

RAILROAD NEWS FROM ALL POINTS

Outlook for Increased Receipts Not So Cheerful—Better Reports from Northwest.

Estimated earnings of the Southern Railway for the third week in April, according to a statement issued yesterday by Comptroller Plant, showed a decrease of $242,762 as compared with the corresponding period of last year. Although railroad men have been looking forward to increased traffic and increased receipts, the weekly figures issued by many of the leading transportation companies do not justify the hopeful statements.

New York Central officials say that traffic is now less than at any time since the business depression began. No visible sign of coming improvements is in view. Reports show that coal traffic is all but prostrated; on the Danville division of the Chicago, Indiana and Southern, particularly where it forms a very large part of the total traffic, the shipment is at a standstill because of the shutting down of the Illinois mines.

Reports from the Northwest are more optimistic, an official of the Chicago and Northwestern being quoted yesterday as follows: Our merchandise business has been gaining week by week, and while it is off 10 to 15 per cent, as compared with a year ago, it is slightly ahead of two years ago, which is a fairer comparison.

Commodities are moving slowly and will, probably, until the steel market revives. The grain traffic is pretty much out of the way until the next crop comes. There is some live stock, but the bulk of that movement is over. We have had our competitors in live stock tonnage the past two years. Wool is very light this spring, but that business has merely gone forward until the fall.

The lumber business is in the dumps. There is no coal movement to speak of. Crop prospects are excellent, in the sense that the farmers are fully up to date with their work, and weather conditions are fine. Public feeling is better than it was.

Our new line from Pierre to Deadwood is filling up with settlers. Last week we took in 600 car loads of emigrant movables. It is an agricultural country, which will raise enough this year to supply its own needs and will give us a big tonnage next season.

Operating conditions have been excellent, but expenses do not come down. I believe class rates can be advanced materially, and that it is better to try it out than cut the wages.

BLANK TRINITY PARK.

AN AMERICAN SUFFRAGETTE

MISS AMY RICARD.

Miss Amy Ricard, well-known actress, who has joined the American suffragettes, whose movement is constantly gaining ground. Miss Ricard has promised to address the open-air meeting at Madison Square and Twenty-third Street next Tuesday afternoon, and has already arranged a suffragette matinee at Daly's on April 23d, which shall show the world what manner of women get these hooded together to bring the tyrant man to his knees. The suffragettes have pledged themselves to a big attendance and a wealth of decoration. Their banners—"Votes for Women"—will stream from every convenient angle. As an advance demonstration the officers of the association will proceed from the headquarters in automobiles fully decorated. Suffragette ushers will distribute the yellow buttons as souvenirs to the audience.

Narrow Feet

The sole of the narrow foot is only one part to consider. Even though this be fitted right, the rest of your foot needs a shoe specially modelled to follow its lines, both for its looks and support. Slender Crossett models do this throughout—the perfection of style and fit.

Wake Forest defeated Guilford College to-day by the score of 5 to 1. The game was won in the first inning when three runs were made. Features of the game were Temple's home run and work in the box; Hamerick's three-bagger, hitting of whole team, every player making a hit; stop with one hand by Hammond, and work of Dawson, Perkins and Freeman in the outfield for Wake Forest; double play of Hill to Whitten to Anderson and work of Hill on short for the visitors. Line-up: Guilford—Price, pitcher; Shapp, Stewart, catchers; Anderson, first base; White, second base; C. Doake, third base; Hill, shortstop; R. Doake, left field; Combs, centre field; Hobbs, right field.

Flowered Ribbons. Flowered ribbons are costly, but they may be used with different dresses—a point in their favor. However, so may black, and it wears a far longer time.

Buckles are in all shapes and sizes, and when gold and silver are not used many of them are beaded or made of stiff gold braid. Square ones seem to be the most popular, and many of them are square in front with oval buckle in the middle of the back.

There are rumors, which seem to have some foundation, that the corset skirt is returning to favor. This is owing to the cutaway coats, which leave a V-shaped opening above the waist line, which, when not filled in by a vest, must be covered by something else, and this must necessarily be the top of the skirt.

No wardrobe is complete without at least two or three respectable-looking negligees, and they can be made so very attractively and of so many charming materials that it is almost impossible to pass them by when displayed in the shops. They are, as a rule, made in panels, one on each side of the front and one on each side of the back, the sleeves being made of net, over the top of which the panels extend. The edge of the four panels is finished with a ruffle of lace or gathered ribbon, and they are trimmed with chiffon, flounces or embroidered with ribbon work. Sometimes, however, these little jackets are quite plain and finished only with a simple stitch in heavy silk floss.

