap and pepsin (government test), golden seal and dill seeds. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to test the digestive power of Stuart's Tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is here capable of thoroughly digesting 3,000 grains of food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after-dinner pills and cheap cathartics, nor yet a secret medicine. They act directly upon the stomach and the intestines, without having any effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion. The medicine can be used as it is, or it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water-brash, indigestion, gas and flatulence after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack, and unless that lack is supplied by the use of "tonics," pills and cathartics, which have absolutely no digestive power. Stuart's Tablets are the only medicine found at all drug stores, and the regular use of one or two of them after meals will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

THINGS HOT SHOT

JUSTICE JOHN

Captain A. B. Guigon and the "President" Exchange Glances.

FURNISHED THE DAY'S FUN

The Crowd Had Nothing to Do But Listen to the Cross-firing.

If Captain A. B. Guigon hadn't appeared in the court where Justice John Peter Crutchfield is monarch of all he surveys yesterday morning, there would have been little for the over-worked reporters to tell the yawning public about; for out of the great throng there didn't sneak one single item worthy of mention save the wit and repartee occasioned primarily by the presence of the Captain.

With his usual sarcasm, which is used only while he is upon the bench and is the great big boss, Justice Crutchfield handed out a few small packages to Captain Guigon. The hand-out started over a continuance of a case and the evidence that would be afterwards presented. The court thought one way about the matter and the Captain thought along different tuncles.

"It makes no difference to me what you think. We always did disagree," shot out the man who handles the hammer when the hot shot was reasonably well and, he continued, for there was nothing important to do and he could afford to talk his arm off if he wished, "I remember some years ago when you voted wrong. 'Twas when Bryan was running. Then you got crooked," insisted the justice and he looked across at the smiling faces.

Then it was that the choice language flowed. It came rippling from the cherubic lips of the Captain like unto the easy flow of a riverlet down a mountain side. Nothing stopped him and he continued to wonder the multitude gazed upon the two fencing masters, drinking in the words of wisdom and wisdom.

Captain Guigon Shocked.

"I am shocked that you should inject into the sacred precincts of this White Chamber such a subject as politics," shot out the Captain and the expression upon his countenance was that of a person suffering from some serious mental trouble. His voice shook with the emotion he felt and he was almost convulsively as he laid particular stress upon the great transgression that had been committed. Really it looked as though he felt some pity for the man on the high seat.

"You are always making mistakes," feebly shot out the court as one looking around for a place to stand upon, "and you did it when you were a part of the city government," emphatically declared the man behind the counter in a voice that echoed like that of a bassoon player who had been called out for not touching the second sack. "And—"

"Distinctly I remember having made some previous mistakes in my life. There comes to my memory at this time the recollection of having cast a vote for a certain eminent jurist whose name I now hold sacred in my heart. My posterity will ever forgive me, when for doing such a trick," came fast and true from the mouth of the Captain.

"Sergeant Talley will you please call the case. Stop listening to what that lawyer is saying. There is no good any way; don't know what anybody ever wanted with a lawyer, now," floundered out the one John.

He was looking at this reporter here and not listening to the attorney, "came from the meekly and lowly Seaman." "Looking at a reporter. Help us to get right. First thing you know all of this will be in the paper. Stop that laughing Mr. Gibbons and keep order in this courtroom," commanded the President of the Atmospheric Association.

Things resumed the even tenor of the way, as the novellists chronicle, and Frank Anthony, a drunk who has sworn off repeatedly, but who, like the bad coin, is ever turning up, ambled to the front. Frank didn't want to go to jail but thirty days was his lot.

One other drunk was dismissed and the other cases were continued.

BUSBY'S CASE.

Third Trial of Famous Case Fixed for October 30th.

Mr. William L. Royal, counsel for J. H. Busby, of Broad Street merchant, has announced that he will bring an action against Sol. L. Bloomberg, M. L. Dawson and Harry Marks is not done with. The case is now in the hands of the third trial in the Law and Equity Court on the 30th of this month.

