Eben Alexander Dies in Knoxville. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Chapel Hill, N. C., March 11.—Death was received here to-night of the well-known educator, Dr. Eben Alexander, of North Carolina. Dr. Alexander was visiting his son, Dr. Eben Alexander, Jr., under a leave of absence from the university. He had just returned from New York City, where he attended the meeting of the senate of the National Society of Phi Beta Kappa. He has been unwell for some time, but his death was sudden and unexpected. The following bare facts of his life were taken from a sketch written by Professor E. P. Moses for Ash's "Lives of Distinguished North Carolinians." Dr. Eben Alexander was born in Knoxville, Tenn., March 9, 1851, being a son of Judge Eben Alexander, of Knoxville, and grandson of James White, of Iredell county, founded in 1859 the present city of Knoxville. He entered Yale College in 1870, was one of the most prominent and popular members of the class of 1873. He was a member of the Psi Upsilon Fraternity, of the Skull and Dons Honor Order, and of Phi Beta Kappa Scholarship. After graduation he became tutor in the University of Tennessee, professor of the Greek and Latin languages and later chairman of the faculty. He gave up his position at the University of Tennessee to become professor of Greek in the University of North Carolina in the fall of 1889. In April, 1892, President Cleveland appointed Dr. Alexander extra-ordinary minister plenipotentiary to Greece, Rumania and Serbia. This position he held during Cleveland's administration, with dignity, ability and credit to his country. While in Athens he played a leading part in the revival of the Olympic games. Harper's Weekly, September 25, 1895, said: "The first subscription that reached the committee's hands was not from a born Greek, but from Mr. Eben Alexander, United States minister to Greece, who, nevertheless, had been in Athens for some time, and was a true Hellenic, both by his wide acquaintance with the Greek language and literature, and his whole-hearted sympathy with the country and its people." The leading newspaper of Athens, in a long editorial, expressed the appreciation of the Greek people for Dr. Alexander's eminently successful services as the minister from America. "It is a far cry," says Professor Moses, "from the Acropolis to a professor's chair at Chapel Hill, but when his term of office expired, the diplomat gladly put aside the business of the nation to take up again his work for the young men of North Carolina." He returned to the university in 1897. In 1900 he was elected dean of the university, a position which he has since held with honor, which he has filled with his own energy and devotion. He was a man of high character, of the work in the classroom and in the dean's office, the object to which he devoted most of his time and care was the building of the present magnificent university library. His most distinguishing personal characteristics were his gentleness, his kind and courteous at all times. He was a man loved dearly at Knoxville, Tenn., and here at the University.

J. C. Houston, formerly of this city, died in Chapel Hill yesterday morning. He was the son of the late Dr. Matthew Hale Houston and Eleanor S. Gibson Houston, of this city. He was forty-three years of age. He was married to his wife, Mrs. Ruth R. Houston, and four children, all of this city. He was a member of Mt. Zion Church, of the Richmond, and Mrs. J. H. Houston, of Baltimore. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

Remarkable Christmas Present. Among the curious Christmas presents of this year will be one for a man of national reputation, which has been all year in the making. Way upon, and a friend of the promisee gentleman requested the Burrell Press Clipping Bureau, of New York, to watch every paper in America, and to take up every item which appeared concerning the man.

The clipping bureau people followed instructions, and now present the history of one year in the life of this special man. The history ends just after election, and the 1902 newspaper items found editorial mention to full-page illustrated stories. These have been mounted on 3,200 great sheets of Irish linen paper and bound into three massive volumes. At the head of each item is the name and date of paper clipped from, this information having been taken up with a book typewriter. The words thus inserted amount to 153,852.

In actual time, a very strict record of what has been kept, the work has required sixty-four working days throughout the year, and has kept in employment during that time thirty people as readers, clippers, sorters, mounters and binders. Every newspaper of importance is represented.

This is merely a specimen of some of the unique orders which get into the Burrell Bureau, the extent to which business is done by individuals and by clubs. There are many people in private as well as in public life who need press clippings and don't know it. It might be for them to look up this man Burrell, who is said to be so well known that a letter simply addressed "Burrell, New York," will reach him with no delay.

Committee Waits on Mayor. After hearing the testimony that the meeting place, where, after hearing the report of the chairman, it was decided not to carry the full meeting there, as was suggested by several enthusiastic members. Things being not all clear, and the committee being called to the floor to explain the ordinance, a thing that he has done at least three times in public within the last week, to say nothing of private talks made to those not decided as to how they would vote. He explained how the tax rate would be increased by annexation rather than by the natural dispensation of things, there would be no increase in the rent rate.

In answer to questions on the subject, he stated that Manchester's borrowing capacity at the present time was $100,000, from which should be deducted $15,000 for the recently constructed high school. Besides this, he went into many other phases of the question, answering all questions without hesitation.

Mr. Brown appeared at his best during the cross-examination. Hundreds of questions were fired at him both concerning this and his own city. He never failed to answer any of them, apparently to the satisfaction of his interrogators. There could be no doubt that every person present was highly in favor of the union.
