

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Last evening the carnival spirit of Mardi Gras, with its music, its flowers, its unrestrained gaiety and its dancing feet!

To-day the matin bell calling to prayer, the ball gown doffed, the sweet seriousness of the penitential season abroad in the land, and society in Lenten gray, at its devotion!

Memories of the season just ended are closely folded up in the heart of the Lenten maiden. She has put the world and the things of the world behind her and for the forty days ahead of her she has vowed herself to introspection and to penitence.

A French proverb says, "Salmon and armen have their season in Lent." The proverb is correct in what it stands for—abstinence and attendance upon the services of the church.

Mildly, who puts aside her cards, her theatre-going, her dining and her dancing, finds much else for her hands to do, if she turns her thoughts to the suffering of humanity everywhere around her, and devotes her energies to its alleviation.

So it is that knitting classes and sewing classes will bring together members of Lenten organizations, whose fingers are busy with the netting of ties, the making of pretty fancy articles, or the embroidering of shirtwaists for the raising of mission fund money and the helping along of Easter sales baskets that have already been begun.

Richmond, probably more than other cities, is a place where Lent has a real meaning and a genuine observance. One who watches the throng of those hastening to early morning services, and notes the devout reverence which afternoon worship inspires, can be no longer at a loss as to the significance and influence of the fast.

Last evening in Richmond the final theme of the Lenten season was given. This morning the dun-colored March pieces will match the quietly gowning Lenten maid, who, with her sweet resignation and her newly awakened spirituality, the Lenten maiden is doubly dangerous. Lovely as she may be in all other respects and at all times when prayer-book in hand, she hastens to answer the summons of the church bell, she is simply irresistible. And the church bell she never fails to accept the truth of her irresistibility.

A. P. V. A. Committee Meets. The central committee of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities met at noon yesterday in the rooms of the Virginia Historical Society.

Mrs. Ellyson presided and other ladies present were: Mrs. J. E. Lightfoot, Mrs. J. Enders Robinson, Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. Charles B. Ball, Mrs. S. H. Yonge, Mrs. Norton Savage, Mrs. Edgar D. Taylor, Miss M. P. Harris, Mrs. Christopher Tompkins, Mrs. Henry Taylor, Mrs. St. George Bryan, Mrs. Walter Christian, Mrs. Granville G. Valentine, Mrs. J. Alston Cabell, Mrs. Thomas Hollins, Mrs. William Bentley and Mrs. John H. Southall.

A letter from Mrs. B. J. Farrar, of the Nashville Branch, desiring information and asking about the future of the A. P. V. A. work, was referred to Mrs. J. E. Lightfoot and Mrs. J. Enders Robinson, who reported a letter from the Nashville Branch, in which an article on the work of that branch with pictures of Mrs. Farrar and the other officers, Mrs. Robinson spoke as treasurer of the old and the reorganized Nashville Branch.

Mrs. Lightfoot showed the ladies a picture of the association, with a Southern cross attached, and asked the approval of the committee in the purchase of the emblem to be placed at Cape Henry and Jamestown. The approval was given.

Mrs. W. J. Starnard, as chairman of the landmark committee, announced that the bronze tablet marking the former residence of Chancellor Wythe has been placed on the home of Mrs. B. B. Lightfoot. She recommended the sending of a letter of thanks to Miss Ellen Kent for bringing Roundabout, his Louisiana country home, to Patrick Henry, to the notice of the association.

Mrs. J. Enders Robinson announced to the ladies that she found it impossible to edit the proposed year book and therefore resigned as chairman. She considered that as she edited the books for 1906 and 1907, some one else should have the honor. Her resignation was accepted with regret, and a new committee—Mrs. J. Taylor Ellyson, Mrs. Granville G. Valentine and Miss Mattie P. Harris—was appointed.

Silver Lenten Teas. On Thursday afternoons, from 5 to 7 o'clock, during Lent tea will be served at the Rosemary Library under the direction of a number of society women in the city, who will take turns in being hostesses.

A silver offering will be deposited at the door, and the fund thus obtained be used for the purchase of new books for the library.

The teas were such a pleasure of the Lenten season last year that the announcement of their revival comes

TAKING PART IN SOUTH'S GROWTH

Features of North Carolina's Development Discussed at Banquet of Business Men.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WILMINGTON, N. C., March 3.—The annual banquet of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce was held here tonight and Carlisle, was a fitting occasion. Four set speeches were made, and after which numerous impromptu talks were made.

Mr. Carlisle responded to the toast, "North Carolina's Place in Southern Development," and made an able speech, one alive with interesting statistics, and that also painted a most realistic picture of the future. Congressman Godwin's response was to the toast "Reclamation of North Carolina Swamp Land," and dealt with a most interesting subject.

Mr. Evans responded to the toast, "The Attitude of Wilmington Banks During the Recent Past," and gave a bright resume of the position assumed by the financial institutions of this city during the flurry. He showed that the Wilmington banks had not shut down on its loans, and had always been ready to meet any emergency that they were sound and had great resources.

Mr. Carlisle responded to the toast, "The Work on the Cape Fear River," and made a highly interesting talk, especially in view of the fact that the Wilmington banks had not shut down on its loans, and had always been ready to meet any emergency that they were sound and had great resources.

The banquet was held in the handsome dining hall of the Hotel Orton, and was presided over by President J. A. Taylor, of the chamber.

TO BUILD CONNECTION TRACKS. Company Incorporated to Establish Connections at Goldsboro. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.) RALEIGH, N. C., March 3.—A charter was issued to-day for the Goldsboro Union Station Company, of Goldsboro, having for its purpose the construction of railroad trackage at Goldsboro for connecting the union station, now being erected there at a cost of about $60,000, with each of the three railroads participating in the project.

Another charter is to the Frank C. Brown Sons Company, of Winston-Salem, capital, $15,000, by Frank C. Brown, W. C. Brown, Jr., and J. W. Byrly, for a general mercantile business long established by Frank K. Brown.

Mrs. W. Gould Brokaw

NEW YORK, March 3.—Rumors of the separation of the Brokaws have been agitating society for some time. Mrs. Brokaw was Miss Mary Blair, daughter of Banker James A. Blair, of Chittanooga, N. Y., and was married to Mr. Brokaw last September. While they were on their honeymoon in North Carolina he became ill with typhoid. His bride nursed him devotedly, and she contracted the disease. The fever left Mrs. Brokaw a nervous wreck, however, and it was deemed necessary for her to have several weeks of absolute quiet. Neither she nor her husband wished to remain in the South, so they came to New York, and, following the advice of friends, she went to Dr. Craig's Sanatorium in New York, where she now is. It is said that Mrs. Brokaw has made up her reported differences with her husband, and the two will take a second honeymoon tour as soon as their health permits.
