ogy and physiology. There will also be one large and one small class-room on this floor. The laboratories will be 27x40 feet, with provision for eighty lockers in each, and each having attached to it a small laboratory 13x13 feet for the private use of professors and instructors in that branch. The dispensing laboratory will be a separate station for all the other work with which and the free dispensary it will be connected by small elevators, thus greatly facilitating the prompt filling of prescriptions and orders. The college will be connected with the Virginia Hospital by a bridge leading from the third floor, and by another bridge leading into the surgical amphitheatre.

One of the chief features of the top floor will be the dissecting hall, arranged with a sloping ceiling so as to give a maximum of light. The large windows, these windows will be the hall ten feet tall and will make the hall one of the brightest, if not the liveliest, in the place. Washrooms and spots for dissecting hall students will be provided. On this floor will be also the museum, a laboratory for advanced chemistry, a Pasteur laboratory and laboratories for histology, pathology, bacteriology and clinical pathology. Each of these will have private laboratories attached. A room for the animals used in experimental work will be located in the attic.

In the partition between the histology and bacteriology laboratories will be the microscope lockers, with glass doors, opening on each side. Each student will have his private microscope. All chemical laboratories will be equipped with fume closets, ranging from fifteen to twenty feet in length. The sinks will be of Albemarle stone, and the desks of maple.

A splendidly equipped X-ray department will be one of the distinctive features of the new college. The rapid development of electro-therapeutics will make this one of the most interesting rooms in the building.

The floors of the main lobby, library and all hallways will be of terrazo, while those of the operating rooms, laboratories and dissecting hall will be covered with carbolic. In the main lobby the wainscoting will be of marble. Lavatories will be placed on all floors.

The heating and ventilating will be done by the combined direct and indirect method.

direct method. The radiators will be situated under the windows and fresh air brought in from the outside, under and around them. Foul air will be carried out through ducts on the opposite walls. The exhausts to these ducts and to the ducts from the fume closets will be provided with fans operated by motors. The building will be lighted with gas and electricity, and will be equipped with a complete telephone system.

The Greater College. When the University College of Medicine was burned to the ground a little less than a year ago, the seeming calamity cast a gloom over the entire community, to-day no friend of the institution sees in that event anything more than the means toward a greater end than the old school, with its limitations, could ever have hoped to accomplish. The entire city rallied to the demand for quick action, faculty and trustees consented with determination that could mean nothing but success, and the specific result of it all is seen in the announcement of the board made last night. The new college will be built with money given outright by the people of Richmond; more than ever before it will be a local institution, and to them has been surrendered the entire management of the financial affairs of the college. These men have given freely of their means and their time and have personally taken up, considered and decided every detail touching the construction of the new building. The faculty has had, and hereafter will have, nothing whatever to do with the money spending. It will be concerned solely with the curriculum and with the adjustment of relations between the University College of Medicine and the various medical associations with which it is affiliated. The remainder of the gigantic task of re-establishing a great college has been left altogether in the hands of the trustees, and they have done the work thoroughly and will see that it is as thoroughly preserved.

That the faculty, however, has contributed its share, goes without saying. The personnel of the teaching staff has undergone some changes, the curriculum has been extensively altered and improved after many laborious weeks, and the general plan has been picked out in every detail some months ago a committee went forth on a search for ideas and visited many of the larger medical schools of the East and communicated with many others throughout the country. When all the data was in hand, the committee sat down, picked out the best each school had to offer, and adopted it as its own. This is literally true, and hence the faculty has no hesitancy in claiming for the new University College that, while it is enabled to avoid the mistakes, it is equal in measure profits by the advantages of all the other medical schools in the United States. In the matter of mere bulk, of course, the equipment will not compete with that of some of the colleges where the attendance is much larger, but man for man, the students here will be as well provided for as are any in Baltimore, Philadelphia or New York. Furthermore, the most successful methods of all three of those cities, and others besides, will be brought together and welded into one symmetrical whole, along with an equipment fresh from the factory.

The building committee of the faculty was composed of Dr. R. W. Miller, chairman; Dr. Paulus A. Irving, Dr. M. D. Hoge, Jr., Dr. Stuart MacLean, and William R. Miller. Recently E. D. Taylor has taken the place of Dr. Irving, who has moved from the city, and Thomas H. Moore has been added to the committee.

