FAMILIES IN CONSTANT DREAD AFTER MANY REPEATED ATTACKS

Police and Detectives Fail to Solve Mystery After Vigil of Six Weeks.

NO SOLUTION IS GIVEN

Homes of Howard and Hartwell Nuckols Invaded After Servant Girl's Arrest.

Unable to longer endure mysterious attempts on their homes by persons, whose actions have baffled the police and detective departments for nearly two months, Howard J. Nuckols, of 4 North First Street, and his brother, Hartwell M. Nuckols, of 6 North First Street, have determined, unless there is some way to stop the trouble, to leave the neighborhood. Plain clothes men have endeavored, but in vain, to fathom a mystery, which, even now, it seems, will never be solved.

Included in the attempts to terrify the occupants of the two houses have been attempts at arson, the appearance of negro men lurking about the house, and, moreover, the criminals have frequently been so bold as to cast missiles through the windows of the upper stories. Every effort to locate, or even to secure circumstantial evidence against any individual, has been impossible.

Neighborhood in Terror. Whatever the motive may be as much a mystery as any other circumstance connected with the case, the fact that the Nuckols families are not alone the object of the criminals, is indicated by the fact that frequently the family of Frederick A. Robins, 11 East Main Street, has been terrified when missiles, thrown by some unknown hand, have been cast into their premises. What the object of the attacks may be is a conjecture, which no one seems able to explain.

Aside from terrorizing the families on whom attacks have been made directly, the news that the neighborhood is infested with persons who seem to be organized for the purpose of keeping certain citizens in constant dread, has spread, until citizens of the squares around about, constantly on the alert lest, at an unguarded moment, their homes be invaded.

The police version of the mystery is that the criminals act with such shrewdness that they are hurried over to the next criminal has concealed himself.

The houses, 4 and 6 North First Street, are two of a row of four. In the rear there is an alley four feet wide, and to the west there is a board fence twelve feet high. This leaves any suggestion that the missiles are thrown from a rear yard an impossibility.

An Attempt at Arson. This small alley, which extends from the alley which connects with First Street by a narrow passageway in the rear of the houses fronting on Main Street, has spread, until citizens of the houses, apparently fated are two. From what direction, or spot, the missiles are thrown, is one of the mysteries with which those investigating have to contend. The most probable solution is that they are hurled over the back fence from the rear alley.

When Mrs. Hartwell M. Nuckols came downstairs Wednesday morning she was terrified to see newspapers stuffed into the cracks of the kitchen door, and she immediately called the police to investigate to learn that the papers had been stuffed with kindling wood, and on the ground several burnt matches were found. Why the criminal did not succeed in setting the house afire is not known.

On February 27 Berta Moseley, colored, a servant girl in the home of Hartwell Nuckols, was arrested, following an attempt at robbery by a negro man, who escaped the police by jumping a rear fence. The morning before the same man had been seen coming from a coal cellar with two bags of coal on his shoulder. The Moseley woman was arrested by the police as a suspicious character, but was released after she had refused to give any information which might lead to the arrest of the man.

ley refused, when cross-questioned by a detective, to acknowledge her acquaintance with a man answering to the name given over the telephone.

It was three days after Berta Moseley's arrest, or on March 1, that the first missile was cast through the bedroom window in the home of Howard Nuckols. A nurse was suddenly startled by a brick which crashed through the window and rolled across the room. Broken glass splattered all about her. Mrs. Nuckols was in the front room within a few yards of where the brick landed.

The police were notified and a detective was put on the case. It was thought that the first act was an accident, but this theory was dispelled, when a few days later, at about the same time—5 o'clock in the afternoon—a quart bottle crashed through the same window, in which a new pane had been placed. The family became alarmed, and the police were again notified.

