

SENATORS PRESENT PRESS CRITICISM

Two Sides to Tariff Vote Question, and Theirs Has Not Been Considered.

HOW DEMOCRATS VIEW IT

Points Out Position in Which Southerners Are Placed and Explains Some Things.

Times-Dispatch Bureau, Washington, D. C., June 2. Some of the Democratic Senators resent the bitter criticism which a number of the papers of the country are indulging in almost daily. They declare that there are two sides to the case. It is said that less than a half-dozen of the Democrats will have entirely correct records, if they are to be judged by the Democratic platforms, when the Payne-Aldrich bill leaves the Senate. The criticism has been very bitter in some instances in Virginia. Several of the Representatives who voted against the Tarney and De Armond lumber amendments have been on the rack in their districts. Senator Daniel and Senator Martin have been asked to talk for their votes, and so have Senators Overman and Simmons, of North Carolina.

The Other Side. Discussing the matter to-day, a well-known Southern Democrat, taking the side of the Virginia and North Carolina Senators, said: "One of the developments of the last month has been, apparently, a propaganda to turn the guns of the press of the country on the Democratic Senators, rather than on the Republican makers of the tariff bill.

The country expected a downward revision, as seemed to be promised by the assumption of the standpatners in the National Republican Convention, by the new wording of the platform and the speeches of Judge Taft. Instead, the Aldrich bill carries higher duties than the existing law. Nevertheless, never has the Senate made such rapid progress in disposing of a measure, never has there been so little general debate, and yet the Democratic Senators cannot question the propriety of imposing higher duties in any particular case without receiving a broadside of cautious criticism from Democratic newspapers.

The Duty on Lumber. "That is not all. Some seem to think that the Democratic Senators should vote to take off every duty on every article in all the schedules.

There are $300,000,000 to be raised by the tariff, but if a Democratic Senator, under a sense of responsibility, votes for any duties, he is branded as a protectionist, and as an ally of Aldrich and the Republican standpatners. The duty on lumber can have no earthly effect on lumber generally. The removal of the duty would probably not cheapen lumber, even in the vicinity of the Great Lakes. The duty produces revenue—about $4,000,000—a very small amount for such an industry; its removal would deprive the Treasury of revenue and, by extending the market for Canadian lumber, to that extent, would add to the embarrassment of our American sawmills, many of which have already been closed because of financial depression. Yet the Democratic Senators who voted against the McCumber amendment, which provided for free rough lumber, are called "protectionists" and are incorrectly charged with voting to raise the cost of living among the people.

Similarly, those Senators who voted for a revenue duty on iron ore have been written down as "protectionists," as doubtless will be those who impose a revenue on hides. The program will see to that.

As to Quebracho. "A duty was imposed in the Dingley law of one-half a cent a pound on quebracho, a liquid tanning extract, made in South America, having a strength of about 25 per cent of tanning. Of late the form of this extract has been changed to a solid, having the strength, say, of 65 per cent of tanning. The Payne bill, as amended by the House, recognized the difference and imposed a duty of seven-eighths of a cent. The Senate Finance Committee proposed to amend the House bill and to admit all quebracho on the Dingley tariff duty. Senator Daniel and other Democrats opposed the Senate amendment. The importations of this tanning material have increased and seriously interfered with products of our own forests, and as there is only a limited use for tanning material, if the market is given up to the South American product, necessarily the American factories engaged in making it will be driven out of business. The South American industry is an important one, and while the price of quebracho has advanced the price of our native tanning extracts have declined. The duty proposed is not prohibitive, and probably more revenue would result from it than from the duty proposed by the Aldrich provision.

"The situation is like this: Everything imported is wanted by some consumer. Every consumer would like to have the particular article he is interested in admitted duty free. There are some consumers who would have quebracho on the free list. "But this foreign article comes in competition with products of our own forests, and to remove the duty would be to hurt an established American industry. If it is a proper subject for a revenue duty should it be admitted free for the special reason that it Continuing, the defender of the position of the Democratic Senators, said: "In this connection reference may be made to another subject of still more interest to Virginia and North Carolina. The tobacco grown by farmers of the Old Dominion and the Old North State, which is used in making cigarettes, is now being supplanted by Turkish tobacco. There is now a small duty on this foreign tobacco, but, notwithstanding this, the quantity imported is constantly increasing, and rapidly destroying the market of the Virginia and North Carolina growers. Under the circumstances, the farmers are demanding that the duty be increased. The propaganda would say that inasmuch as the duty tended to protect this home industry, it should be removed and Turkish tobacco put on the free list. But, on the other hand, the grower is clamoring for a large increase.

What Might Happen. "Some persons say: 'Let the Senators who vote for such schedules quit the Democratic party and become Republicans in reality,' or, 'tell the people—these Democratic farmers—to make their appeals to Republicans who believe in protection.

