THE HARDMAN PIANO

Is as beautiful to look at as it is beautiful to hear. At a glance the Hardman is recognized as a high grade piano, and when its rich, sweet, mellow tone is heard there can be no doubt of its quality.

It is these attributes that has made the Hardman the choice of so many noted artists, and the choice of those noted authorities should be your guide in the selection of a piano.

Send for handsome illustrated catalogue of Hardman and other high grade pianos.

WEATHER WORRYING GEORGETOWN'S TEAM

Men Want Fast Field, Believing That Blue and Gray Speed Will Defeat Virginia—Test at Cabin John Bridge.

Washington, D. C., November 14.—With only one day remaining until the University of Virginia football team will march on Washington to meet the Hilltoppers...

The big thing with the Hilltoppers now is the weather. Before leaving Georgetown University to-day members of the team and coaches alike, declared that if Saturday is dry, Georgetown would make Virginia look small, and that what they would do to the men from Lambeth Field would be a plenty.

Chief Willis Moore is certain for Saturday. One thing is certain if this official wants to hold his job under a new administration, it would be best for him to uncock the very best arid of weather to be had for Saturday's sport.

Too Rare in Richmond. Who has nearly described as chamber music formed the greater portion of the third concert of the Radcliffe Series at the City Auditorium last night, and strange as it may seem, it was the quietest of the series.

The Bostonian Sextette Club, consisting of two violins, a violin, a viola, a cello and a clarinet, offered a program of a character all too rarely heard in Richmond.

BULLET MADE HOLE IN JUDGE'S CHAIR

that they were going to try and get him to the "pen" and if they did he would show them how to shoot up the court, and if the judge did not get the verdict aside he would kill him first and then the other.

Ell G. Branscombe, another new witness, was deputy sheriff about three years ago, and as such held an execution against Sidna Allen the prisoner, and when he went to Allen's house to see him about it Allen said: "If it was not for my wife and children he would kill every man connected with the judgment and execution," and said "that he would shoot Judge Massey."

J. D. Hall, also a new witness corroborated the last witness as to the statement of Sidna Allen in his threats against Judge Massey and as to persons connected with the execution in the case of Branscombe, as deputy sheriff.

L. A. Lineberry, another new witness, said when Sidna Edwards was tried and sent to jail, Sidna Allen said "the wished they had sent him to the penitentiary instead of jail, and he would not have had to wait."

Cyrus Phibbs, engineer, explained the jury room from maps made by himself, showing different points and locations of the bullet holes, there being thirty-eight in the wall. During the examination as to the course of the various bullets, the court, on motion of the Commonwealth, directed the witness, with the assistance of an upholsterer, to take the back from the chair in which Judge Massey was shot, to show the point from which the bullet was fired.

On taking the chair apart, the bullet was found in the excelsior padding, and confirmed the theory that the shot came from Judge Massey's left, where the court officers stood.

T. S. Coulson, a witness, saw Floyd Allen and McMillin in front of the courthouse, and he said he could not get a fair trial, and if he did not would make the biggest hole in the court the ever saw.

The evidence of the witness was the same as in other trials.

Isaac Martin gave in about the same evidence as on preceding trials.

The prisoner's wife and children sat with him during the trial to-day.
