

ASHLAND'S FINE WATER SUPPLY

Artesian Wells Furnish Abundance for All Needs—Old Wells to Be Abandoned.

BUT ONE VACANT HOUSE

Electric Line to Richmond Will Be in Full Operation June 15th.

ASHLAND, VA., February 3.—Ashland as a community is well contented to-day because the artesian well boring driven by the water company has proven a success beyond the most sanguine expectations. Water-bearing sand was reached at a depth of 225 feet on Wednesday last, and the tools were drawn and an exhaustive pump test of twenty-four hours made, developing a flow of 108,000 gallons a day of the finest water. Work has already been started on well No. 2, the object in drilling two wells being to secure a permanent supply of water to the town. The people are anxious to have artesian water and to abandon the present surface wells. It is expected that within two weeks, when work will be started on the power-house, a steam engine and boiler will be immediately installed large enough to pump both wells at one time. There is also an auxiliary gas engine installed large enough to do the same work should it be necessary to make repairs at any time. The company is sparing no reasonable anxiety to make their works a permanent up-to-date plant, and large enough to supply any demands that Ashland may make on it for the next ten years.

Notwithstanding the activity in the building line, already making its manifest, and which will increase as the building season draws near, at present there is only one vacant house in the town for rent.

The chief engineer of the Richmond and Chesapeake Bay Railway (new electric line) states that the work is progressing rapidly now on the new line, and if the weather conditions are at all favorable the electric cars between here and Richmond will be in operation on regular schedule by June 15th.

Dr. W. E. Dodd, of the chair of history in Randolph-Macon College, has consented to deliver a series of three lectures here at the meetings of the Woman's Literary Club; two of these excellent lectures have already been delivered, one on Washington and Lee and the other on Marshall and Jefferson. The third lecture will be delivered at the next meeting of the club, and will attract a very large attendance.

During the illness of Mr. J. B. Hall, agent of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railway, at Ashland, the business of the office has been looked after by Mr. Boschen.

Mr. Willie S. Brown, secretary of Randolph-Macon College, is still confined to his home on account of sickness.

Miss Ella Prosser will spend a few weeks with friends at Old Point, Va.

Miss Lula Stevens is visiting her brother in Ashland, Rev. W. A. Stevens.

Miss Mary M. Lynch, a graduate of the Woman's College, of Lynchburg, Va., is visiting her brother here.

Miss Blanche Browning, of Washington, a niece of Mrs. James Chesney, is visiting Miss Stuart Blanton.

Miss Mollie Lancaster is visiting Mrs. Richard Bennett.

HARVIE'S WOUND IS NOT DANGEROUS

The Man Is In the Hospital. Murphy Is In Jail.

LYNCHBURG, VA., February 3.—H. H. Harvey, who was shot last night by E. A. Murphy, is not as seriously wounded as was first thought last night, and is doing well at the hospital. The examination at the hospital revealed the fact that the wound in his chest was a glancing shot, and not a fatal one as was feared it would be at first. The wounded man, in addition to his pistol wounds was found to have sustained a serious fracture of one of his ankles. He does not know how this was caused unless it was in the fall when he was shot. Murphy is still in jail.

BRET HARTE'S DAUGHTER LIVING IN A POORHOUSE

"And isn't it nice to have riches, And diamonds and silks and all that?" "And aren't it a change to the ditches And tunnels of Poverty Flat?" FROM BRET HARTE'S "HER LETTER."

THE POORHOUSE, PORTLAND, MAINE.

Mrs. Jessamy Steele, Once Rich and Happy, Destitute in Portland.

HER HUSBAND DESERTED HER

Eleanor Robson Comes to Her Assistance—Will Give Benefit Performance to Raise Funds.

PORTLAND, MAINE, February 3.—John W. Turner, of the overseers of the poor, read this afternoon that Mrs. Jessamy Harte Steele, the daughter of Bret Harte, who says her husband has deserted her, is in the charge of friends, and will be placed by them in some sanitarium, where she will receive the attention absolutely necessary if her mental and physical health is to be restored. Every attention has been given to her at the almshouse, and as far as possible she was helped to forget her painful surroundings. She was not regarded or treated as a pauper, but as an unfortunate woman needing special and constant attention.

Mrs. Steele apparently understands the nature of her surroundings, is doing her best to bear up bravely, and is succeeding to a marked degree. She has the sympathy and almost the admiration of those who have met her at the almshouse. Her patient resignation is at times pathetic.

