

VIRGINIA DEMOCRATS ASSEMBLED IN CONVENTION AT ROANOKE

This photograph of the State convention was taken for The Times-Dispatch by Landis, of Roanoke, while Governor Swanson was speaking.

GO TO OCEAN VIEW.

With anticipations of great pleasure, Friday, June 19th, is being looked forward to by the members and friends of Monumental and All Saints' Sunday Schools, who will on that day run their annual excursion to Ocean View. The train will leave the Chesapeake and Ohio depot, Richmond, at 8:15 A. M. reaching Old Point in two hours, and there the steamer can be taken any hour for Ocean View, thus giving the excursionists an opportunity, without extra charge, of spending part of the day at Old Point and vicinity. The trip across Hampton Roads on the steamer is a delightful part of the excursion. Amusement features at Ocean View and the bathing make it a very attractive place. The fishing is also one of the great attractions to anglers, as the celebrated fishing grounds are only a few hundred yards from the shore, and the boats, fully equipped with lines and bait, are always ready to take out one or more persons at a very reasonable cost for each. The Ocean View Hotel has made a special rate for dinner, and the regular cafe will furnish meals to suit any purse.

DULL DAY AT CAPITOL

Officials Return From Roanoke, But Find Little to Do. Practically nothing of public interest was going on at the Capitol yesterday. The officials and attaches, who attended the Roanoke convention had returned, but finding little important business to engage their attention, took the usual Saturday half holiday, both buildings being closed at noon. Governor Swanson was in the executive department at an early hour, and was in fine spirits. He was pleased with the net results of the convention. Judge William F. Rhea, of the Corporation Commission, who was at Roanoke, had also returned; as had Deputy Insurance Commissioner J. N. Brennan, Treasurer Harman, Second Auditor Dew, Hon. D. Q. Eggleston, Hon.

George W. Kolner and Hon. Joseph D. Eggleston, Jr. All the offices will open at the usual hour to-morrow morning for the transaction of business. The dull season in State official circles is here, however, and no matter of great public moment is expected to come up during the week.

COLLEGE RECEPTION.

A most enjoyable reception given by President and Mrs. F. W. Boatwright, of Richmond College, at their residence, closed the recent college commencement on Wednesday evening. Japanese lanterns were strung upon the lawn in front of the house and upon the porches, lending a picturesque effect to the scene. Within the house was beautifully decorated with daisies and palms. An orchestra placed at the head of the stairs rendered sweet music throughout the evening. In the hall punch was served, Miss Daisy Winston presiding there, while Misses Macon, Barnes and Lillian Richards assisted the hostess in the dining-room with the refreshments. Assisting the host and hostess in receiving were Dr. Eggleston, of New York, and Mesdames S. C. Mitchell, W. A. Harris, W. H. Whitsett, J. C. Metcalf, R. E. Gaines, E. C. Bingham, and Miss Winston. Among those invited were the members of the graduating class, the students, the faculty, the trustees and the friends of the college.

Final Ball At Augusta Academy.

The leather in "Queen Quality" shoes can be duplicated; the workmanship imitated; but the style is inimitable. Well dressed women are fast finding this out. So many already have found it out that the demand for "Queen Quality" shoes is far and away greater than for any other.

Don't you see that the Queen Quality makers must keep the quality of the shoe up to the highest standard? Can they afford to jeopardize a reputation that has cost $1,000,000 to create?
