

THE TIMES-DISPATCH

DAILY—WEEKLY—SUNDAY. Business Office: 516 E. Main Street, Washington Bureau: 1217 N. Main Street, Manchester Bureau: 1102 Hill Street, Petersburg Bureau: 440 N. Sycamore St., Lynchburg Bureau: 215 Eighth St.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1908.

Campaign Contributions

The Times-Dispatch will receive acknowledgment and forward to the treasurer of the National Democratic Campaign Committee all sums sent it for this purpose.

THE PROSPECT OF A DEMOCRATIC HOUSE.

The disposition to concede the Sixty-first Congress to the Republican party as a matter of course has been greatly overdone. The fact is that the fight for possession of the next House will be bitterly contested, with the Democrats in very fair position for winning it.

GOOD ROADS.

Prospects for good roads, as described in last Sunday's Times-Dispatch, have evidently proved encouraging and helpful in other parts of the State.

MERELY JOKING.

His Walking Boots. "Now, deny your condition last evening. Here you are with your feet in the mud, and you say you didn't come home the worse for drink."

Not Out, Anyways.

Caller: "Is the cashier in?" Bank President: "Yes, I think he is, but don't bother him. He's busy with the examiners going over the books."—Puck.

Making Him Invisible.

Mr. Spoon: "Then we must turn the gas still lower, dear.—Philadelphia Inquirer." "You can't see me, but I'm getting something for my money, which is not always the case with my wife's investments."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Q. E. D.

A physiologist came upon a hard-working Irishman in the street. "Don't you know," said the physiologist, "that to work in the hot sun without a hat is bad for you?" "Oh, yes," replied the Irishman, "that I do. On this job I'd had any brains?"—Success.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

Last year 52,816 rats were killed at the London docks and on vessels arriving in the port. A Swiss Journal announces that Lucretia, the murderer of the late Empress of Austria, has become mad after a stroke of paralysis.

At the zoological station in Naples, Dr. Mangoni found only six centimetres in length, each of which had 114 "antennae" for probing light.

The American apple crop has dropped off more than one-half within ten years. It used to average about 25,000,000 barrels a year. Now it averages only 23,000,000.

A remarkable kitten has been born at Woodhouse, near Sandwich, Eng. It has one head, four eyes, four ears, eight legs, many tails and two distinct bodies.

The world's consumption of coffee in 1907 amounted to 16,825,000 sacks, of which 6,990,000 sacks were consumed in the United States. In 1908, 1,625,000 sacks in France, leaving 5,170,000 for consumption in all other countries.

India would seem to be a pleasant land for minor poets. The Rajah of Rampur recently sent out invitations to all the poets of India to a gathering in his state, about 200 poets accepted the invitation, and the poets recited their own compositions. His Highness was too unwell to be present.

Ludwig Barnay, twenty years ago as a boy in the old Thalia Theatre, in the Bowery, was decorated by the German Emperor and received the Iron Cross.

Mrs. Mary E. Hart, who was well known to many during the World's Fair as the very pleasant lady of the Alaska building, has been killed in a fight over a drink of water. Militant prohibitionism has its seamy side.

The political verdict upon the Charlie Hughes whiskers at Saratoga is doubtful. Hughes himself has expressed interest in the "The Governor's Speech," arranged in his honor. The stirring contest caused the Governor to lose from his seat. The horses fought gamely in the home stretch for victory, and he was as enthusiastic as any one.

Several members of the present Russian Duma will attend the congress of the International Union, which is to be held in Berlin in September. The Russian delegates include Alexander J. Guchkov, leader of the October party, and editor of the Moscow Golos; Assip Pergament, of the Moscow Golos; Assip Pergament, of the Moscow Golos; Assip Pergament, of the Moscow Golos.

The Home Doctor. In view of the adoption by the Devonshire County Council of the plan of inspection of children, several indigent mothers have written to the head mistress of one of the schools, claiming exemption from the operation of the act. One emphatic protest comes from a parent, who writes: "My child is suffering from a disease which is being overlooked by a doctor. I clear his blood vessels regularly with bromine and treacle, and he don't want to know more doctrine."—Westminster Gazette.

Rhymes for To-Day.

BACK is a word of diversified meanings. So say the lexicon there on the shelf. As for detailing them I have small learnings: Haul down the volume and look for yourself.

POLICE FORCE AND COURTLAND CASE.

Attention having been directed to the activities of Attorney Gilbert K. Pollock and the subsequent release of the Courtlands, in the interest of accuracy some facts should be brought out. In the first place the Courtlands and their associate, who now appears to be the notorious Dr. R. C. Flower, had been shadowed by the police of Richmond for a long time without the slightest knowledge of the identity of the person who has since proved to be Dr. Flower. Before the arrests were made Dr. Flower took flight and left Richmond for parts unknown. Upon the arrest of the Courtlands Chief Werner communicated with the police of Philadelphia and New York by long distance phone, and was informed that the Courtlands were not wanted. For this reason there was no ground for holding them, and they were forthwith discharged.

SHOTS FROM THE PARAGRAPHERS.

