CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.

HOW EDWARD I. GOT HIS WEDDING GIFTS.

When King Edward I. of England was very sick he made a solemn vow that if restored to health he would undertake another crusade. When he recovered, however, Palestine seemed a long way off, and he compromised by driving the Jews out of one of his French provinces. Pleased with his success in this, he determined to try it on a larger scale, and banish the descendants of Abraham from England. So he issued a proclamation commanding all persons of Jewish descent to leave the country before a certain date, under penalty of death. He graciously permitted them to take along a very small portion of their worldly goods, and enough money to pay their traveling expenses. The rest of their property he appropriated to his own use and that of his friends. This brutal expulsion of the Jews he doubtless considered most timely, for shortly afterward his three daughters were married, and he was able to give each of them a grand wedding, and much jewelry of fabulous value.