In the matter of courtesies extended the committee feels itself particularly indebted to the University of Pennsylvania, Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, the Medical-Chirurgical College of the same city, Columbia University, and the College of the City of New York. At the last named institution it was the good fortune of the Richmonders to be met by Professor Charles Baskerville, the distinguished chemist, who is a relative of Trustees' Statement. The action of the trustees in calling for pretentious plans for the new college has aroused the enthusiasm of the students afresh, and all now feel that in the hands of these gentlemen the destinies of the school are safe. Practically to a man the student body has stood loyally to the college and showed its spirit not only by enduring many inconveniences without complaint, but by doing excellent work in spite of the confusion necessarily following the big fire. The faculty and trustees keenly appreciate the unswerving support of the students and are determined on their part to give the boys the best that money can buy and hard work accomplish.

H. E. Baskerville, of Richmond, one of the architects for the new building.

The session last night was well attended and there was a general disposition to feel that the finished product was worthy of the months of labor and worry spent over it. The board is composed of Judge George L. Christian, chairman; L. Z. Morris, vice-chairman; W. R. Miller, secretary; John P. Branch, L. O. Miller, Granville G. Valentine, John Stewart Bryan, William H. Zimmermann, T. A. Miller, T. L. Moore, W. S. Forbes, John S. Munce, M. C. Patterson, Edgar D. Taylor, Henry L. Cabell and John W. Gordon. The advisory committee is composed of Dr. Stuart McGuire, Dr. John Dunn, Dr. A. L. Gray, Dr. R. W. Miller and Dr. E. L. Simpson.

By unanimous consent, the board granted a request from the site committee of the museum of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society that a tablet be placed on the new building setting forth that the structure it replaces was the residence of Vice-President Stephens during the war. The architects were directed to make suitable provision in the plans for the tablet.

DIRECT VOTE THE WAY

Foss Tells Remedy for Public Ills at Dinner of Democratic Club.

New York, December 15.—Only two out of six Democratic Governors-elect were able to be present at a banquet given in their honor by the National Democratic Club at the Waldorf-Astoria to-night. John A. Dix, of New York, and Eugene N. Foss, of Massachusetts, were there, but regrets were sent by Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey; Judson Harmon, of Ohio; Simpson B. Baldwin, of Connecticut; and Frederick E. Plaisted, of Maine. Two of the absentees, however—Messrs. Wilson and Harmon—sent letters, which were read, and both Mr. Dix and Mr. Foss delivered addresses.

Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, presided, and seated near him were Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, and Charles F. Murphy, the present leader. A telegram was received that Governor-Elect Plaisted was seriously ill and was threatened with pneumonia. Then came word that Governor-Elect Baldwin had an engagement to speak in Washington.

The letters of Dr. Wilson and Governor Harmon were read before any addresses were delivered. Martin W. Littleton, Representative-elect, also spoke. Governor Harmon's letter said in part:

"We must justify the confidence so signally expressed, or the victory at the polls will not be the cause for rejoicing, and we shall not do this if the conduct of public business falls below the standard of the campaign. More personal desires, selfish purposes and impurities for special favor must be swept aside, and all public authority be employed for the general good alone."

Mr. Dix confined himself largely to an account of New York State developments and resources. Mr. Foss said in part:

"I can only speak for Massachusetts, but that State, at least the issue on which the campaign was so signally fought and won, is this: To bring the government back to the people. The only way to do it, the business way, is by eliminating all go-betweens—the boss and his agents, the caucus, the nominating convention and the lobby."

"Before we can get any honest revision of the tariff the Senate itself must be revised. Our Senators must be more responsive to the will of the people, and in order to effect a honest revision of the tariff—or any legislation in the interest of the people—our Senators must be virtually elected by popular vote. The direct primary and the election of United States Senators by the people will eliminate the lobby and its train of corruption."

"It should be no part of our work to tear down, but rather to build up. It won't be sufficient for us to repeal the Iniquitous Payne-Aldrich law without putting some constructive measure in its place. We must understand that the industrial and commercial world is not yet ready for a free trade policy and while ultimately we may attain that end, it must be done through a graduated program."

Lewis-Barkesley. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Lynchburg, Va., December 15.—Wednesday, at Timber Ridge, Rockbridge county, an interesting marriage was enacted, when Miss Oela Barkesley, of a well known family of that section, was married to Alfred Lewis, a resident of Lexington. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. Pressley, of the Timber Ridge Presbyterian Church.

ITALY TAKES STEPS TO GET HOLD OF CHARLTON

Will Resist Effort Made to Prevent the Deportation of Wife Murderer.