Amendment Tabled. The proposed amendment to article 10, section 1, of the constitution, requiring that in all cases of alleged death by drowning, the body of the deceased be produced in court, if there were one or more eye-witnesses to the drowning, was finally tabled by the unanimous vote of the convention.

Officers Elected. Officers for the ensuing year were elected this afternoon, as follows: President, John Hirschberg, Richmond; Vice-Presidents, J. M. Epperson, Portsmouth; J. N. Connor, Norfolk; W. F. Cassidy, Newport News; H. T. Colvin, Alexandria; J. T. Allen, Roanoke; Miss Maude Talley, Danville; M. L. Latham, Fredericksburg; P. S. Jones, Avon; Secretary, M. R. Pace, Richmond; Sergeant, J. W. Tatum. The body will meet in Portsmouth next year.

Two busy sessions will be held tomorrow, and in the evening a banquet will be tendered in honor of the visitors.

State Commissioner of Agriculture G. W. Kolmer was the principal speaker at the late afternoon session. His address upon conditions in Virginia created a most favorable impression.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected this afternoon, as follows: President, John Hirschberg, Richmond; Vice-Presidents, J. M. Epperson, Portsmouth; J. N. Connor, Norfolk; W. F. Cassidy, Newport News; H. T. Colvin, Alexandria; J. T. Allen, Roanoke; Miss Maude Talley, Danville; M. L. Latham, Fredericksburg; P. S. Jones, Avon; Secretary, M. R. Pace, Richmond; Sergeant, J. W. Tatum. The body will meet in Portsmouth next year.

President Henry O. Grady, of Louisville, is not a candidate for reelection. The voters of the district of office are P. J. O'Meara, of Indianapolis, and Thad Howe, of Chicago, and A. L. Byrd, of Columbia, S. C.

After a caucus lasting for several hours, the Missouri delegation, which is solidly supporting LaBeaume for secretary and treasurer, claimed that the election of their candidate was assured. The Missouri delegation, still in caucus, concedes nothing, and several of its members declare they will fight to a finish. It is said that as a result of the caucus deliberations to-night Missouri will throw her strength to A. L. Byrd, of Columbia, S. C., and the candidates receiving all part of South Carolina's vote for LaBeaume in return.

The presence of unusual political generalship is evinced to-night by a statement to the effect that the individual independence of delegates on the floor of the convention has been swallowed up in the magnitude of "swaps" and trades, which are being engineered by skillful sinners. The delegates were to be voting to-morrow will be controlled.

It is authoritatively stated to-night that Virginia's twenty-seven votes will be cast for S. T. Logan in the race for secretary-treasurer. North Carolina's six votes, it is understood, will be divided between the candidates, and the vote to oust Le Beume, who has held the office since the organization, and the election will be the one live issue of the convention.

It is to-night believed that the election of Colonel J. W. Williams, of Alexandria, to succeed the retiring Governor of Richmond, as chairman of the legislative committee, is assured.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hardisty, of Richmond, were today at home on account of the illness of their daughter of typhoid fever.

John S. Harwood, the morning session rose to a point of personal privilege and objected to statements in the local papers that he had served as a committee member on the Virginia and North Carolina drive over breakfast on the estate, the guests of Dr. C. A. Schmitt, head of the Department of Forestry. They will visit Lake Toxaway Friday and return home Saturday.

Asbury to Head Guilty. Musician Joseph Asbury, of the First Virginia Regiment, who is to be court-martialed on the charge of insubordination while on duty at the inauguration, has decided to enter a plea of guilty and to plead himself on the mercy of the court. He denies, however, that he cut the letters from the envelope on a subsequent occasion, and tonight this charge if it is formally pressed. The names of the members of the court will not be made public until their acceptance has been received by the Adjutant-General.

HOT POLITICAL FIGHT

Presidency Being Bartered for Office of Secretary and Treasurer.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 2.—Postponed by political maneuvering and not contentions on the floor of the convention, the election of officers of the Travelers' Protective Association did not take place to-day. There being no business session of the convention until to-morrow night, the election of officers is not looked for until late to-morrow night.

After reports from the committees on the various subjects reported the reading of letters of protest from independent tobacco growers in various sections against the repeal of the tax on leaf tobacco, a resolution providing for the immediate forwarding of telegraphic messages to United States Senators Thomas S. Martin, Albert J. Beveridge and Nelson W. Aldrich, wherein the association placed their record as being opposed to the repeal of the internal revenue tax on leaf tobacco was adopted.

