LOVE FEAST HELD BY THE BRETHREN

Feet-Washing Ceremony Incident of Meeting Near Winchester.

NEWS OF THE VALLEY

Young Women Badly Hurt When Automobile Frightens Their Horse.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Winchester, Va., May 22.--Members of the Church of the Brethren from many sections of the lower Shenandoah Valley have been attending a series of special services during the past week at Peach Grove Church, near Winchester, with Rev. B. B. Garver, of Rockingham county, in charge. The feet-washing ceremony was observed yesterday afternoon, and a love feast was held.

Harvey R. Yeakley, member of a prominent Frederick county family, who recently filed a suit for an absolute divorce from his wife, Mrs. Grace V. Yeakley, after being married less than four months, has been surprised by his wife filing a cross bill. She has also been granted alimony and counsel fees. Yeakley alleges that his wife was unfaithful to him, and recently made a confession implicating another man, who is said to have fled from the county. In return, she states, Yeakley circulated reports before their marriage which were derogatory to her character.

Miss Maude Kennerly, daughter of J. P. Kennerly, a prominent resident of White Post, Clarke county, and her guest, Miss Mary Hicks, of Rural Retreat, were badly injured a few days ago, when a passing automobile frightened their horse and threw them violently from the buggy in which they were driving. Both were picked up unconscious and carried home, suffering from cuts and bruises and severe nervous shocks.

Although six bullets pierced her body, Miss Naomi Coffman, who was shot recently by Perry Hottel, her jealous lover, near Mount Jackson, is recovering. The physicians expected any one of the six wounds to prove fatal, but Miss Coffman continues to improve. The wounds are healing.

Rev. Peter Miller, of Rio, Hampshire county, Va., who was among the ministers in attendance upon the sessions of the Potomac Conference of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia, held in St. Matthew's Church, at New Market, Shenandoah county, Va., a few days ago, is one of the most remarkable ministers of the Lutheran Church in the South, and is the wonder of all his friends.

Notwithstanding the fact that he is now in his eighty-third year, he drove thirty-five miles across the mountains to attend the conference, and preached with the vigor of youth. He left yesterday for his home, and preached at three places on the way. For many years he has been serving four churches regularly in Hampshire and Hardy counties, and although the snow covered the ground in the West Virginia mountains last winter to a depth of two feet in many places, he never missed an appointment. He was ordained at New Market in October, 1855, and has been preaching ever since.

Lidia Washington, the six-year-old daughter of John Washington, a well-known farmer living at Springfield, Hampshire county, Va., was burned to death a few days ago. Her clothing caught fire, and before assistance arrived she had been fatally burned.

Edward Purcell, a well-known contractor of Rockingham county, has come to Wyoming, where he will build a new residence for which he recently received a contract.

Mrs. Joseph Moffett, wife of a well-known traveling man of Woodstock, was taken to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, a few days since to undergo a surgical operation. The operation was successful, and Mrs. Moffett is now recovering.

The farmers of Warren county are manifesting a great deal of interest in the growing of white Burley tobacco. The large profits can be made from that product in the Shenandoah Valley. The white Burley tobacco sold in the market here a few days ago brought the highest price in the market. About twenty-five farmers of Warren are now raising the white Burley leaf.

Miss Lizzie Berlin, member of one of the oldest families of Clarke county, Va., died a few days ago at her home at White Post, after a lingering illness incident to an advanced age. She was eighty years old. Her husband, Albin Berlin, of White Post, who is a nephew.

Samuel Helms, a prominent fruit buyer of Lockport, L. I., against whom attachments were issued several months ago by Frederick county fruit growers, came here a day or two ago and made satisfactory settlements with his creditors. Mr. Helms was unfortunate in being unable to sell the fruit at a reasonable profit after offering high prices for it here last fall. Many thousands of barrels of apples were in cold storage in his name, and when he found himself unable to dispose of it attachments were issued.

During the past week a number of towns in the Valley of Virginia have decided to enforce the automobile and motorcycle speed laws to the letter, on account of numerous accidents resulting from horses being frightened by passing cars and motorcycles. In some sections the people have been wrought up to a pitch of intense indignation because motorists have failed to render assistance when runaways have occurred.

According to careful estimates made by leading fruit growers here, the apple crop of Frederick county will be a little over 200,000 barrels this year, and the owners of the commercial orchards expect to get at least $500,000 for their fruit. The crop will not be as large as was expected, owing to unfavorable weather conditions a month ago, but the growers say they are satisfied, and that while the quality of the fruit is less, the quantity will be greater. The young peaches had advanced to such an extent that they were not damaged by the recent freezing temperature, and growers say they will gather the largest crop since 1898, when 196,000 bushels were picked and shipped to the city markets.

For the first time in many years, a new city Democratic executive committee has been elected to manage the party's affairs in Winchester. The new committee has organized by electing John M. Steek as chairman.

The baccalaureate sermon of the Agricultural High School for the Seventh Congressional District, situated at Middletown, this county, was preached to-night in the Southern Methodist Church at that place by Rev. William S. Hammond, of Lexington, Va. Although this is the first year for the new college, it will have three graduates--Miss Maud Matthews and Miss Emma and Cora Larrick. Professor John R. Hutcheson is principal of the school.

Miss Anne Swallow, a member of an old Warren county family, died yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Brody, at Nineveh, with whom she had made her home for many years. She was sixty-five years old and had been a member of the United Brethren Church since a child.

WINES RESIDENCE GOES UP IN SMOKE

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Manassas, Va., May 22.--Dr. R. E. Wines's residence, at Brentsville, was totally destroyed by fire about 12 o'clock last night. With the building Dr. Wines also lost nearly all his household effects, including the family wearing apparel. When neighbors discovered the fire the building was so ablaze that it was impossible to remove the furniture, and Dr. Wines's office effects. The property is generally known as the Reid Hotel, and was built by the late J. B. Reid and conducted by him as a hotel for a number of years before the county seat was moved from Brentsville to Manassas. Dr. Wines's loss is partially covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

WALK IS BROUGHT BACK TO BRISTOL

He Will Face Trial for Murder of a Fellow-Police-man.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Bristol, Va., May 22.--All doubt that the man arrested at Coeur-D'Alene, Idaho, a week ago was Grant M. Walk, the former Bristol policeman, wanted here for seven years on the charge of having murdered Houston Childress, a fellow-policeman, was cleared this afternoon, when an officer arrived with Walk.

Although considered a dangerous man, he was brought without handcuffs, and was allowed to go to the home of his brother, Robert P. Walk, before being locked up. At the city jail he cordially greeted numerous old acquaintances.

A young woman attired in white was among his callers. She seemed especially glad to see him. When she told Walk that her sister had married since he left, he remarked with a smile, "There's where I left again."

Walk does not deny having shot Officer Childress down on the street, but no evidence as to the cause of the tragedy has ever been adduced. Charles Porch, at that time on the police force, was the only eyewitness to the shooting. He will be brought here from Knoxville to testify. Walk expressed confidence this afternoon of his acquittal. He is a slender man, with swarthy complexion, blue eyes, and a prominent pointed nose, and, being easily described, the wonder is that, being sought by all detective agencies, and with his picture in practically every police station in the country, more than eighty men should have been arrested as Walk suspects before the right man was caught. The officers making the arrest claimed a reward of $50, $300 of which was offered by the Governor.