Tried It Many Times. Several times thereafter futile attempts were made to break the nursery windows. Each time the bottle, brick or lump of coal struck against the wall and shattered. The office yesterday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock, when a large lump of coal, weighing perhaps two pounds, crashed through the windows and broke on the floor. Several members of the family were in the house at the time, and a detective had recently left.

Earlier in the morning of the same day, while Mrs. Hartwell M. Nuckols was in her backyard, a bottle flew past her head, and she was startled by the kitchen wall. She was enveloped in a shower of falling glass. She ran into the house and notified her husband and the police by telephone. This is the only effort which has been made directly to injure any single person.

Seven different attempts have been made to throw missiles through the windows of Howard Nuckols's home. Four attempts have been made at the house next door, and the same number of times bricks and bottles have been thrown into Mr. Robins's yard. Berta Moseley has many relatives among the servants in the neighborhood, and it is believed that they are all incensed at the fact that she should have been arrested, and taken into custody by the police on their own initiative.

Police Are Determined. Captain George Epps, of the Second Police Station, is interested in the case to the extent that he has instructed his men to keep at work, and to land the criminal even if it should take a year to do so. For the past

BUDS SPROUT FROM LEGS OF TABLE AND THEN BLOOM

Creep Out Through Paint and Varnish, Simply Because This Richmond Springtime Inspires Even Wood to Make the Glad Air Fragrant—A Sure Enough Miracle.

Through three coats of varnish, one of furniture oil and another of a preparation guaranteed to preserve any kind of wood, the legs of an ornamental table, now in the possession of Miss Gertrude Garrison, 225 Jefferson Avenue, is adorned with beautiful rose-like buds.

"Who ever heard of such a thing," said the owner of this "rich" piece of furniture yesterday. "Why, it seems to me—and I am not much of a believer in freaks—that a miracle has happened about my account for a year or so, and I in curiosity, thought I'd ask the newspaper to see if they could give me some explanation."

Miss Garrison didn't know it, perhaps, but she was talking to one of the Times-Dispatch reporters, who incidentally has many a next-door neighbor in horticulture. It just beats all, continued the young woman, her eyes beaming with curiosity. "Can't you please explain it? I bought the table three weeks ago. The man never told me of what was going to happen."

six weeks one of his shrewdest officers has been at work on the case, and has spent many hours on watch, so miserably has been thrown while he was on the premises.

This leads to the belief that the negroes are so intent in their attacks, and so determined to keep their movements secret that they are constantly on guard. The presence of an officer in the neighborhood, as has frequently been detected, is a signal for a general stir, and often negroes are seen to disappear at his approach. Every policeman is known by name and sight, and it is said by one of another of those engaged in tormenting the residents.

Since the trouble began the Messrs. Nuckols have feared to leave their homes after dark, and no chance has been given for a night attack. The police are still at work on the case, and there is nothing but fruitless efforts to place the sources of the crimes. Arrests may be made almost any day.

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE

Recently Elected Officers Will Not Serve—Ordered to Sham Battles. At the Adjutant-General's office yesterday notice was received that Second Lieutenant Baldwin, who has just been elected to that position in the Norfolk Light Infantry Blues, had declined to accept. This means that another election will have to be held, and one will be ordered in the near future.

Committee to Meet.

Although Chairman Martin has issued a call for a meeting of the city committee to receive the report of the Plans Committee, and to make further arrangements for holding the primary, it is rather expected that it will be held next Friday night. The question as to what shall be the nature of the pledge to be placed on the ballot is about the only one that probably will afford the committee much trouble.

Candidates Invited

Local Aspirants for Office to Address Mann Club of Jefferson Ward. Candidates for office in Richmond in the coming primary have been invited to address the recently organized Mann Club of Jefferson Ward, at Mann's Hall, corner of Dwyer's Alley and Clay Street, to-night. Five candidates for the position of City Sergeant and two for Commonwealth's Attorney have accepted the invitation.

Company Will Appeal.

