

ONE OF VIRGINIA'S GROWING CITIES

Fredericksburg Makes Great Strides in Its Industrial Progress.

MANY PERMANENT STREETS

Rapidly Coming to the Front as a Mill Town—New Plants.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

FREDERICKSBURG, VA., June 16.—Within the past several years Fredericksburg has made great strides in many respects. Its population has materially increased, its building sections have extended, new streets have been opened, many residences have been recently erected, new people have come in, real estate has advanced in price, building lots are in demand and bringing high figures, taxable values have increased, and the credit of the city is first-class.

Improvements have been made, such as paved streets, granite sidewalks, and the plan to take pride in keeping up the appearance of their premises.

Among other things having a strong bearing on these conditions are the industrial plants of the city. There are about thirty-five of them, most of which are valuable and extensive, and some of them are of unusual prominence and importance.

The silk mill is the largest and best anywhere in this section of the country. It is up-to-date in every respect, and employs a large force of operatives, composed mainly of girls and young women. The mill also employs a large force of men, and a visit through the establishment will repay any one for the time and trouble. The machinery is delicate, intricate and costly, and the labor, while exacting and confining, is not arduous. The hours are from 7 to 4, and the workers, and the mill also runs at night, with another set of employees. The silk is brought here in the raw state, is put through the throwing process ready to be made into fabrics, and is sent off to another mill in some other part of the country to be finished into dress materials. The mills are owned by Northern capitalists, who have a number of plants at different points. The mill operatives are well paid, and the owners have indicated that they will largely increase their plant, if they can be assured of the full number of operatives needed. With the present plan they have no trouble in securing all necessary labor. The buildings are substantial and kept in first-class order.

Another valuable enterprise is the Melville Woolen Mills, where woolen goods of different kinds are made and finished. This establishment also employs women and girls as well as men, and has a large pay roll. In addition to making goods for men's wear, a great many of the fabrics turned out at this mill are used for ladies' dresses. The mill buys the wool from farmers of this section, and in addition brings in wool from other sections.

There are two large flouring mills, the Germania Mills, incorporated, and the Bridgewater Milling Corporation. Both of these run on full time, and have no trouble in selling all of their output.

There are two pickle factories, one on an extensive scale. The cucumbers, pickles are grown in the surrounding sections by the farmers, and in many instances prove the most profitable crop cultivated. The pickles are shipped to all parts of the country. One factory is owned by Albert & John F. Knorr, and the other, the Richardson Pickling Company, is owned by local people. The Richardson Pickling Company has exhibited its pickles at all of the large expositions, and has never failed to receive the highest medals.

The celebrated Landrum Works and Wagon Works is an important industry. The celebrated Landrum wagons are made at this plant, and spokes are shipped to all parts of the United States, as well as to foreign countries and especially to South America and South Africa.

Among other large and valuable enterprises are the John G. Harkamp Tannery and Sumac Mills, R. T. Knox & Brothers' Extract Mills, the Valentine-Dannell Foundry and Machine Works, the Virginia Excelsior Company, Crescent Excelsior Company, W. H. Exelton & Sons' Mills, J. H. Master's Planing Mills, Kemore Shoe Factory, Virginia Shirt Company, which also employs a large number of girls and young women; the Charles E. Hunter Farmers' Friend Plow Works, Bernard's Brick Works, and the Richmond and York River Water Works, and within the past few months has built new gas works. A new electric light plant was built several years ago.

Another important factor in the city is the Fredericksburg College and the Assembly Home and School. Both of these institutions have brought a large number of new families to the city, adding materially to its social and commercial interests.

The monument to General Hugh Mercer, just erected by the United States government, at a cost of $25,000, is an adornment of which all of our people are proud. It is located on Washington Avenue, and is surrounded by beautiful grounds, which will be kept in perfect order by the government.

A Damage Suit.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NOTTOWAY COUNTY, Va., June 16.—A special term of the Circuit Court of Nottoway county was held here Thursday by Judge J. F. West, of Westley, Va. The principal case under consideration was the damage suit growing out of a contract of Samuel F. Epes vs. Mrs. Annie E. Epes and Richard A. Epes. Most of the day was consumed in the taking of evidence. However, after considerable argument, it was submitted to the jury late in the evening, which brought in a verdict of $68 for the plaintiff. The defense was represented by Judge William H. Mann, of this place, while the plaintiff was represented by Mr. W. Monroe Gravitt, of Blackstone.

Road to Southern Coal Fields.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) CHATTAHOOGA, TENN., June 16.—An application has been made for a charter under the Chattanooga Northern Railroad Company, with a capital of $100,000. All the men named in the application are interested in the Chattanooga Company, Limited, which owns over 40,000 acres of iron and coal lands on the north side of the Tennessee River and in the Walden's Ridge coal belt. The new company will build a road into these properties, together with a railroad bridge across the Tennessee River.

