GERMANS TO HAVE BIG CELEBRATION

MANLY CLIMB THE POLITICAL LADDER

Preparing Interesting Program of Exercises for August 1st at Exposition.

DR. HEXAMER WILL SPEAK PROMOTIONS ALL FIXED. Invitations Extended to Germans and German Societies of the Country.

The German-American Association of Virginia, at its meeting Monday night, pledged its full support to make German Day at Jamestown one to be remembered, and selected Mr. E. K. Victor, the German consul of this city, to make the address of welcome.

A committee of twelve was appointed to consider fully all necessary arrangements and report at a special meeting next Monday, and prepare and publish in all the papers of the city and State a call to the German-American citizens to assist in celebrating the day.

First Call for Liberty. In order that the Germans of the State might contribute to the success of the exposition, the German-American Association of Virginia requested Dr. Hexamer, the president of the National German Alliance, to address the association in reference to immigration, and, as far as possible, to arrange a German Day to be celebrated at the exposition by Germans from all over the United States.

This step was that a manifesto was issued on the 27th, by the directors of the German Lutheran and Reformed Churches of Philadelphia, demanding armed resistance to the English oppression, and the great fight for independence already at that date.

Many Invitations. Invitations to celebrate the day have been extended to all the Germans and German societies of the country. A musical program will be arranged, in which singing societies from the big cities will liberally participate.

The committee of arrangements consists of Messrs. E. A. Stampf, chairman; Carl H. Greenstadt, secretary; Lindner, A. F. Sauerwald, Carl Gasser, M. F. Richter, Clothier Hassel, Charles Battige, V. E. A. Spott and W. H. Zimmermann.

HOW MILLS'S CHICKEN CAME HOME TO ROOST

Some Interesting History About Attitude of Committee Chairman Toward City Engineer's Office When Weather Was Cold and After it Got Hot--Echoes From Board Meeting.

Under the electric fans, in places where public matters are usually discussed, the general opinion expressed yesterday was that the Tuesday night meeting of the Board of Aldermen was a "pretty warm affair."

"The City Fathers seem to be in a lively state of rebellion against an autocratic power," said one of those who commented on the history of the night's business, as furnished by yesterday's Times-Dispatch. The speech of Mr. Satterfield, only a brief outline of which was given in the report, received a good deal of attention.

Mr. Satterfield was asked yesterday what he specially meant when, in his speech, he said that had the subcommittee been an investigating body it might have presented volumes of evidence of mismanagement in the City Engineer's office.

"A WOMAN INTERVENES."

Penitentiary Bottom Society Rudely Shocked. Penitentiary Bottom society was much disturbed last night over a slight outbreak which marred the halcyon calm which nightly pervades the quietude of the electric lights gluttered down its way up from the stables.

IT WENT TO SLEEP.

As soon as Mr. Satterfield referred to mismanagement, and said that his was not an investigating committee, Alderman Dabney asked the speaker if he was not aware that more than six months ago a resolution to investigate the methods of business in the City Engineer's office and find out if that branch of government was being conducted on business principles, passed the Board, but met its death in the Common Council, being referred to the committee on Streets, where it now lies dormant in a dusty pigeon-hole. Mr. Satterfield had forgotten the matter, but being reminded, remembered it quite well, though he had still overlooked its fate.

Mr. Pollock was the chairman of that committee, remarked at the time: "That will simply mean its death in a pigeon-hole." Mr. Mills made no reply, and Mr. Pollock merely smiled, and the motion to so refer was passed.

DABNEY'S RESOLUTION.

In this connection, the Dabney resolution, though supposed to have been dead for some time, which had, a year, become quite interesting, and is in a sense just now very much resurrected. It was presented to the Board of Aldermen and passed on the night of November 3, 1906. It reads as follows:

"It is resolved by the Council of the city of Richmond, the Common Council concurring, that a special committee of five, to consist of two members from the Board and three from the Common Council, be, and they are hereby appointed for the purpose of considering the present methods of distributing funds appropriated by the city for street improvements; also to inquire into the methods employed in the City Engineer's Department in the discharge of its duties, and to inquire and ascertain what methods, if any, could be adopted for the better and more efficient management of said department and the distribution of said funds, which findings the said committee shall report to either branch of the Council of the city of Richmond, with such recommendations as they deem advisable to make in the premises."

CHANGED HIS MIND.

The resolution reached the Common Council on the night of December 23, at which time it was concurred in, and at which time Mr. Mills, as stated, opposed concurrence. The remarkable thing about the whole transaction is that Mr. Mills is the chairman of the committee which was first to "fall down" under the methods of the Engineering Department, which methods the resolution, killed mainly by Mr. Mills's efforts, sought to regulate and reform. As Colonel Dumas would say,

"Wandering chickens will always somehow or some other way come home to roost." It was very evident Tuesday night that Mr. Dabney's object in calling Mr. Satterfield's attention to this rowdian resolution was to give Mr. Mills's and the Committee on Streets a little side jab, and perhaps arouse the committee to the necessity of resurrecting the dead resolution and acting upon it. It just happened that Mr. Mills was sitting at the desk next to Mr. Dabney's when the latter so adroitly did the jabbing act. It was all in all, in curious coincidence.

READY FOR INVESTIGATION.

Mr. Mills left the city early yesterday morning, and before a Times-Dispatch man could get a chance to interview him on the "jabbing" business, he was sailing the blue waters of the Chesapeake Bay, and it is said that he will continue to enjoy the breezes of the inland sea for a week yet.

Mr. Dabney had also hied himself away to the seaside and will not be in the city any more this week, and he could not be asked as to his object in calling for a post-mortem on the body of the resolution now lying dead in the Street Committee's morgue, but his object was so manifest an explanation is hardly necessary.

Colonel Cushman was asked if he had anything to say about the Tuesday night proceedings. "It is not my time to talk," said the Colonel. "My time may come later, and then you will hear from me. I may add that I am ready for an investigation of my office at any time a proper authority comes around for that business."

The City Engineer went from his office at an early hour in the afternoon and left word that he would not be interviewable any more until this morning.

COULDN'T KEEP IT

Kept it Hid from the Children.

"We cannot keep Grape-Nuts food in the house. It goes so fast I have to hide it, because the children love it so. It is just the food I have been looking for ever so long; something that I do not have to stop to prepare and still is nourishing."

Grape-Nuts is the most scientifically made food on the market. It is perfectly and completely cooked at the factory, and can be served at an instant's notice, either with rich cream or with hot milk if a hot drink is desired. When milk or water is used, a little sugar should be added, but when cold cream is used alone the natural grape-sugar, which can be seen glistening on the granules, is sufficiently sweet to satisfy the palate.

This grape-sugar is not poured over the granules, as some people think, but exudes from the granules in the process of manufacture, when the starch of the grains is changed from starch to grape-sugar by the process of manufacture. This, in effect, is the first act of digestion; therefore, Grape-Nuts food is pre-digested and is most perfectly assimilated by the very weakest stomach. "There's a Reason."
