CONDEMNED MAN GETS NEW HEARING

Court Grants Writ in Case of Wright, Who Has Confessed His Crime.

TAX REDUCTIONS ARE ASKED

Companies Appear Before Corporation Commission—New Infantry Company.

In session at Staunton yesterday, the Supreme Court of Appeals granted a writ of error and supersedeas against Alfred Wright, the negro under sentence of death for criminal assault. This acts as a stay of execution until the case can be finally argued and decided, which will probably be at the November term of the court in Richmond.

A telegram from the clerk of the court in Staunton was received at the Governor's office yesterday, making the announcement of the granting of the writ.

The peculiar part of the case is that the negro has confessed to his crime, although he has since modified it by certain allegations. A young white woman was the victim.

The confession, of course, was not before the court, which has under consideration the petition of the prisoner for a new trial on the ground of haste in the proceedings and prejudice against him in the jury panel.

The court could not take note of the fact that he has admitted his crime to the directors of the State Penitentiary. He was given a respite until September 10 by the Governor to await action by the court.

AMERICAN VISITOR IS OF NOTED FAMILY

Prince Andrew Gagarine Attends International Congress of Engineers, members of which are to visit the principal cities of the United States before returning home.

BY LA MARQUISE DE FORTENY.

PRINCE Andrew Gagarine, who is now in New York attending the International Congress of Engineers, members of which are to visit the principal cities of the United States before returning home, is director of the Imperial Polytechnic of St. Petersburg. He is married to Princess Marie Gagarine, and bears a name which is familiar in this country through the ecclesiastical activity here of his grandfather, Prince Ivan Sergievich Gagarine. The latter, while Secretary of the Russian Embassy in Paris in 1841, became a convert to Roman Catholicism, which cost him not only his diplomatic position, but incurred exile from his native land. Entering the Jesuit Order, he came over here and engaged in missionary work among the mining and silver-working foreign population of Pennsylvania, where the fame of Father Gagarine endures to this day. Near a quarter of a century of his career as a priest was passed in the United States.

Another Gagarine, Alexander by name, was one of the principal Russian commanders in the Crimean War, and served in the army of Transcaucasia. A cousin of our present visitor, Prince Andrew, namely, Prince Gregory Gagarine, is vice-president of the Imperial Academy of Arts at St. Petersburg.

The Gagarine family, which is a family, and are to be found in all ranks and conditions of life, this being due to the fact that all the children of every Gagarine have a right to the princely title. There was a Princess Gagarine who rode "haute école" in a circus, while one Prince Gagarine was a very successful horse breeder in Moscow. Another was employed as longshoreman on the docks at Odessa.

The present Prince Gagarine formerly played a peculiar role in Egypt. Her first husband, a Russian diplomat, Kamenka of the present Russian Ambassador in London met with his death while shooting in the vicinity of Cairo, his only companion at the time being an Austrian-Italian adventurer who had served in the army of the Khedivial Princes; that of the wife of Ismail, and afterwards of the wife and mother-in-law of Khedive Tewfik.

In those days Russia was the reverse of friendly to England, and through the Khedivial Princesses the clever Russian woman was able not only to obtain much information for the authorities at St. Petersburg, but likewise to stir up a great deal of trouble for the British Government. Her second husband had so well-known a record that when the father of the

FURTHER APPLICATIONS CANNOT BE CONSIDERED

Number of Confederate Women Who Can Be Given Aid by State Is Complete.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
WYTHEVILLE, Va., September 5.—Mrs. A. A. Campbell, president of the Virginia Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, announced today that the Auditor of Public Accounts, Hon. C. Lee Moore, has notified Mrs. N. V. Randolph, chairman of the relief committee, that the number of Confederate women who can be given aid out of the sum appropriated by the last Legislature, no further application can therefore be considered, and the chairman requests that no more shall be sent in until vacancies occur.

This fund is designed exclusively for old women who are in need and who are not inmates of charitable institutions or recipients of a State pension. The number of Confederate women who are now being investigated and approved by the chapters of the Virginia Division, has been received by the majority of age. Some are blind, many are bedridden, all are destitute. These citizens whose taxes pay this pittance to want and misery may comfort themselves with the assurance that every cent is wisely and conscientiously expended. The appeal by the Virginia Division for State aid in caring for these old women grew out of the fact that the division's own relief fund, inaugurated by Mrs. Randolph and contributed by the men who were sufficient to reach all who needed assistance. The women of the sixties, wives and sisters of the men who fought in the ranks, have a right to sympathy and help. The Daughters of the Confederacy love them for what they have endured and cherish them for their share in the glorious story of the men who followed Lee, and hope that the next Legislature will continue, and if possible increase, the appropriation which brings light at eventide to the shadowed lives of these dear pensioners upon the bounty and the gratitude of our Commonwealth.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Wilmington, N. C., September 5.—The sight of a white woman flourishing a big revolver and chasing a street car conductor, caused excitement and consternation to prevail in the downtown part of the city today. The conductor, A. E. Dorewell, was the victim, while his wife was the assailant, and but for convenient street cars, around which he dodged for several minutes while his wife would likely have been killed. Finally, another conductor jumped off a passing car and grabbed the woman, who fought violently until carried to jail. The episode, which came near having a fatal ending, was the climax of a quarrel between the couple yesterday, when the husband left her. To-day, armed with a revolver, she went forth to kill him.