A letter was received at the office of the Corporation Commission yesterday from Eugene Withers, of Davenport, counsel for the Virginia and Western Railroad Company, stating that he would appeal from the recent decision of the commission, which granted the company to remove certain buildings from its right of way in the town of Stuart. Mr. Withers asked for a certified copy of the record in the case.

Montague to Speak.

Former Governor A. J. Montague left last night for Washington, where he will attend a meeting of the American Society of International Law. Governor Montague is on the program to deliver a paper on "How Far the Supreme Court Might Be Taken as a Model for the Permanent Court of Arbitration." He will speak at 10 o'clock this morning, and will return to the city to-night.

Suit Instituted.

Suit was instituted yesterday in the Law and Equity Court by Frank Diglio against Antonio Curcio and Andrea Ciccoli, as partners, for $125.00.

CAMPAIGN BUILT UP BUT MANY TO RUN

Twenty Candidates Already in the Race for Seven Well-Paying City Jobs.

THREE HAVE NO OPPOSITION

Primary on June 24, Though Spellbinding Season Is About Ready to Open.

Although the primary for the nomination of candidates for municipal offices to be voted for at the general election next fall will not take place until June 24, the race is full of applicants for many of them, and they are preparing to get busy within the next few weeks. Indeed, they are already distributing cards among the voters and asking their support. There are seven city offices to be filled, and all there are twenty candidates, and the lists are still open. Of course, some of these may not stick, and new ones may come into the struggle, but there will be enough to make lively races for some of the positions. Three of the incumbents have no opposition so far, and indications are that they will have none.

How They Are Distributed.

The incumbents who are fortunate enough not to have opposition up to this time are Treasurer James B. Pace, City Collector Frank W. Cunningham, and Auditor E. J. Warren. Commonwealth's Attorney Minotree Folkes has an opponent in Major Hubert Cary, a former member of the City Council, and a man of much popularity. Major Cary made a most creditable run for the office four years ago, when Mr. Folkes was elected over a large number of competitors. High Commissioner William H. Wyatt, being opposed by Edward C. Garrison, who was defeated by Mr. Wyatt four years ago. There are six candidates for the office of Sheriff, the incumbent, John E. Epps, not being among them. He is the declared candidate for the next year. Seven have declared their intentions to run for the latter position, which is understood to be one of the best paying places in the city government.

The Full List.

The offices to be filled, with the candidates for each, so far as they have announced themselves, are as follows: Treasurer—James B. Pace, incumbent. Auditor—E. J. Warren, incumbent. City Collector—Frank W. Cunningham, incumbent.

Commonwealth's Attorney—Minotree Folkes, incumbent, and Hunsdon Cary, High Constable—William H. Wyatt, incumbent, and E. C. Garrison. Sheriff—John E. Epps, incumbent, James H. Bradley, George B. Bull, Adam Dialect, J. H. Redwood and Collier Gibson. City Sergeant—James C. Smith, incumbent; John E. Epps, James Stern, John L. Satterfield, Sam Arnott, Lewis Todd and Carlton W. Stokes, being chosen for each ward, but the list of candidates is not yet available.

It is not believed that all those who have said they expect to run for Sheriff will be elected, though it is a possibility, though it will not be attempted here to point out who will probably retire. For Commonwealth's Attorney and High Constable, however, no withdrawal is expected, though it is a possibility, saying that no one can tell what a day may bring forth in politics. Some of those who are asking the surface of their fellow-citizens in the present struggle are old-time campaigners, and are well known in the art of vote-getting. Others are new hands at the bellows, though most of them appear ready for the fray.

Spectacular Days Over.

Municipal campaigns in Richmond nowadays are altogether unlike those that took place before the passage of the Barker-Karpis law, which forbids the spending of money to influence votes. Another thing which has tended to lessen enthusiasm is the new Constitution, which deprives such a large number of the "hurrah boys" of the right to vote.