She is devoted to the memory of her father, and the thought that Bret Harte's daughter has been reduced to such straits, and is the inmate of a poorhouse, seems to affect her more than anything else. She speaks with tender admiration of him at all times, and his books are her best friends.

BRET HARTE'S DAUGHTER, Miss Eleanor Robson Caring for Mrs. Steele at the Hotel.

NEW YORK, February 3.—Mrs. Jessamy Harte Steele, daughter of Bret Harte, who was found in the almshouse at Portland, Maine, arrived in New York yesterday. In charge of friends, and her apartments in the Hotel Martha Washington.

She will be cared for by Miss Eleanor Robson, who is now playing "Salomy Jane," a dramatization of one of Bret Harte's stories. A benefit performance for Mrs. Steele will be given by Miss Robson on February 14th.

Mrs. Steele is still suffering from the effects of her recent illness. Among those who called on Mrs. Steele yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Franklin Garrett, of No. 507 West 158th Street, who had formerly been neighbors of her father in Morristown, N. Y. They offered to give Mrs. Steele a home.

TRUXTON BEALE WILL BE A WITNESS

NEW YORK, February 3.—"Do you know Truxton Beale?" is one question that has been put to every talsman by Mr. Jerome or his assistant.

Truxton Beale, of California, is an authority upon the so-called unwritten law, and a man who has used it in his own conduct. He dined with Thaw and his white-faced little wife at the Cafe Martin a few hours before the tragedy.

Truxton Beale is now fifty-two years old, and he was forty-seven—old enough to know better—at the time of his last exploit in enforcing the unwritten law. At that time, September 4, 1896, he and Tom Williams, the rich race track man, shot down Frederick Marriott, the San Francisco newspaperist, in that city. If Marriott had been killed, and not merely wounded, it would have gone down in history as fully as cold-blooded a killing as Thaw's shooting of White.

Marriott was innocent. Marriott was the owner of the paper, and others edited it for him. In one issue appeared an offensive article which—so the evidence subsequently proved—Marriott had not even read before or after its publication. The article was as follows:

I heard a very pretty story the other day, involving the sister of a pretty girl, who, with her cousin, is rather prominent in society. The girl belongs to a good but not smart family in San Rafael, and she has been identified with a gay set of young people who spin the conventions.

A year or so ago there was a party of these congenial spirits watching the moon rise on Mount Tamalpais. They painted the mountain in brightest vermilion while they were there, and various accounts of their doings crept into the papers.

One of the dailies published a story to the effect that they all imbibed too freely, and while they were at their jollity they had a game of tag around the tavern, clad only in their "nighties." The tale was likely exaggerated, but the names of all the party were given.

Afterward the prudes on the Marin side of the bay gazed askance at the pretty society girl. This so affected her elder sister's health that she became an invalid, and has since been in a sanitarium. It is said there is no hope of a cure.

While the article mentioned no names, Beale, who had been divorced from his wife under circumstances such that the court awarded her the custody of the little son, concluded that it referred to Miss Marie Osgood, grandniece of the late Chief Justice Chase, who was then merely a speaking acquaintance of Beale, but is now, as the outcome of the affair, his second wife.

Beale rang up Marriott over the telephone and said he wished to call upon him at his home. Then Beale, with Williams, went to Marriott's house. They were admitted by Marriott in person. Mr. Marriott being alone and unarmed.

Without warning, Beale struck Marriott full in the face and tried to follow up the blow with others. When first hit, Marriott was in the acts of hanging up the line, but Beale had prepared carefully for the event, and Beale both fired. They both had weapons.

It was such a cruel assault that even a California jury would not stand for it. Marriott sued the two men civilly and got a verdict for $10,000 punitive damages.

TELLS HOW THAW KILLED MR. WHITE

HERKIMMER, N. Y., February 3.—Halsey W. Warren, one of the best-known residents of Little Falls, is in New York under subpoena as a witness for the prosecution in the Thaw murder case. The fact is that Mr. Warren will testify for the first time from a letter written by him to Landlord Flanagan, of the Rockton Hotel, when they were fresh in his mind. It was dated the day after the tragedy and reads:

"Dear Tom," I witnessed an awful tragedy last evening at the opening of the roof-garden theatre. I sat with an acquaintance at the very next table to that at which Harry K. Thaw shot and killed Stanford White, the architect of the building. Mr. Thaw was very calm and deliberate; did not say a word, and the dead man did not utter a sound after the first shot was fired.