Real Estate.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) SOUTH BOSTON, VA., June 16.—A new real estate and insurance concern under the firm name of Edmunds & Easley, has just made its bow to the people of South Boston. Mr. Howell L. Edmunds, late of Winchester, and Messrs. Henry Easley and son, Owen Easley, compose the firm. These gentlemen are very popular, and no doubt will do a good business.

MISS DOROTHEA K. HARTUNG.

The scholarship to Randolph-Macon was awarded Miss Hartung, of the High School, because of her unusually high average. In former years this honor was conferred upon a member of the post-graduate, but as Miss Hartung never failed to lead her class since she started to school, this time-worn custom was overruled, and she was selected as the winner in line of a post-graduate. No one did she capture this prize, but also won the Rosemary membership, which is quite a distinction in itself.

LUMBER TRUST CUTS PRICES TEN PER CENT.

Found That Western Lumber Was Taking Its Place.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NORFOLK, Va., June 16.—The North Carolina Pine Association, which dominates the lumber business in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, with a normal annual output of one billion two hundred million feet of lumber, has ordered a reduction in price averaging 10 per cent. on No. 3 and some of the other lower grades of lumber.

The trade was found to be dull, in marked contrast to what it has been for the past two years. This was especially true of the lower grades. This was accounted for by the fact that consumers were using other lumber, especially that from the West, in place of the manufacture of the association, while at the same time the production within the association territory had greatly increased.

In addition to the lowering the price of the lower grades, their production will be decreased about 20 per cent. of the total cut of the association's No. 3 grade.

WYTHEVILLE ASSOCIATION EMPLOYS ENGINEER TO BUILD ONE MILE.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WYTHEVILLE, VA., June 16.—The Wytheville Good Roads Association held a meeting to-day at the courthouse and appointed a committee to secure an engineer to place construction of a mile of road near town under the direction of the National Good Roads Association as a sample of road building.

Colonel Moore, president of the National Association, was present and made valuable suggestions as to how the work should be done. The meeting adjourned until the 28d, at which time the committee will report.

A Beautiful Home Wedding in Woodstock, Va.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WOODSTOCK, VA., June 16.—A pretty home wedding took place here this morning at the residence of Mrs. Julia M. Allen, when Miss Julia Gatewood Allen became the bride of Mr. Henry Allen Latane, of Buchanan. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Jett, of Staughton, assisted by the Rev. Mr. William Darby, of Woodstock, pastors of the Episcopal Church.

The bride entered the drawing room from the right on the arm of her brother, Mr. George J. Allen, of Seattle, Wash., who gave her away, and was met at the altar of Father Jett by the groom, Mr. Henry Latane, of Buchanan. The bride carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and was attired in a handsome traveling gown of gray cloth. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. William Kemper, of Warrenton, as matron of honor, Mendelsohn's wedding waltz, and the bride's maid, Miss Nannie Williams, as the bridal party entered.

WEDDING BELLS IN OLD VIRGINIA

Miss Annie Virginia Nurney the Bride of Thomas Albert Smyth, of Norfolk.

VERY BEAUTIFUL CEREMONY

The Suffolk Christian Church a Brilliant Social Scene.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) SUFFOLK, VA., June 16.—The largest social event of the season in Suffolk society circles was the marriage of Miss Annie Virginia Nurney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Nurney and Mr. Thomas Albert Smyth, of Norfolk, which took place at the Christian Church Thursday night, at 8 o'clock, Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., officiating.

The church, which was decorated in masses of palms, ferns, amilax and white sweet peas, which were elevated on white pedestals, carried out the color scheme—white and green—and with the altar banked with ferns and palms and sweet peas and three arches of white and green made a scene of bewildering loveliness.

The bride was handsomely gowned in embroidered chiffon cloth, built on chiffon over taffeta, "en princess," with real lace and silver trimmings, veil of accordion plaited chiffon, with lace edge, carrying a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley, the veil fastened with a crown of lilies of the valley. The only touch of color, carrying out the old adage, "something blue," was a sapphire necklace, the gift of the groom.

The maid of honor was Miss Therese Nurney, sister of the bride, who was gowned in pink flowered chiffon, with lace and ribbonette trimmings, carrying a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and maiden-hair ferns.

The best man was Mr. James Smyth, of Norfolk, a brother of the groom, and the groomsmen were Messrs. J. Murray Priest and W. Brooks Parham, of Norfolk, and Dr. J. E. Hawley, of Suffolk. The ushers were Messrs. Henry Land, George Nurney, Jr., and John Lee, of Suffolk, and Mr. Edward Colton, of Portsmouth, Va.