Corsets and Figures. The folds of the new frocks are draped so closely about the figure that not only must the lines be most carefully tailored, but the corset also must be perfectly cut and fitted. A prominent dressmaker says: "A good corset is the short cut to a fashionable figure. There are innumerable good corsets, many made and built to order—to be had, for the corset makers are quick to reel the impending changes in the world of fashion and never are behind hand in having a model ready on the lines of the latest figure. Therefore it is a simple matter to get a corset which really do all they claim in giving the slender, willowy lines which are so fashionable.

The corset makers use various methods to get rid of that annoying surplus flesh which gathers around the hips. In some cases the flesh is smoothed down, away from the waist and taken care of by the extension of the corset, which reaches almost to the knee in an unboned material. In other models the flesh is lifted and molded into the waistline in front, where the corsets are built out into almost a curve to accommodate it.

Resembles Old Polonaise. A tunic reminding one rather forcibly of the old polonaise is a feature of one of the latest frocks. Cut in one with the princess, it reaches only to well above the knee in front, and is slightly draped over each hip, falling in the back quite to the bottom of the long, scanty underskirt.

Various frillings and pleatings in tulle and net, chiffon and mousseline de sole can be procured now by the yard, ready for jabots or for tacking into the necks or sleeves of the new spring gowns. A new decoration for the evening dresses designed for the coming season consists of little wreaths of ribbon roses introduced in faded tones of blue, green, mauve and rose du Barri. These are interspersed with blossoms in tulle and gold, which look as if they have lain for a century forgotten or neglected since the days when they appeared in all their pristine freshness of coloring.

The coat shirtwaist is the newest thing. As its name suggests, it has the appearance of a coat worn over a vest or shirt front. To produce the effect, a double-breasted vest with a shawl collar is attached to a stiff chemise.

Fashion Hints. Earrings are more fashionable than ever. The sugar loaf is the latest in millinery. Hats are much larger than in many years. Silver is to be adopted in jewelry. Chenille has become more popular than silk fringe.

Gowns are long in Paris this season by elaborately beaded belts are prescribed by fashion. All the new jewels are large and Oriental in design. Bracelets may grow until they are two inches wide.

Soutache, worked into designs, is often allied with lace. The one color scheme still prevails in the Paris gowns. Black is finding much favor for the semi-dress frock.

Cameo bracelets are a favored form of this year's jewelry.

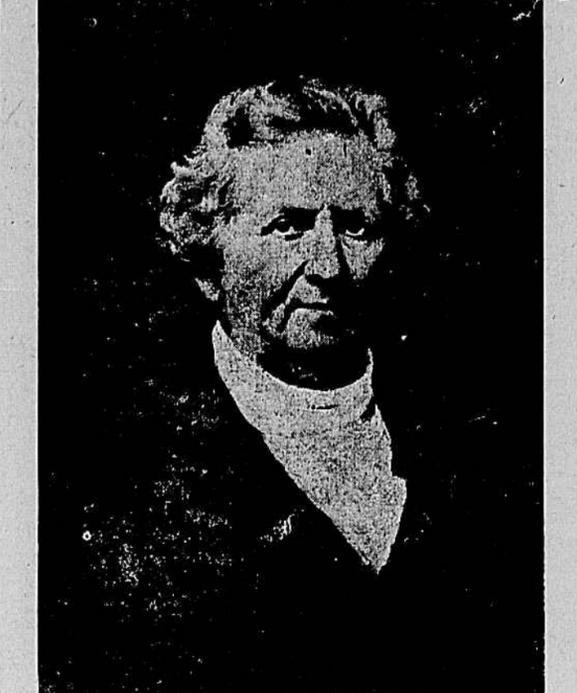

Suit coats of the tailor finish are nearly all semi-fitted. Arbutus is taking a decidedly prominent part in millinery.

Neck Remedy. The ugly mass of flesh that is so often seen at the back of the neck is sometimes caused by sleeping on a pillow that throws the head forward and backward. Try doing without any pillow at all, or at least with one not more than an inch high. Every girl who can possibly do so should row. There is nothing better to develop the muscles of the chest. Row in the water if you can; if not, go into a gymnasium and practice the motion on one of the rowing machines.

