VIEWES AND NEAR VIEWES

Wakelee is doing a lot of "plowing" with dynamite up in Louisa county, on farms near to Frederick's Hall. I have a letter from him in which he says: "I have noticed in Views and Near Views that you have a happy way of expressing your fear of dynamite and its use as a plow to break up land. I do not share your fears in the least, and yet I am not, as you seem to infer, an expert in the handling of dynamite, but am just one of a large number who are trying to bring about greater results from our lands and at smaller outlay. Now that the glorious Fourth is over and we are both in the land of the living notwithstanding the much use of dynamite, I want you to come up here and let me show you what can be done with dynamite in the way of orchard setting, plowing and over-ditching, and at what small expense it can be done." I am always looking for something new under the sun, when the sun does not shine too hot, and if Prophet Evans will promise to break the torrid spell for a day or so I will go up to Louisa and see what Wakelee is up to anyhow, but let it be understood that distance lends enchantment to the view of some experiments, especially those made with dynamite, and I shall try to witness this one from a perfectly safe point. And, if I live through it, will tell all my plowing friends about "plowing" with explosives.

More Dairy Farms Wanted.

Mr. Chapin, the president and general manager of the big new ice cream factory at Jefferson and Cary Streets, tells me that he has no trouble in selling all the "Velvet" cream he can make, but the trouble that the new enterprise is confronting is in getting the "raw material," as he expresses it, to make the ice cream called for by the people. This leads me to repeat a hint made in this column several times heretofore, to the effect that one among the biggest industrial openings for the right kind of men in the counties and outlying districts immediately around Richmond is the dairy business. There are now with a radius of twenty-five miles around the city some first-class dairy farms, and as I showed in an illustrated article in the Industrial Section some months ago, Richmond is getting a superior quality of milk and cream from the dairy farms, but it is not getting enough. Men who understand the "cow business" and the dairy business need not be afraid to enlarge their operations, to increase their herds if they are already in that line, and others who are not in the business need not fear to tackle it. The supply is now short of the demand, and Richmond will create a still greater demand if the supply is forthcoming. Why should there not be several big creameries right here in Richmond, establishments to make butter and cheese and all things that can be made from milk and cream? There would be if there was any sort of a guarantee of a supply of the raw material—that is to say, of milk and cream. All of that comparatively barren territory between here and Petersburg along the line of the railway and the trolley line could be and ought to be a succession of dairy farms. If folks will go into that business on a more extensive scale Richmond will be made a market for ten times as much milk and cream as is now sold here. This is a hint to the wise, and I have Scripture for it that just a hint is all sufficient.