Time was when a race for one of the well-paying offices in Richmond cost the candidates many thousands of dollars each, and when campaign clubs flourished in every section of the city. Candidates rushed from club to club, making as many as four or five speeches in the course of a night. They were assessed heavily for hall rent and other expenses and were frequently invited to "set up" boxes of cigars, kegs of beer, and various other kinds of refreshments. Under changed conditions, it is often difficult to get an audience at any of the clubs.

Committee to Meet.

Although Chairman Martin has issued a call for a meeting of the city committee to receive the report of the Plans Committee, and to make further arrangements for holding the primary, it is rather expected that it will be held next Friday night. The question as to what shall be the nature of the pledge to be placed on the ballot is about the only one that probably will afford the committee much trouble.

CONSOLIDATE ALL VARIANA SCHOOLS

Much Interest in District for Improving School Facilities.

Much interest is being taken in school work in Varina District, of Henrico county, and it has been decided by the district board to consolidate all of the one-room ungraded schools into three main buildings, having all the modern advantages of heating, ventilation and sanitation.

A meeting of the tax-payers and patrons was held in the Varina High School building Thursday night, when the feasibility of building other consolidated schools was discussed. The idea met with great favor, and plans will be entered into at once.

CHARGE BURGLARY

Paul Washington Arrested With Stolen Property in His Possession.

Paul Washington, a colored boy, sixteen years old, was arrested last night on a charge of breaking into the house of Lynn Woodson, on North Twelfth Street, and stealing therefrom a coat and two pairs of shoes.

Bus East Broad Street Property.

Councilman Charles E. Richards, author of the resolution to put the United States Weather Bureau building on the corner of Gambles Hill Park, but who later opposed and voted against the ordinance granting the site, was the purchaser yesterday of the lot on Broad Street between Third and Third-and-a-half streets, fronting on that park twenty-eight feet six inches. The purchase price was $100. The lot was sold by John Netherwood.

Renunciation Issued.

Governor Sewell yesterday issued a renunciation on the Governor of North Carolina for John Fleming, a negro, who is wanted in Lunenburg county for the murder of a white man. Fleming was held at Salisbury for the Virginia authorities.

MILLION AND HALF BOND ISSUE HERE

from James River, under the James River and Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, up the ravine through the property of Major Doolittle, for the right of way for a trunk line to the annexation act, to Colorado Avenue, where it divides into three great branches, extending like the fingers of a hand, reaching into the section of Clay Ward lying east of the Boulevard and now undrained. The sewer in diameter in its lowest section, will exceed 250,000, and it is estimated it will take at least a year to construct. It is proposed to award the contract in sections, and to have the lateral branches, house connections and street drains ready for use as soon as the main trunk is completed. The sewer will drain the largest section of the city, and will be a most enormous area of unimproved property.

Provides for East End.

The scheme also provides for a trunk sewer with service branches reaching into the section of Lee District between the Boulevard, draining the area known as Kensington, and the section between Kensington Avenue, extended, reaching as far south as Cary Street, and as far west as the Rosewood Roundabout, and for putting water mains into a section which records show to have been a hollow of typhoid fever in the past; for draining Fairmount, and the area bounded by Nineteenth and Twenty-seventh Streets, northward to the new corporation line; for sewerage on Oakwood Avenue, and the whole section recently opened up by the Thirty-fourth Street Boulevard, east of Twenty-eighth Street, and north of Broad, and for the drainage of that part of Fulton now unprovided with sewerage.

CRIMINALS GET LONG SENTENCES

Walter Davis Goes to Penitentiary Eight Years for Stabbing George Mazmanian.

Walter Davis and Arthur Dixon, colored, pleaded "not guilty" in the Hastings Court yesterday to the charge of malicious wounding, their victim having been a Syrian named George Mazmanian. Davis was found guilty of the malicious charge, and was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary. Dixon was found guilty of being an accomplice, and was sentenced to three years on the roads.

