

GOOD ROADS CAR IN THE SOUTHSIDE

Times-Dispatch Industrial Auto Traverses Buckingham and Appomattox. CITIZENS GETTING IN LINE Show Much Interest in the Work of Road Improvement and May Increase Taxes.

BY FRANK S. WOODSON. APPOMATTOX, Va., August 13.—The Times-Dispatch good roads and industrial car, in charge of the writer, left Farmville, the county seat of Prince Edward county, this morning about 10 o'clock, and made the run without accident over good, bad and indifferent roads, mostly bad, to Buckingham courthouse in a time of twenty-eight miles, making numerous stops at country stores and cross-way places, where people were on the lookout for the car.

The first stop was made at a point where W. F. Brown, engineer of the State Highway Commission, is in charge of the construction of four miles of macadam road leading from Farmville in Buckingham county. The people of Buckingham have signified their willingness to meet the Prince Edward people at the county line and carry this road on to Sheppard's, in Buckingham, a distance of four miles.

Will Vote for Bond Issue. Many prominent citizens of Buckingham I talked with to-day are enthusiastic over this proposed improvement, and they think it will be an object-lesson that the people will take note of, in connection with which they will be in a better position to vote in some other way raise money to make good roads in the county. No county in the State needs them more than Buckingham. So far there has been no practical road-making, and while the roads over which the car passed to-day were in good order, as most natural made Virginia roads are in the summer, there was everywhere ample evidence that these same clay highways are almost impassable in the winter season.

Called New, Yet It Is Old. At New Store, yet in name, but, as a matter of fact, one of the oldest stores I have ever looked upon, we met Lewis E. Jones, a Confederate veteran, who saw much service at home. Mr. Jones has retired from active business, and his ancient storehouse is now a kind of old curiosity shop, filled with many relics, among them the original bands that Joe Swearing made, the court of Thomas H. Peter Francisco fought, and the antlers of a deer that came very near ending Mr. Jones's existence.

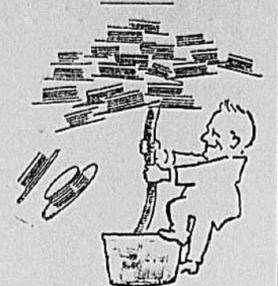

Although old and nearly ready to close up a brilliant and worthy career, Mr. Jones is a good roads advocate, and is doing all he can to make converts to his doctrine. At Andersonville the car had a small but enthusiastic audience, who gave attention to talks on good roads made by Mr. Hart and the writer. At Buckingham courthouse, Judge Thomas H. Hancock heard the application of Mrs. Jennie E. Haynor, who is now president of the Haynor Manufacturing Company, for alimony and an injunction restraining the defendant from disposing of his property pending a settlement of a divorce suit now pending.

The court granted Mrs. Haynor alimony to the amount of $75 per month, court costs to the amount of $50, and for attorney's fee, $200. "I want some specific allegation upon which to base my defense," said Mr. Hanson. "As the matter now stands, the whole thing is vague, and there is not an act specified." Judge Hancock said the bill was one for separation from bed and board and not for complete divorce, and that it was in proper form. Mr. Hanson then read an affidavit from Mr. Haynor, in which he set forth that his wife had abandoned him for cause, following a married life of twenty-eight years of nothing but happiness, with possibly a few jars in the last two years, caused, solely, however, from Mrs. Haynor's "nervousness and hallucinations that come to women of her age."

The defendant, denying each and every allegation of the plaintiff, said his wife had deserted him and gone to Allentown, Pa.; that he bade her a loving good-bye on the morning of August 9, and that if there was any trouble or quarrelling it was caused by Mrs. Haynor. "Mr. Haynor submitted a further affidavit denying that he was worth anything like $50,000," as contended by Mrs. Haynor.

Spotsylvania Has Vein of Rock Sufficient for Road Building. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.) SPOTSYLVANIA, Va., August 13.—Ever since the agitation of the good roads question in this county, which covers a period of some four or five years, a vast majority of our citizens have doubted the possibility of finding a sufficiency of stone to build permanent macadamized roads, and this feature has militated against the good roads project as most of our people believed that a gravel on clay and sand road would not stand the heavy hauling which daily passes over our public highways, but Assistant State Engineer F. O. Henshaw to-day made an examination of a stone quarry within a half mile of the courthouse and discovered an area of five or six acres of fine dark-gray granite and in ample quantity to build 100 miles of macadamized road with a depth of from ten to twelve inches of stone. This deposit, together with fifteen or twenty others in the county, will furnish sufficient stone of first-class quality to build all the macadamized roads the county will be able to construct in the next ten years, and puts to rest the opinion which has all along prevailed that sufficient material could not be found to build macadam roads here. This newly discovered quarry lies within 400 yards of the one mile of road which was surveyed yesterday by Engineer Henshaw, and which will be macadamized in the next sixty days, and practically insures the carrying of the bond issue of $100,000 at the election to be held here in November next for the permanent improvement of roads.

MRS. HAYNOR IS GIVEN ALIMONY

Injunction Is Also Granted in Famous Norfolk Divorce Suit.