Thanks for Southern Hospitality. The following resolution, passed by the Maryland division, was unanimously adopted: Whereas, the Southern Railway has used every effort to make the annual convention of the National Travelers' Protective Association a success, and has done so in a most generous and hospitable manner, and in order to make the journey to Asheville pleasant, be it

Resolved, That the thanks of this convention be extended to this company and its officials for the very satisfactory manner in which they have managed the trip, and for the large number of delegates and visitors, and also for their courtesy in ordering thirty or more of the delegates to look after our comfort.

It was responded to by S. H. Hardwick, of Washington, traffic passenger manager of the Southern division. The first intimation of the extent of the sharping which had been drawn developed during the reading of the proposed second constitutional amendment.

The purpose of this amendment was to relieve the association from liability in cases of accidents to insured members "resulting from attacks of fainting, or unconsciousness, nightmare or somnambulism." A roll call of States admitted to the vote of the amendment.

On all questions arising this morning the States were diametrically opposed.

OVERCOME WHILE UPBRADING PARTY

Mr. Money, to permit the Wisconsin Senator to recuperate.

Upon resuming, though evidently speaking with difficulty, Mr. La Follette said that he would resume his speech later.

President Taft, realizing some of the shortcomings of the Chicago platform went before the people and in some measure made a platform and made the producers of the country are contract and an obligation upon the Senate and the House that they cannot disregard.

Looking about the chamber and into the faces of Senators he remarked: "It is all right for Senators to make a decision, but it is a pretty serious proposition to get the support of the voters of this country who have a chance to speak once in four years."

Quoting speeches of the President in support of his contention for a lower tariff Mr. La Follette said: "I'll prove to you that you have raised it. Addressing himself directly to Vice-President Sherman in the chair he said: "That is the declaration upon which you have based your platform, and the declaration upon which the American people and were elected."

Protection for Coal Industry. Yielding the floor to Mr. Elkins Mr. La Follette announced that he would resume his speech later.

Protection for the coal and petroleum industries of the United States was the subject of the Senator from West Virginia. He took the ground that the coal producers of that country are entitled to a reduction in the existing rates of duty of reciprocal relations with Canada and that protection should be given to independent producers of oil regardless of whether this would result in benefits to the Standard Oil Company or not.

Mr. Elkins declared that no important American farm product or manufactured product in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, the Northwest and Pacific States, which competes with foreign products, is on the free list, and continuing he said: "If there is to be a revision or change in the tariff downward or upward, or however made, I protest myself make it downward, and distributed in benefits to other articles? Protection should not be mountain-high on some competing products with none on others. The present tariff bill must be made right to last. Duties must be fairly and justly levied and distributed on foreign products, with no favoritism to States or sections."

Asbury to Head Guilty. Musician Joseph Asbury, of the First Virginia Regiment, who is to be court-martialed on the charge of insubordination while on duty at the inauguration, has decided to enter a plea of guilty and to plead himself on the mercy of the court. He denies, however, that he cut the letters from the envelope on a subsequent occasion, and tonight this charge if it is formally pressed. CALL FOR NEW BIDS

Two Concerns Offer Same Figure for Removal of Old Machinery.

Bids were opened by the Council Committee on Electricity last night for the removal of the machinery of the Old Pump House preparatory to beginning work on the new municipal electric plant. Clarence Cooby bid $105, agreeing to remove the machinery promptly. The Virginia Iron and Metal Company offered the same figure, although its representative stated that there had been any collision, offering to do the work in from sixty to ninety days. The Central Transfer Company of Baltimore, bid $100 for the machinery, removing it in twenty days.

After hearing from the bidders all the offers were rejected and a new advertisement ordered. Mr. Pollard remarking that the old machinery seems to be increasing in value, as an former big contractor wished to charge the city for hauling the stuff away.

News of Manchester

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hull Street.

While for the past few days the question of granting the Seaboard Air Line Railway the right to construct a branch line through the city, from Sixth Street to a point near Hull, has been little discussed in this city, the incident, however, is not far from preceding the storm, for it is an assured fact that when the matter comes up before the meeting of the Street Commissioners, the city will be put to a vote. The opposition is composed of those who are not in favor of the project, and who are possessed of long wind and a determination to defeat the measure if possible.

In speaking of the matter yesterday a prominent business man stated that he thought it would be a great set back to the city should the project be defeated. He was sure that it would be a step that would be greatly regretted in the future.

With five candidates in the field, the election of Superintendent of the city, which takes place to-morrow night promises to be close and exciting. The Board of Water Commissioners, which elects the Superintendent, is composed of only five members, and the friends of all five candidates are claiming a victory. Three from present indications there may be a tie up, which will keep the board in session for some time.

Charles H. Burkett, the incumbent; Charles A. Sharpe, formerly superintendent of the department, and George B. Jones, announced their candidacy some time ago, and yesterday George B. Davidson and William T. Fugh, both of whom have announced their candidacy as aspirants for the position.