Before the bridal party entered the bridal chorus from "Rose Maiden" was played. As they entered, bride's songs from "Lohengrin," and during the ceremony, "O, Perfect Love," was played very softly, and the recessional Mendelsohn's wedding march.

The following approach to the altar was observed: First came the ushers, then the bridesmaid and groomsmen, after which came the maid of honor, Miss Therese Nurney, also the ringbearer, Jack Nurney, the little brother of the bride bearing a silver waiter with the wedding ring. The bride followed, leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. George W. Nurney, and was met at the altar by the groom, accompanied by his best man, Mr. James C. Smyth.

After the ceremony an informal reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Smyth left for a trip through Canada and the West.

WEST VIRGINIA DEBT SETTLEMENT

The West Virginia Debt Settlement Committee, New York, announce deposits of Virginia Deferred Certificates to date as amounting to more than nine-tenths of the Certificates of 1871, which comprise the bulk of the certificates set aside by Virginia to represent the proportion of the old State Debt left for West Virginia to pay.

Deposits of certificates issued under the other Funding Acts of 1879, 1882 and 1892 aggregate seven-eighths of the total of those issues.

Deposits are still received by Messrs. Brown Brothers & Co., 59 Wall Street, New York, and the attention of holders is directed to the fact that the subpoena issuing out of the Supreme Court of the United States is directed to appear and answer the bill; therefore, to participate in any benefits that may be obtained, all holdings should be deposited before that date.

While the Committee reserves the right to impose penalty for failure to deposit, it will receive deposits without penalty where there is a reasonable ground for failure to deposit.

How Artists Use Lines In Pen and Ink Work

Seventh of the Series of Articles on Pen and Ink Drawing, Which The Times-Dispatch is Publishing, Each Illustrated with a Picture by Charles Dana Gibson—Senseless After-Dinner Custom.

To the young man at the right of Charles Dana Gibson's picture, which accompanies to-day's paper, the next hour will be an hour wasted. He may enjoy the wine he is going to drink with his father and the latter's elderly friends, but no wine could take the place of the stately beauty who has sat beside him through the dinner and who now, in accordance with the time-honored custom which the youth is mentally dreading, is on her way to the drawing-room with the other women there, perhaps, to be bereft of death with chatter about the shortcomings of servants or the habits of children, and to long equally for the time when the men will rejoin them, and the handsome young fellow will be again at her side.

She is a stately damsel, this charmer who occupies the center of Gibson's picture, where by all artistic canons she rightly belongs, for she is the central idea of the picture; she is the one object in the mind of the youth, and she is the loveliest thing present.

There is a look of triumph on her face, not the triumphant look of the flirt, but an expression that tells of the thoroughly feminine and honorable consciousness of having made the conquest of a man worth winning. And that this conquest has been made without design and by the sheer force of her own unconscious charm, makes it more of a triumph to her. Women are wiser in these matters than men; they know at once when they have won, while men may remain tortured by doubt. The youth of the picture does not realize that the impression has been mutual, hence the look of anxiety, and it is not his brow, which is due to more than mere vexation at the lost hour he sees before him.

This picture is a study in the expression of character. The faces and figures of the five men are splendidly drawn types, each distinctive, each true to life. The youth of the picture is a fine, athletic, clean cut fellow, so familiar with the drawings of Gibson, and for which the artist and some of his friends were the models. Next to him is the little, dried-up comical old man, a clever lawyer, or a shrewd financier, perhaps, thin-lipped, hook-nosed, hawk-eyed, and brainy. Then comes the tall, heavy,

Jolly good fellow, care-free, fond of his wine—he cannot even put down his glass while the ladies retire, type, as it is seen in the small clubs and the fashionable restaurants. Beside him is the short, stout, prosperous man of business, with few ideas that soar above money, self-satisfied and stiffly precise. The quietest is completed by the father of the house, a comical old fellow, with a lunatic leer in his face, the smiles of the retiring ladies. Note how his hair is parted low down on the left side and carefully brushed over his bald head in a futile effort to make himself look more youthful.

Of the women there is little to be said, except of the central figure, who is the only one of the picture, gracefully draped and placed where they belong in the picture.

An artist notes at once the excellent way in which the texture of the several materials that enter into the picture are handled. The stout woman's dress is evidently a heavy, glossy silk, while that of the heroine is a softer and lighter material, such as cashmere or thin broadcloth is of a different texture from either. The difference of texture is visible in the blacks as well as in the whites, as witness the clothes of the young man, where the lining of the coat has distinctly the texture of satin, in contrast to the cloth of the rest of the garments.

