National sales-slip printers furnish the only system that stops mistakes and losses and gives positive protection on all transactions where sales-slips are used.

They are used to safeguard sales by giving the proprietors printed and added records which are unchangeable.

You should have unchangeable records in order to be sure that you get all your profits.

The "Get a Receipt" plan forces records to make a correct record of every transaction that takes place in your store.

Have it explained to you.

A National will watch your business while you are away and give you a controlling total of all business done.

It keeps track of details that no human brain can retain.

Send for a National Cash Register salesman and learn how the Office Register will give you a mechanical check on your business and enable you to know where you stand at any minute of the day.

Investigation will cost you nothing.

Nationals tell how much and what kind of business each employe does.

If a mistake is made the register shows who made it.

They create friendly rivalry between employes, which increases your trade and your profits.

WILLS HIS MONEY TO WOMEN'S HOME

Veteran Gives Life's Savings of $200 to Aid Confederate Institution.

BUTTONS MAY YIELD $3,000

Returns From 127 Stations Total $2,440—More Expected With Complete Reports.

"I haven't much in this world, and what little I have I don't expect I'll need long. In a week or two they say I'll have to submit to a surgical operation. I'm an old man and feeble, and no one knows what may happen. But I want to make sure that what little I have will go to help the women who stood shoulder to shoulder with us in the big war."
With these words a stooped and grizzled inmate of the Soldiers' Home handed Mrs. A. J. Montague yesterday a formidable looking legal document conveying to the Home for Confederate Women, in the event of his death, the title to a modest estate of $200—the accumulation of a lifetime. The old man had sought out Mrs. Montague at the Women's Home to add to his services on the field the final gift of his life's savings.
All remonstrances the veteran replied firmly that the State was now taking care of him in the fullness of his years, and that he needed nothing further. He was glad, he said, to aid as far as he lay in his power, a cause which the State has seemingly neglected.
The soldier is more than seventy years old and has only recently been admitted to the home. His bequest consists of a note secured by a mortgage on real estate, maturing in two years.

Buttons Not More Than $2,000.
With returns from 127 stations in 10 o'clock last night, the amount received from the sale of buttons totaled $2,440. Approximately fifty stations in the city had not turned in their reports when the compilation was made. These, for the most part, are situated in Fulton, Highland Park, Swansboro, Gwathmey and other outlying suburbs. No returns had been received from the stations in Ashland and Petersburg.
The boxes have averaged approximately $70 apiece, a circumstance which makes it more than probable that complete Button Day receipts will exceed $3,000. An average of less than $10 each for the missing boxes will insure that amount.
"I am more than gratified at the response with which our appeal has been met," said Mrs. Montague last night. "The city has been very generous, and in the name of the Home for Confederate Women, and particularly of the committee which has worked hard to make Button Day a success. I want to thank every one who contributed. Everybody has been kind to us—the business men who granted the use of their stores for stations, the officers of the city government, and especially, the newspapers."
Everybody Wore a Button.
An army of 1,000 women stood guard yesterday at 130 street corners, shops, hotels and railway stations, to see that no one was permitted to pass without the opportunity of buying a button. In the downtown sections groups of women and girls were at their posts as early as 8 o'clock in the morning.
To escape being approached by one of the button-sellers was a physical impossibility unless one walked through the alleys.
But no one sought to evade his duty. To begin with, the buttons were neat little affairs of celluloid, bearing a miniature reproduction of the Confederate flag—a design which appealed at once to every true Richmonder. A button on the lapel meant immunity and by noon eight out of ten men were immune. By 6 o'clock when the stations closed, the percentage of immunity had risen several degrees and the man without a button was a curiosity.
The Button Day committee which was in active charge of the campaign consisted of Mrs. John Mallory, chairman; Mrs. Mabel Walker and Mrs. A. J. Montague. The money collected will go into the general fund of the home.

HELD FOR TRIAL

Weinstein Alleged to Have Bought Goods He Knew Were Stolen.
Upon presentations of two detectives, Joseph Weinstein, a pawnbroker, of 314 North Sixth Street, was held for trial by Justice Crutchfield yesterday morning in Police Court on the charge of receiving stolen goods. His hearing was set for October 17, and a bond of $300 was posted by H. Ullman.
The specific charge against Weinstein is the purchase of thirteen suitcases, which, it is alleged, he knew to be stolen property. The bags were taken from the Richmond Trunk Manufacturing Company's plant, at 505 Brook Avenue, and represent only a small part of the thefts which have been made from that firm, according to the police.

