

TO DO SOMETHING FOR FATHERLAND

Maxim Gorky, the Russian Novelist, is Now in New York.

ACCOMPANIED BY HIS WIFE

Says People Are Starving to Death in Provinces to Purchase Arms.

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, April 10.—I do not know how long or how short my stay in this city will be, but of this I am sure—that while here I will try to do something for my fatherland.

Surrounded by his friends, many of whom are Russian, he himself, Maxim Gorky, the Russian novelist, made this statement in his cabin on board the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which arrived in port this evening, after a rough passage.

Accompanied By Wife.

Gorky, who was registered in the passenger list under his real name of Pestkoff, was accompanied by his wife and a secretary, Mr. Boushkin. He is a man of 38, about five feet six inches tall. His hair and his mustache are light, his eyes are blue and his nose sharp. He wore a long black overcoat over his Russian blouse, which he had on.

The Kaiser Wilhelm was headed at quarantine station by a large detachment of Russian, representing many different political parties. Chief among these was Gorky's adopted son, who came to this country a year ago.

Gorky received them on the upper deck, with his wife, and at the first moment seemed quite overcome by the meeting of so many old friends. He talked without reserve, and according to his views Russia's condition is more serious than it was ever before.

People Are Starving.

"I do not believe in the duma," he said, "nor in the present method of holding elections. The elections have no connection whatever with the duma. Here, in the duma, I do not believe. The actual condition of the revolution in Russia is this: In more than twenty-two provinces the people are starving to death, using all the money they have and resolve to buy arms. They have already interrupted him and asked whether he thought that the revolution would succeed without arms. Gorky smiled broadly, and said: "You know from historical precedents that it is impossible."

AMATEUR CLUB.

Closes the Membership to Eight Clubs.

In the meeting of the Richmond Amateur Baseball League, last night, in the circulation room of The Times-Dispatch, it was decided to close the membership with the organizations already included—the Passenger and Power Company, the American Club, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the E. B. Taylor Company, the Stephen Putney Company, the Richmond Cedar Works, the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Company, and The Times-Dispatch.

On the suggestion of the chairman, Mr. J. A. Gillis, it was decided to award a cup, and that it be appropriated permanently by the club member winning twice in two consecutive seasons. The club was accepted, as was the offer of the Scouting Company to give a pennant to the club.

The report of the Grounds Committee was heard. Mr. Neurohr reported that he had succeeded in securing the grounds at Chestnut Hill for all the summer. Mr. Neurohr, the chairman of the committee, said that the Passenger and Power Company are going to fit up the grounds at the new site of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Company, making four parks for the eight teams.