"NEVER marry a man until you've seen him drunk," is the advice a matron gives if a girl will let the Cleary society know that she is not a virgin about that if the girl will let the man know her wishes in the matter.—Washington Post.

The average young man worries too much about earning it, and not enough about earning it.—Aitchison Globe.

We do not look for an epidemic of heart failure in Virginia until some effort is made there to raise a few dollars for the campaign fund.—Houston Post.

When the South is told no speeches will be made there by the presidential candidates, it must be asked what solid means.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

From the journey of the Atlantic fleet most citizens have learned something. For instance, they know now that there is such a thing as Albany, Australia.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Iowa woman insists that heaven is filled with pianos. It will be noted that the mechanical players are not included.—New York World.

With Dorando and Hayes both on the vanishing stage, patrons of that form of music are to look forward to a good run for their money.—Washington Post.

His Walking Boots. "Now, deny your condition last evening. Here you are with your feet in the mud, and you say you didn't come home the worse for drink."

Not Out, Anyways. Caller: "Is the cashier in?" Bank President: "Yes, I think he is, but don't bother him. He's busy with the examiners going over the books."—Puck.

Making Him Invisible. Mr. Spoon: "Then we must turn the gas still lower, dear.—Philadelphia Inquirer." "You can't see me, but I'm getting something for my money, which is not always the case with my wife's investments."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Q. E. D. A physiologist came upon a hard-working Irishman in the street. "Don't you know," said the physiologist, "that to work in the hot sun without a hat is bad for you?" "Oh, yes," replied the Irishman, "that I do. On this job I'd had any brains?"—Success.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL. Last year 52,816 rats were killed at the London docks and on vessels arriving in the port. A Swiss Journal announces that Lucretia, the murderer of the late Empress of Austria, has become mad after a stroke of paralysis.

At the zoological station in Naples, Dr. Mangoni found only six centimetres in length, each of which had 114 "antennae" for probing light.

The American apple crop has dropped off more than one-half within ten years. It used to average about 25,000,000 barrels a year. Now it averages only 23,000,000.

A remarkable kitten has been born at Woodhouse, near Sandwich, Eng. It has one head, four eyes, four ears, eight legs, many tails and two distinct bodies.

The world's consumption of coffee in 1907 amounted to 16,825,000 sacks, of which 6,990,000 sacks were consumed in the United States. In 1908, 1,625,000 sacks in France, leaving 5,170,000 for consumption in all other countries.

India would seem to be a pleasant land for minor poets. The Rajah of Rampur recently sent out invitations to all the poets of India to a gathering in his state, about 200 poets accepted the invitation, and the poets recited their own compositions. His Highness was too unwell to be present.

Ludwig Barnay, twenty years ago as a boy in the old Thalia Theatre, in the Bowery, was decorated by the German Emperor and received the Iron Cross.

Mrs. Mary E. Hart, who was well known to many during the World's Fair as the very pleasant lady of the Alaska building, has been killed in a fight over a drink of water. Militant prohibitionism has its seamy side.

The political verdict upon the Charlie Hughes whiskers at Saratoga is doubtful. Hughes himself has expressed interest in the "The Governor's Speech," arranged in his honor. The stirring contest caused the Governor to lose from his seat. The horses fought gamely in the home stretch for victory, and he was as enthusiastic as any one.

Several members of the present Russian Duma will attend the congress of the International Union, which is to be held in Berlin in September. The Russian delegates include Alexander J. Guchkov, leader of the October party, and editor of the Moscow Golos; Assip Pergament, of the Moscow Golos; Assip Pergament, of the Moscow Golos.

The Home Doctor. In view of the adoption by the Devonshire County Council of the plan of inspection of children, several indigent mothers have written to the head mistress of one of the schools, claiming exemption from the operation of the act. One emphatic protest comes from a parent, who writes: "My child is suffering from a disease which is being overlooked by a doctor. I clear his blood vessels regularly with bromine and treacle, and he don't want to know more doctrine."—Westminster Gazette.

The Courts of Europe

La Marquise de Fontenoy

How They Won the Countess.

MONG the many interesting old pictures at Thorndon, the ancestral home in Essex of the late Lord Petre, and now owned by the English embassy, the present peer being excluded by virtue of a special arrangement, from the possession of the picture, the painting which shows the amazing way in which Charles Radcliffe, the French Minister, was introduced to the hand of Charlotte, Countess of Newburgh, the ancestress of the present Lord Newburgh, and of his wife, the late Countess of Newburgh, wife of the British charge d'affaires at Washington, who has just been called to England, is a picture of the Vienna, Charles Radcliffe, Earl of Derwentwater, proposed marriage to Charlotte, Countess of Newburgh, and she was quite resolute in her determination to never wed again, her husband having been killed at the battle of Chudleigh by whom she had a daughter of the name of Anne, Countess of Newburgh, who was the first wife of the Earl of Derwentwater, who was killed at the battle of Chudleigh, and she was quite resolute in her determination to never wed again, her husband having been killed at the battle of Chudleigh, and she was quite resolute in her determination to never wed again, her husband having been killed at the battle of Chudleigh.