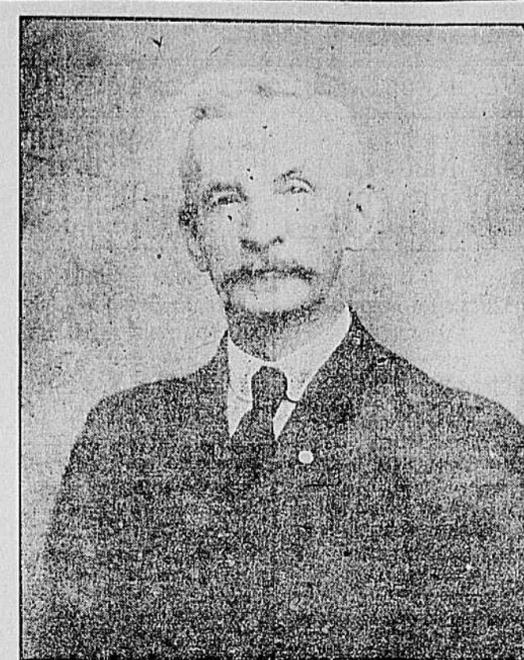

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] NORFOLK, Va., August 13.—In the Law and Chancery Court to-day, sitting for Judge Martin, Judge Alan R. Hancock heard the application of Mrs. Jennie E. Haynor, who is now president of the Haynor Manufacturing Company, for alimony and an injunction restraining the defendant from disposing of his property pending a settlement of a divorce suit now pending.

The court granted Mrs. Haynor alimony to the amount of $75 per month, court costs to the amount of $50, and for attorney's fee, $200. "I want some specific allegation upon which to base my defense," said Mr. Hanson. "As the matter now stands, the whole thing is vague, and there is not an act specified." Mr. Hanson then read an affidavit from Mr. Haynor, in which he set forth that his wife had abandoned him for cause, following a married life of twenty-eight years of nothing but happiness, with possibly a few jars in the last two years, caused, solely, however, from Mrs. Haynor's "nervousness and hallucinations that come to women of her age."

Who's Who in the City Council

PRESIDENT J. B. WOOD, of the Board of Aldermen.

James B. Wood, president of the Board of Aldermen, is a native of Caroline county, where he spent his early life as a farmer. He was a gallant Confederate soldier, having served throughout the war in the brigade of General Williams C. Wickham. When the war was over, General Wickham became prominent in railroad operations in Virginia, as well as in the Legislature, having served many years as Senator from the district in which Hanover and Caroline were situated. Long prior to his retirement from public life, General Wickham placed Mr. Wood in a

REPUBLICANS TO NOMINATE SOON

Leaders Preparing to Make Strong Fight Against Throckmorton in Henrico.

According to prominent Republicans both in this city and Henrico county, the strongest fight in years will be made in the county to defeat Charles W. Throckmorton, the Democratic nominee for the Legislature, who received the nomination over Thomas P. Davie, after a recount, by only fifteen votes.

By design the Republican party in the county waited until after the Democratic primary before nominating a man to run for the office, hoping for the nomination of Throckmorton, who was considered the weakest of the two aspirants for the nomination, in spite of the fact that he eventually won. Leaders of the party are now waiting for the return to the county of Chairman W. B. Vawter, who is now spending his vacation in New York, before putting up a candidate. It is understood that Mr. Vawter, who is considered the greatest Republican power in the county, will practically have the naming of the candidate.

Considering this the chance in years for the election of a Republican to the Legislature, they will go slow and be sure to nominate to oppose Throckmorton the strongest man possible. If they know what the choice of Mr. Vawter will be, none of the county politicians is willing to make it public until after the leader has returned and conferred with his workers. There seems, however, but little doubt that the man to be selected will be practically a Republican, and the generality of voters except as a zealous worker for the party. Throckmorton, it is said, will be attacked on all sides, and especially on his efforts to secure a road bond issue, which proved very unpopular in certain sections of the county, and for his vote for confirmation of Judge Rhea in the last Legislature. In spite of this talk, however, Mr. Throckmorton is confident that he will have no trouble in carrying the county by a large majority. He thinks that the fight waged against him for the nomination was the toughest he will have to go up against. As far as the rest is concerned he considers it plain sailing.

Mr. Goodman was thrown from the car, receiving a sprained ankle. None of the rest received any injury. At the time of the accident Mr. Goodman was sitting next to the driver.

Mad Dog Chase in Lynchburg. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.) LYNCHBURG, Va., August 13.—Another dog, rabid, was the cause of great excitement and a stirring chase this morning about 1 o'clock, but the canine managed to escape, despite the fact that a number of shots were fired at him by policemen.

The dog was first seen at Twelfth and Madison Streets by Officer Short, who sent a bullet after it. The animal then ran to Church Street, where Officer Glick and another policeman joined the chase, the former striking the dog on the head with his club. Two more shots were fired there. The dog ran down Ninth Street, and near Ninth and Jefferson Streets, where Officer Glick shot at it. A warrant has been issued there, to shoot or to kill.

With all the policemen behind him, the dog managed to escape down the railway in the darkness of that section. This is the second dog to be chased by the police in two days, and it is probably one of those bitten recently. Not fewer than fifty have been reported since the excitement on White Rock Hill several weeks ago, when six or seven persons and a number of dogs were bitten by an animal which was declared rabid after its head had been examined in a government laboratory in Washington.