George Richardson and John Foster, colored, pleaded guilty of stealing $100 from S. J. Sandy and Tom and Brylans, came before the bar, the one as a witness and the other as a prisoner. The case first came up on April 13, when it was separated. Richardson was found guilty and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. He was not then sentenced, as the prosecution wanted him as a witness against Foster. The latter was acquitted yesterday, and Richardson was at once sentenced to two years on the roads, in lieu of a penitentiary term.

George Venable Sentenced to Two Years on the Roads on a Charge of Malicious Wounding.

George Venable was sentenced to two years on the roads on a charge of malicious wounding. A second case against him was nolle prosequere.

Major Inverstick Would Have Presented Petition to Legislator in Wisconsin.

Major J. W. Inverstick, government engineer, while there on business, yesterday completed a two-day's inspection of the post-office and Federal buildings here. He gave a glowing report on the buildings, and Custodian Stewart: "I find everything in good order and there is no complaint to be made. One of the features of the government buildings and existing sanitary conditions. This is the last inspection to be conducted before the government officials and employees move into temporary quarters."

When Major Inverstick Was Here Two Years Ago, He Was Taken to Seven Miles and While There Purchased a Soldier's Sword Which He Dug up on One of the Battlegrounds.

He intrusted the relic to Custodian Stewart, who was to send it to the War Department. The sword was never received, although Mr. Stewart has receipts showing it to have been in his charge of the post-office authorities. It was Major Inverstick's idea to present the weapon to his Masque lodge.

DELEGATES ELECTED

Trades Council Names Representatives at State Federation.

At one of the most largely attended meetings in the history of Central Trades and Labor Council, held at the Hotel Richmond, corner of Fifth and Marshall Streets, the following were elected delegates to the meeting of the State Federation of Labor Unions, to be held at Norfolk on June 1: John Hirschberg, James Creamer, R. P. Dillard, W. B. Whitlock and J. T. Pulling. The following business meeting refreshments were served.

Hanson on Trial To-Day.

David Hanson, charged with stealing mail matter while a clerk in the local post office, will be heard before Judge Waddell today in the case against him. The jury has been dismissed and an indictment is pending against the young man. It is probable that a plea of guilty will be entered.

Marriage Licenses.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—Marriage licenses have been issued to the following: Thaddeus H. Masie and Susie Robinson, both of Louisiana county, Va.; Alfred B. Roach, of Henrico county, Va.; and Samuel L. Tutz, of this city; Samuel L. Tutz, of this city, and Mary E. Carroll, of Mauretown, Va.

New Public Schools.

In the provision for schools, the issue for the High School had been anticipated, as the city is already obligated by contract to pay a large part for the completion of the building on which payments are now being made. The balance of $71,000 has been set apart for general improvement of the public schools. While the act does not specify, it is expected that a portion will be expended for the erection of a new high school on the lot recently purchased by the City School Board on Hanover Avenue, in the most rapidly growing section of the city, and possibly for other improvements made necessary by the recent condemnation of a portion of two of the large white school buildings.

Proposed Improvements Have Received Official Commendation from Every Quarter.

Not only have three Council committees examined the proposition and recommended its passage, but the Mayor, in his annual message called attention to the need for extending the sewerage system, the Board of Health has protested most vigorously against the continuation of surface wells in unsanitary condition in thickly settled neighborhoods, where neither city water nor sewers are provided, and the School Board, both before and since the condemnation of several buildings by the Building Inspector, has been insistent on the need for additional facilities. The Board of Public Works, in its report, it is believed that the improvements will be under way within sixty days.

PRESBYTERY VOTE AGAINST CHANGE

Language in Confession of Faith to Stand—Final Session Last Night.