Get Rid of Cannon.

A good Riddance. By wielding his great power as director of the House and commander-in-chief of the Committee on Rules, Mr. Cannon has been personally opposed, whether justly or unjustly, the present Speaker is held responsible for the perpetuation of this one-man power in the House of Representatives.

Dwell in Harmony.

The negroes are here, and here to stay. They are making any attempt to drive them out almost impossible to replace them. We do not believe they wish to go. We do not believe they are able to go. We do not believe they are willing to go. We do not believe they are able to go. We do not believe they are willing to go.

Ignore His Majesty.

A centre shot. There is no corporation in the land that is now evading antitrust laws, there is no industrial brigand paying his way to a seat in the House of Representatives, no crook or thief or knave who plots dishonest business schemes in Wall Street, no chief of stock frauds and stock robbery bands, who isn't ready to suggest that panic must come if Bryan is elected, and that the only way to avert the truth of what he may allege, to try to discredit any whom he opposes or dislikes.—Roanoke World.

All for Guarantee.

The fact that the government guarantees the deposits in no wise shields the officials of the bank from criminal prosecution. It is not the government's business to protect its depositors from the consequences of their own carelessness. It is not the government's business to protect its depositors from the consequences of their own carelessness.

Mule Had a Good Memory.

It was at Tampa when a negro teamster was killed by a mule. The mule was used to beat the teamster, and it was found that the mule had a good memory. The mule was used to beat the teamster, and it was found that the mule had a good memory.

Old Mrs. John Clay's Death in the End.

Old Mrs. John Clay's death in the end. The old lady, who was ninety-four, had attracted much attention for her advanced age and her vitality. She was a native of Derbyshire, and it was while staying at the vicarage that Wordsworth wrote the "Old Mrs. Clay." The old lady died in the end.

Small service is true service while it lasts.

The daily by the shade it casts. The fact that they were not artists painting the landscape, all contributed to excite curiosity concerning them. The fact that they were not artists painting the landscape, all contributed to excite curiosity concerning them.

Mrs. Clay was able to confirm the story related by Coleridge in his memoirs that she was a native of Derbyshire, and it was while staying at the vicarage that Wordsworth wrote the "Old Mrs. Clay." The old lady died in the end.

Several members of the present Russian Duma will attend the congress of the International Union, which is to be held in Berlin in September. The Russian delegates include Alexander J. Guchkov, leader of the October party, and editor of the Moscow Golos; Assip Pergament, of the Moscow Golos; Assip Pergament, of the Moscow Golos.

The Home Doctor. In view of the adoption by the Devonshire County Council of the plan of inspection of children, several indigent mothers have written to the head mistress of one of the schools, claiming exemption from the operation of the act. One emphatic protest comes from a parent, who writes: "My child is suffering from a disease which is being overlooked by a doctor. I clear his blood vessels regularly with bromine and treacle, and he don't want to know more doctrine."—Westminster Gazette.

Voice of the People

Audubon Work in Virginia.

Editor of the Times-Dispatch: Sir,—It will be of interest to the bird lovers in our State to know of the active Audubon Association, which has for its purpose the protection of our game and non-game birds. The first national movement in favor of protection of non-game birds of the United States was organized in the month of February, 1886, by Dr. G. B. Grinnell, editor of Forest and Stream, and it was called into existence by the sudden onslaught made upon American birds not used to supply the demands of the millinery trade in America and Europe. An association called the Audubon Society was formed on the 13th of that month in the city of New York. Its growth was rapid, and in three years it had a membership of 50,000. The society takes its name from and is a living monument to the memory of the South's great artist and distinguished ornithologist, John James Audubon, of New Orleans, La., an Irishman by birth, who came to our Southland, for his name and fame are known in every clime. The most important line of work is (1) to awaken public sentiment; and (2) securing adequate legislation and the enforcement of the same. The State of Virginia is far behind her sister States in the appreciation and knowledge of the economic value of her bird life. Our laws are most defective, and our last legislation in the field of bird protection is in removing protection from many of the most valuable birds to the farmer, and whose destruction means serious loss to our State and nation. We have no game commission, and we see that they do their duty, and consequently our laws are violated every day, and no punishment is meted out to the offender. Our beautiful cardinals and home-loving robins are shot at all times, and also before our eyes are mockingbirds, thrushes, etc., and their nests and eggs taken, and these reports come daily from all parts of our State of such flagrant violation of our new bird law. After some years of effort, Virginia has organized an association was organized in 1901 by Mr. J. B. Henderson and others, but for some reason it failed to accomplish the object for which it was formed, but we honor the efforts of these pioneers in the field of bird protection, and their help in our renewed effort to build a great superstructure on the foundation laid by them. All the States east of the Mississippi have active Audubon Societies except Virginia, and the position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes it most important that she arouse from this lethargy and aid in this great national question of the "preservation of our wild life," a question of the highest importance to the State and to the people. The national association and the United States Biological Survey, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs took up the work and unanimously agreed to make an effort to arouse such interest in this subject as would lead to the formation of Audubon Societies in every town and country seat, and to have the economic value of our birds better known. The position makes