Chicago, Ill., June 16.—His Imperial Highness Prince Hiroyasu Fushimi, cousin to the Emperor of Japan, and his wife, Princess Tsune Fushimi, spent today in Chicago and vied with each other in saying "sweet and pleasant" things about Mr. Roosevelt, American aviators, the United States Navy, the temperature and the dress of American women. The royal pair, accompanied by their suite and John E. Wilkie, chief of the United States secret service, left tonight for Seattle, after a busy day.

"Colonel Roosevelt is a great man," said His Highness, laughing. "In our country we think of him as always on the jump, and I guess that is the way he is spoken of generally."

When the prince was asked his opinion of President Taft the local Japanese consul refused to allow him to answer, saying: "The prince is not here on a political mission, so please do not ask him any questions about politics."

Prince Fushimi was enthusiastic over the progress made by American aeronauts. "The progress Americans have made in aeronautics is wonderful," he said. "I have watched the recent experiments with great interest, and when I go back to Japan I shall try to introduce aviation among the younger men. As for myself, I do not think I should care to fly.

"I think the United States Navy is a great institution, but I did not have time to study it as thoroughly as I should have liked."

The princess, who is one of the most beautiful women in Japan, confined her spoken opinion to American women's clothes. "American women's clothes are pretty," she said, through an interpreter. "I think the women of this country are the best dressed of any I have seen."

The royal pair is returning from more than a two years' stay in Europe. Most of the time was spent in England studying the economic and political institutions of that country.