Washington, December 15.—The Italian government has formally retained Pierre P. Garven, prosecutor of the pleas of Hudson county, N. J., to represent it in opposing the proceedings which have been begun or may be hereafter brought by R. Floyd Clarke, of New York City, and the law firm of Edwards & Smith, of New Jersey, to prevent the deportation of Porter Charlton under Secretary Knox's decision that the murderer surrendered to Italy. Mr. Garven has conferred with the consul-general at New York in regard to the case.

OPPOSER'S ISSUANCE OF WRIT

Mr. Garven's first move will be to oppose the habeas corpus proceedings which were started last Saturday. The request for his services came direct from Italy. Charlton will be taken from the Hudson county jail to the United States District Court at Trenton Monday, when the application for a writ of habeas corpus will be returnable.

TWELVE MEN ENTOMBED IN MINE NEAR DENVER

Explosion Causes Fire, Which Cuts Off Avenues of Escape.

Denver, Col., December 15.—Twelve men are reported entombed in shaft No. 2 of the Leyden Coal Company, at Leyden, Col., fourteen miles west of Denver. The workings are said to be on fire, and it is feared all may die. The fire started about 9 o'clock last night, the result of an explosion, and the timbering of the shaft was ablaze in a moment, cutting off escape in that way.

Shaft No. 1 is separated from shaft No. 2 by a narrow wall. A rescue party under the direction of Samuel Perry, president of the Leyden Coal Company, was endeavoring early today to break down the wall and the twelve men entombed could be heard working madly in their efforts to gain freedom. There is no hope of stopping the fire at present, and every effort is being made to gain an entrance for the entombed men through shaft No. 1.

PROBES RODRIGUEZ LYCHING

Circuit Court Grand Jury at Rock Springs, Tex., Investigates.

Rock Springs, Tex., December 15.—In his charge to the grand jury, which convened yesterday, Circuit Judge Purdy instructed that the recent burning of Antonio Rodriguez be investigated.

Rodriguez was burned at the stake after it is declared, he had confessed to killing Mrs. Lewis, a prominent wife of a ranch owner. Following the lynching anti-American demonstrations occurred at Guadalajara and other points in Mexico.

The first information was that Rodriguez was a Mexican. Since it has been declared that the man was a native of New Mexico.

Weldon Minister Drank Corrosive Sublimite Instead of Harmless Drug. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Weldon, N. C., December 15.—Rev. P. N. Stalback is slowly recovering from the effects of corrosive sublimate, a deadly poison, he took by mistake for a harmless drug. His condition is still such as to cause his family and friends much uneasiness. His family physician and two trained nurses from Richmond are in constant attendance.

APPEAL FOR THE PARDON OF CHARLES W. MORSE

Washington, December 15.—Charles W. Morse's petition for pardon has been formally presented to the Department of Justice. One section of the plea for the convicted New York banker came in a large express package, and was signed with the names of thousands of persons of prominence.

Mrs. Morse has made another petition for her husband, and this has been presented to President Taft by Senator Hale. The President sent it at once to Attorney-General Wickersham, who turned it over to the attorney in charge of pardons.

Matter to Be Investigated. The routine investigation which follows the application of a Federal prisoner for executive clemency will now begin. Morse's case probably will be taken up in its turn and reports will be asked from the district attorney who prosecuted him and from the court where he was convicted. All evidence in the case will be reviewed by Attorney-General Wickersham, who will then make his recommendations to President Taft.

It may be weeks or months before Morse's pardon is granted or denied.

Their Scandalous Gush of Present Day, Declares Priest Writes Male Sex to Err.

Elgin, Ill., December 15.—"Present day fashions, making the dress of our women scandalous, and, in fact, licentious, is responsible for the downfall of many men," said the Rev. Father Ignatius, a Passionist priest from Cincinnati, who is conducting a week's mission at St. Mary's Church here.

Continuing, he said: "Women and girls appear upon the street, in street cars and public places in such attire that their appearance is an invitation to men to commit sin. Yet these women call themselves ladies."

"The flirt is one of the most diabolical agents in existence. The scandal spreader is worse than a murderer. Women alone are not to blame for the spreading of scandal."

"Men who stand on street corners, using vulgar and profane language in the presence of women are mere brutes. They are beasts."

"Parents, who by their bad example, their neglect of religion, lead not only their own children but others away from Christ, are emissaries of the devil. Many a father and mother, bent and gray haired to-day, is reaping the harvest of his or her evil example, with a broken heart over the misdeeds of their children."

"The reason that many of our young men and women go to the docks to-day is because of the bad example set them by their parents."

The priest raised his voice vigorously against race suicide.