DR. JOHN MONCURE DROWNED WHILE ON FISHING TRIP

The cold water. The negro was drowned.
A score or more of young people in boats not more than twenty yards from the scene of the accident heard their cries for help, but refused to render any aid. They calmly continued their fishing and witnessed the tragedy.
Two men who were more than a hundred yards away heard the cries and hastened to render assistance. They called the young people in the rowboats to go to the assistance of the drowning men. They replied that they "had ladies in the boat and that they could not swim."
Dr. Moncure, who was an expert swimmer, swam toward one of these boats and the occupants in it pulled away from him and later, when censured for not rendering aid, declared that they were afraid he would catch hold of their boat and capsize it.
Lost Control of Hanches.
After he had been in the water two or three minutes, Dr. Moncure seemed to lose control of his muscles and was unable to make a move. When drawn into a rowboat it was found that he was dead. An attempt was made to force the water from his lungs, but not a drop could be pumped out.
Just prior to starting out in the boat the man who owned it remarked to Dr. Moncure that he did not think it safe for him to venture out in the water alone unless he could swim.
Dr. Moncure laughingly replied that he had no fear, as he was an expert swimmer. The boatman replied, "Well, doctor, you know it is always the good swimmers who lose their lives."
Dr. Moncure and the negro went out quite a distance from the shore, when they dropped the boat's anchor over one side and began fishing. After fishing there for some time they decided to try their luck a little farther out. In attempting to draw the anchor up they capsize the boat and were thrown into the water.
Another Too Heavy.
An examination of the boat's anchor after the accident showed that it was much too heavy, and that the added weight of the two men on the same side of the boat caused it to overturn.
The bodies were placed on a hand-car and taken to Whitewater, where a brother of Dr. Moncure claimed the body and removed it to his home.
The people of the vicinity are very indignant over the action of the young people in the rowboats in refusing aid and legal steps charging them with criminal negligence may be instituted.

OBITUARY

M. F. Bates.
Lynchburg, Va., October 2.—M. F. Bates, a prominent merchant of Lynchburg, died at his home in that place this morning about 2 o'clock. He was about sixty-five years of age. Mr. Bates served Nelson County in the capacity of sheriff for a quarter of a century, retiring from that office about a year ago. He is survived by his wife, who was a Miss Kidd, and the following children: Mrs. John P. Swanson, of Danville, and Miss Mammie and Lula Bates, O. P. Bates, E. T. Bates, Atlas Bates and Berchard Bates, all of Lynchburg. Among several surviving brothers and sisters are Mrs. Lucy G. Vaughan, of this city. The burial is to take place in Lynchburg to-morrow afternoon.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Clifton Forge, Va., October 2.—Daniel Shaffery Lewis died here to-night after a brief illness. He was a son of ex-Senator John D. Lewis, of Rockingham County. He had been prominent in Republican politics and in the newspaper profession. Under President Arthur he was district attorney for the Western District of Virginia. For twenty years he was editor of the Spirit of the Valley, and later of the Harrisonburg Daily Times.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

LEADING SCIENTISTS TO VISIT UNIVERSITY

Symposium on Geography Teaching Will Be Held on October 12.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Charlottesville, Va., October 2.—Advances notice of the symposium on geography teaching, to be held by European and American scientists at the University of Virginia on October 12, are being sent far and wide in the United States. Indications are that this will be perhaps the most momentous scientific meeting ever held in the South.
The transatlantic excursion party is now enroute New Orleans. Professor William M. Davis, of Harvard, director of the excursion, stated in a letter received at the University of Virginia yesterday that the scientists, representing the most famous universities of Europe and America, will reach Memphis, Tenn., early on October 9. They will be met there by a number of geographers and geologists from the South and West, who will travel with them to Charlottesville to attend the symposium, to which also will be invited every teacher of geography in the South and representatives of the universities and colleges. The main theme to be discussed will be the status of geographical teaching in Europe, in order to show the serious attention there given to the fundamental subject of geography as a study of mature grade. Addresses will be made by the following:
Dr. Joseph Partsch, Gelsenrat, professor of geography, University of Leipzig; late president of the Geographical Society of Leipzig.
Dr. Eugen Oberhummer, professor of Geography at the University of Vienna; president of the Geographical Society of Vienna.
Lucien Gallois, professor of geography, University of Paris; associate editor of the Annales de Geographie.
George G. Chisholm, lecturer on geography, University of Edinburgh; secretary to the Royal Scottish Geographical Society.
Emile Chaix, professor of geography, University of Geneva and School of Commerce.
The speakers will be introduced by Professor Davis. The symposium will close with short addresses by Professor A. F. Brigham, of Colgate University, and Professor Mark Jefferson, of the State Normal College, Michigan.
Among the American participants in the excursion for both long and short distances are the following:

Harlan H. Barrows, associate professor of geography, University of Chicago; Isaiah Bowman, assistant professor of geography, Yale University; Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the Aretis Club; Albert Perry Bridgman, professor of geology, Colgate University; Robert M. Brown, instructor in geography, State Normal School, Worcester, Mass.; R. D. Calkins, head of department of geography, Central State Normal School, Mount Pleasant, Mich.; Frank Carney, professor of geology, Denison University, Granville, Ohio; Frank A. Churchill, professor, Rust Medical College, Chicago; Collier Cook, professor of geology, University of North Carolina; George L. Collins, professor of geology, Beloit College, Wis.; Thomas Cooper, assistant to the president of the Northern Pacific Railway, St. Paul, Minn.; Eugene C. Clegg, instructor in geography, Normal School, Duluth, Minn.; J. C. Ward, professor of climate, Harvard University; Edward K. Oster, dean of State Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kan.; Samuel W. Manly, geologist Wisconsin Geological Survey; Ray E. Whitlock, assistant professor of geography, University of Wisconsin; Frank E. Williams, instructor in geology, University of Wisconsin.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Lynchburg, Va., October 2.—Nearly 600 visiting merchants from three or four States were entertained to-night at the City Auditorium by the Hill City Council, U. C. T., who were operated with by merchants, bankers and manufacturers of the city.
D. Brown Ryland was toastmaster and the address of welcome was made by William King, Jr., president of the Board of Aldermen. The principal address was by Congressman Carter Glass, who spoke on the possibilities and advantages of Lynchburg. Andrew Spence, of Richmond, made a brief talk on the objects of the United Commercial Travelers. Following this, there was a number of brief, impromptu talks.