Washing Glassware. When washing glassware do not put it in hot water bottom first, as it will be liable to crack from sudden expansion. Even delicate glass can be safely washed in very hot water if slipped in edgewise.

Egg Jelly. The well beaten yolks of four eggs, three tablespoonsful of sugar, two cupsful of water, one-half an ounce or a heaping tablespoonful of powdered gelatin, the juice of one rind and strained lemon, one cupful of water. Put the gelatine into a saucpan, add the water, sugar, and lemon rind and juice, and stir over the fire until the mixture comes to the shimmering point. Remove from the fire and add

Portrait of Rev. Wm. E. Pell Presented to Carolina Library

PORTRAIT OF REV. WILLIAM E. PELL, FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 28.—A magnificent portrait of the Rev. William E. Pell has been presented to the State Library. The portrait is the gift of the children of the deceased, including the Rev. Dr. Edward Leigh Pell, of Richmond, and was painted by Mr. Duncan B. Harding, a kinsman of distinction and a portrait painter, now residing in Europe.

The life of Mr. Pell was a varied and yet highly useful one to the State. For twenty years he was a devout minister of the gospel, known and beloved by all. A heart trouble that would not permit traveling in the ministry compelled him to adopt journalism as his calling, in which he soon found himself at home. During the trying days of the war he successfully edited the Spirit of the Age, the Christian Advocate and Governor Vance's administrative organ, the Daily Conservative.

Table Decoration. A new table decoration that pleases the particular and discriminating housekeeper is the novelty in Dresden china made in the form of a statuette, to be placed in the centre of the table. It is a flat "surround," with small, dainty figures holding in the outstretched hands wreaths of natural flowers.

The arrangement of this beautiful decoration may be varied in many ways, according to the flowers used, while, of course, spring flowers are most appropriate for the present season. Other wreaths winding around the centerpiece, the ends caught in the tiny china hands, are most effective and beautiful.

Capt. A. M. Willis Dies in Far West. Connected With Leading Virginia Families, and Saw Service in United States Navy.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] ALEXANDRIA, VA., April 28.—Intelligence has been received here of the death in Oklahoma, near Beaver, last Friday, April 17th, of Captain Achilles Murat Willis, named for his full sister's second husband, Achilles Murat, eldest son of Joachim Murat, King of Naples and Sicily, and his Queen, Caroline Bonaparte.

Captain Willis, who was in his eighty-first year, was on his paternal side the great-grandson of Colonel Henry Willis, of Fredericksburg, and Mildred Washington, aunt of George Washington, and on his maternal side the grandson of Major George Lewis, the nephew and aid-de-camp of General Washington. In his young days he saw much of foreign countries as midshipman in the United States Navy and clerk for his brother-in-law, Commodore A. J. Dallas, a brother of the Vice-President Polk. Later he was elected captain of a company of volunteers for the Mexican war, which compelled him to disband rather than be incorporated as twin company with the "Baltimore Plug Uglies." After voting against secession, he promptly entered the army of the Confederacy as a private, and was soon promoted to a lieutenant, served as one of General Early's aids at the battle of Bull Run (Massachusetts) and received special mention for gallantry in that officer's official report of the battle. He afterwards joined an independent cavalry company, and was induced by his friendship and high esteem for the knightly Ashby to join his famous regiment, with which command he served until after the death of Ashby, when, disabled by sickness and a wound, he retired from the army.

The subject of this sketch in going to a new country and leading the generous life of a pioneer at seventy-five showed more courage than when riding along the shot-swept line at Bull Run or parrying cut and thrusts with the "Old Hickory" Federal troops at Foolsville, Md.

Captain Willis married in 1848 Miss Edwena Ambler, whose father, John Ambler, owned Jarretts Island, a fine Virginia estate at that time. His wife, with five children, survives him.

man in him that he was probably more beloved by the negroes in Raleigh, to whom he often preached, and had more influence over them than any one in the city. The great fight he made for Jonathan Worth for Governor is remembered by our older people. He drafted the platform of the convention that nominated him and worked diligently until the victory came. Just before the constitutional convention of 1858, his health giving way, he held the Sentinel to Hon. Josiah Turner. During his remaining days he often edited the Sentinel in Mr. Turner's absence, at all times taking a deep interest in public affairs. Notwithstanding his active public life, he never forgot his calling to the ministry, and when health permitted he always responded cheerfully to the invitation of the people to preach.

This good man and great citizen was loved by the people of the State and of the city, and when he passed away suddenly on November 11, 1870, it was a great shock to the people.