The hands of all the figures are more carefully finished than is Gibson's custom, and are excellent examples of hands drawn from life, each perfect in form and proportion.

As an example of Charles Dana Gibson's skill with the pen, it would be difficult to select a better picture than this.

GRANTS DISPENSATION.

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16.—The Apostolic delegate, Mr. Falconio, to-day sent word to the archbishops of the country to notify the bishops that the Pope grants a dispensation from the law of abstention for Friday, June 29th, birthday of Saints Peter and Paul.

Senator Morgan was once asked by an Englishman what college he had attended. He replied that the first time he was in a college campus was in the Civil War, when, with his command, he took refuge behind the brick walls of the college of William and Mary, in Virginia.

Malt Gives Beer Its Food Value

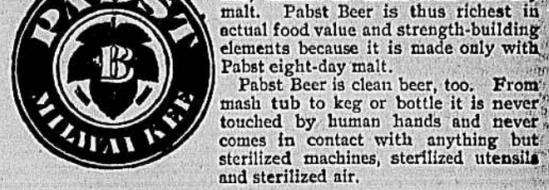

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is healthful—it builds up strength, promotes health, aids digestion and acts as a tonic. Perfect beer is possible only with perfect malt, and perfect malt can only be made by the eight-day process used by Pabst.

Malt is made from barley. Barley contains in its elementary form the constituents that go to build up the human system, bone, muscle, blood and brain. The Pabst process of making malt is like the process of digestion. The barley is started growing as if planted in the ground. The changes that take place in the grain when it sprouts are similar to the action of the digestive fluids on the grain if it were eaten. Pabst eight-day process of making malt retains in predigested form in the beer all the nutritious, life-giving elements of the barley.

In many breweries the old shorter process is still used. This covers a period of not more than three or four days and the malt is of forced, unnatural development, lacks in nutrition and is in all ways inferior, much of the vital nutriment of the grain being lost.

Perfect beer, such as Pabst Blue Ribbon, cannot be made from four-day malt. Pabst Beer is thus richest in actual food value and strength-building elements because it is made only with Pabst eight-day malt.

Pabst Beer is clean beer, too. From mash tub to keg or bottle it is never touched by human hands and never comes in contact with anything but sterilized machines, sterilized utensils and sterilized air.

When Ordering Beer, Call for Pabst Blue Ribbon. Pabst Brewing Company, Marshall and Hancock Streets, Phone 386.

CONFESSED TO WIFE MURDER

William Deskins Maintains His Innocence, Though Making Formal Confession.

Contradicted the Testimony of Many Prominent Men.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) TAZEWELL, VA., June 16.—Upon his formal confession in open court here to-day, William Deskins, indicted for the murder of his wife, was sentenced to eighteen years in the penitentiary.

A trial of this case two weeks ago resulted in a hung jury, eleven being for acquittal, and one for conviction. It is understood that Deskins still maintains his innocence, and it was upon the evidence produced by the Commonwealth that prompted the man to confess rather than take chances on another trial. All of the evidence before the jury was purely circumstantial.

Deskins in his testimony before the jury, contradicted the evidence of every witness for the Commonwealth, a great many of whom were men of unquestionable veracity.

Deskins broke down for the first time when the judge pronounced sentence. William Deskins is evidently a man of an extraordinary criminal record—one, in fact, that would have landed any other man on the gallows.

A few years ago his first wife and two children died under very suspicious circumstances. Deskins was one of the mountain men in Frankfort, Ky., when Governor Goebel was assassinated, and he says he was in forty feet of Goebel when he was shot; that he knew the man who shot Goebel and saw the shot fired. He says that the man's name was Davis and that he committed suicide in a Frankfort, Ky., hotel a few days after the assassination.

Goebel was a resident of Prestonburg, Ky., at the time of the unfortunate affair in Frankfort.

Deskins was defended in his trial here by R. O. Crockett, Jr., and J. W. Harman, and W. H. Worth, appointed by the court.

NEW MACHINERY COMPANY.

CHICAGO, June 16.—It has been learned that a new company is being formed for the purpose of manufacturing machinery, and that the Chalmers interests, long identified with the Allis-Chalmers Company, are in part behind the plan. Details as to the scope of the project, however, can not be obtained. It is said, that only the merest preliminaries to its organization have been accomplished. If the deal goes through a company of considerable magnitude will be the consequence. It will have a capital of several millions of dollars with headquarters and plants in Chicago. Developments of a definite nature are expected within a week or ten days.

The demand for plates in the East is not as good as it has been, although the mills are sold far ahead. The plate mills of the West have sold their capacity many months ahead.