East Hanover Presbytery adjourned last night after five days of continuous hard work. The night session was devoted to a celebration of the 40th anniversary of the birth of John Calvin. An address was made by Rev. J. P. Smith, D. D., on "John Calvin—the Man." Dr. Smith, in beginning, quoted a number of the famous historians of the world, who describe Calvin as one of the great statesmen of all the ages. Among these was the great historian, Bancroft, who said: "Calvin was the founder of the American republic," meaning that the principles that he implanted in the minds and hearts of men developed the desire for civil and religious liberty. Dr. Smith then gave an outline of Calvin's life and of his influence upon Europe and the world.

Rev. G. B. Strickler, D. D., speaking on "Calvin's Doctrines," said: "By the doctrines of Calvin, we do not mean that they are doctrines that he invented, but that they are the doctrines of the Bible, which Calvin stated more clearly and systematically than any one else had ever done."

He said that he could not undertake to discuss all of the doctrines which Calvin taught, but would confine himself to two of the principal ones, which were most frequently attacked by those who are opposed to Calvinism. They were the doctrines of total depravity and election. He handled his subject in a masterly way and in a manner that was very much to the satisfaction of the presbytery and the large congregation that filled the church. Among his audience was a large number of the prominent Presbyterians of Richmond.

The Business Session.

The morning session was occupied with a great deal of routine business. Mr. reports were adopted, which are to be sent to the General Assembly, showing that the work of the church is in excellent condition and that it is advancing along all lines. These facts are gathered from the reports.

In the report of the Finance Committee, thirty-six ministers and three licentiates and forty-one churches, in which there are 161 ruling elders, 190 deacons and 6,529 members. During the year there were added to the churches 150 on profession of faith and 1,037 to Sunday school.

The liberality of the members of these churches is shown by the contributions made for the various causes to which they gave. To foreign missions they gave $11,330; to local home missions, $1,720; to local home missions, $7,893; to colored evangelization, $312; to ministerial relief, $415; to education, $19,372; to Sunday school extension, $585; to Bible cause, $271; to the Assembly's Home and School, $2,011; for pastors' salaries, $28,117; for congregational expenses, $3,927; miscellaneous, $5,653, making a total of $53,927.

W. W. Grover, a licentiate, was dismissed to Winchester Presbytery, in Virginia, and Robertson McFadyen, another licentiate, was dismissed to Chippewa Presbytery, in Wisconsin.

Quite a lengthy discussion was engaged in over a question sent down to the presbytery by the General Assembly, asking whether the presbytery desired to have any change made in the character of the charges. The question treated of the salvation of infants dying in infancy. It was not a question of the change of doctrine, but simply as to whether it is desirable to change the language which expresses the doctrine in the letters of the presbytery. The presbytery decided against any change in the language.

The presbytery about 10 o'clock adjourned to meet at the Presbyterian Publishing House, in this city, at 11 A. M., May 13 next.

EVIDENCE IS RECEIVED

Louis Lowenstein Will Oppose Effort to Send Him to Germany.

All evidence has been received from the German authorities against Louis Lowenstein, an alleged fugitive from justice, who is charged in more than 200 different cases with forging and aggregating $25,000. The evidence, which was received in Germany, has been translated and will be presented to Commissioner Joseph Grady when the case is called at noon Monday. H. M. Smith, Jr., is attorney for Lowenstein, and it is probable that a fight against extradition will be made.

The delay in the case, which has been pending since Lowenstein was arrested in a bakery shop, more than two months ago, has been due to the non-arrival of papers. No move could be made until the evidence was received, and as the German court had to summon witnesses and take depositions, the delay was absolutely necessary. The case was committed within six months, and the prisoner claims he was used as a tool by another man.

United States Court Adjourns.

Judge Waddell has dismissed the jury for the April term of the United States District Court. Several important cases are set for trial in the fall, although two or three of the most important on the docket were disposed of. Among the cases postponed is an appeal from the Warner Mace Company, alleged violators of the Interstate Commerce act in receiving rebates, and the indictment against David E. Casper for alleged violations of the revenue laws.