On the first trial Busby sued for $50,000, and the second trial was for $25,000, his credit and his good name. There have been two trials, and this will be the third. On the first trial Busby was given five years in jail and on the second the jury disagreed.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is not heralded as a wonderful discovery, nor yet a secret medicine; neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and other stomach troubles, with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets, containing vegetable and fruit essences, pure soap and pepsin (government test), golden seal and dill seeds. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to test the digestive power of Stuart's Tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is here capable of thoroughly digesting 3,000 grains of food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after-dinner pills and cheap cathartics, nor yet a secret medicine. They act directly upon the stomach and the intestines, without having any effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion. The medicine can be used as it is, or it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water-brash, indigestion, gas and flatulence after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack, and unless that lack is supplied by the use of "tonics," pills and cathartics, which have absolutely no digestive power. Stuart's Tablets are the only medicine found at all drug stores, and the regular use of one or two of them after meals will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

THINGS HOT SHOT

JUSTICE JOHN

Captain A. B. Guigon and the "President" Exchange Glances.

FURNISHED THE DAY'S FUN

The Crowd Had Nothing to Do But Listen to the Cross-firing.

If Captain A. B. Guigon hadn't appeared in the court where Justice John Peter Crutchfield is monarch of all he surveys yesterday morning, there would have been little for the over-worked reporters to tell the yawning public about; for out of the great throng there didn't sneak one single item worthy of mention save the wit and repartee occasioned primarily by the presence of the Captain.

With his usual sarcasm, which is used only while he is upon the bench and is the great big boss, Justice Crutchfield handed out a few small packages to Captain Guigon. The hand-out started over a continuance of a case and the evidence that would be afterwards presented. The court thought one way about the matter and the Captain thought along different tuncles.

"It makes no difference to me what you think. We always did disagree," shot out the man who handles the hammer when the hot shot was reasonably well and, he continued, for there was nothing important to do and he could afford to talk his arm off if he wished, "I remember some years ago when you voted wrong. 'Twas when Bryan was running. Then you got crooked," insisted the justice and he looked across at the smiling faces.

Then it was that the choice language flowed. It came rippling from the cherubic lips of the Captain like unto the easy flow of a riverlet down a mountain side. Nothing stopped him and he continued to wonder the multitude gazed upon the two fencing masters, drinking in the words of wisdom and wisdom.

Captain Guigon Shocked.

"I am shocked that you should inject into the sacred precincts of this White Chamber such a subject as politics," shot out the Captain and the expression upon his countenance was that of a person suffering from some serious mental trouble. His voice shook with the emotion he felt and he was almost convulsively as he laid particular stress upon the great transgression that had been committed. Really it looked as though he felt some pity for the man on the high seat.

"You are always making mistakes," feebly shot out the court as one looking around for a place to stand upon, "and you did it when you were a part of the city government," emphatically declared the man behind the counter in a voice that echoed like that of a bassoon player who had been called out for not touching the second sack. "And—"

"Distinctly I remember having made some previous mistakes in my life. There comes to my memory at this time the recollection of having cast a vote for a certain eminent jurist whose name I now hold sacred in my heart. My posterity will ever forgive me, when for doing such a trick," came fast and true from the mouth of the Captain.

"Sergeant Talley will you please call the case. Stop listening to what that lawyer is saying. There is no good any way; don't know what anybody ever wanted with a lawyer, now," floundered out the one John.

He was looking at this reporter here and not listening to the attorney, "came from the meekly and lowly Seaman." "Looking at a reporter. Help us to get right. First thing you know all of this will be in the paper. Stop that laughing Mr. Gibbons and keep order in this courtroom," commanded the President of the Atmospheric Association.

Things resumed the even tenor of the way, as the novellists chronicle, and Frank Anthony, a drunk who has sworn off repeatedly, but who, like the bad coin, is ever turning up, ambled to the front. Frank didn't want to go to jail but thirty days was his lot.

One other drunk was dismissed and the other cases were continued.

BUSBY'S CASE.

Third Trial of Famous Case Fixed for October 30th.

Mr. William L. Royal, counsel for J. H. Busby, of Broad Street merchant, has announced that he will bring an action against Sol. L. Bloomberg, M. L. Dawson and Harry Marks is not done with. The case is now in the hands of the third trial in the Law and Equity Court on the 30th of this month.

On the first trial Busby sued for $50,000, and the second trial was for $25,000, his credit and his good name. There have been two trials, and this will be the third. On the first trial Busby was given five years in jail and on the second the jury disagreed.

</