"White was sitting alone and apparently did not see Thaw approach. I was looking at Thaw and wondered who he was at the time. The people all seemed paralyzed with fright, and two yelled, 'Stop that man.' He was carrying his gun upside down and walked toward his wife, who was standing near the elevator. She seemed to approve his deadly work.

"I was the first to the side of the dead man, and turned his face out of a large pool of blood. When I learned that a friend of White was endeavoring to find out who I was I ducked down the stairway and went up Madison Avenue.

"Yours respectfully, "HALSEY W. WARREN."

LONG ILLNESS LED TO SUICIDE

Well-Known Hotel Man Fires a Bullet Through His Temple.

NEW YORK, February 3.—G. Sinclair Moulton, a well-known hotel man, committed suicide by shooting himself in the Grand Union Hotel some time between noon Saturday and noon today. He was president of the Park Gate Hotel Company, owners of the Manhattan Square Hotel, 51 West Seventy-seventh Street. He had been suffering severely from gastritis for some time, and it is believed that his illness led to his suicide.

Mr. Moulton had prepared carefully for the deed, leaving letters for his wife and several of his friends.

When the body was found a pistol was in his hand, and there were three bullet wounds in the body, one through the temple, the bullet having entered the brain, one through the chest and another through the heart.

Mr. Moulton began a hotel life in the Parker House, in Boston, when twelve years old, and remained in the hotel business until his death. He was at various times employed in a number of different hotels, including the Hotel Amersand, in the Adirondack Hotel, the Hotel de Pines, at Lakewood, N. J., the Chattanooga Hotel, Baltimore, Md., Hotel Anson, Pleasure Bay, N. J., and had recently bought control of the Manhattan Square Hotel.

General Breakdown

A Condition Which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the Great Blood Tonic, Have Been Curing for Years.

There is no more perplexing trouble for a physician to treat than debility, especially in women, in which there is no acute disease, but in which the patient every day sinks lower and lower despite changes of medicine and similar experiments.

"I had Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to restore health under these conditions in no speculation, but the fact has been proved in hundreds of cases similar to that of Mrs. Sarah Ramsey, of 1968 St. John St., Hartford, Ill. She says: "I never felt well after my first child was born. I had a gnawing pain in my stomach and could not hold any food down. My head ached a great deal and sometimes the pain went all through my body. I had dizzy spells so that I could not stand and seemed to be half-blinded with pain. These spells would often last for over an hour. My blood seemed to be in a very poor condition, and my hands and feet were like ice. I seemed to be growing weaker and weaker and could not get around to do my work in the house. I was extremely nervous, and the least excitement would bring on a dizzy spell.

"For a number of years I was under a doctor's care, but seemed to get no better. I had heard about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began to take them. I soon felt better and gained in weight and strength. My nerves are strong now and I am a well woman in every way.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by Dr. Williams' Medical Company, Schenectady, N. Y. A booklet containing valuable information, entitled "Plain Talks to Women," sent free on request.

CAR FAMINE IN EAST TENNESSEE

Mine Owners Have Had No Cars for a Week—People Are Suffering.

KNOXVILLE, TENN., February 3.—The coal industry of East Tennessee and Southern Kentucky has been paralyzed the past week on account of a coal car famine, which has prevailed since the Southern Railway and Louisville and Nashville Railroads, the only two lines penetrating the districts. Only one day (Monday) were any cars whatever given the mine operators, and as a result they have been unable to send partially full cars to the large district in the southeastern States, which relies on this section for its coal. Local operators have been notified of the closing down of hundreds of small industries in the southeastern States on account of lack of coal, but they are powerless to help until the coal cars are supplied. Both roads promise a partial supply for Saturday, but there is little prospect of any permanent relief on this side of the supply of steam coal exhausted in many towns and cities, but the supply of commercial or domestic coal is running dangerously low, and a cold wave of any duration would bring hardships.

S. S. GENERAL WARREN IS IN NO DANGER

NEWPORT, R. I., February 3.—The steamer General Warren, of the Enterprize Transportation Company, which ran aground early today on the Long Point, of Conanicut Island, in Narragansett Bay, while on the way from Fall River to New York, remained hard and fast on the rocks all day, despite the efforts of several tugs to release her.

The steamer carried no passengers, and she lies in a partly sheltered position well within the bay. Captain Brown and his crew of twenty men, who remained on board, are in no immediate danger. An investigation today in the step taken by the steamer has shown that the vessel is in a position to be refloated, and that the vessel is in no danger.
