Affiliation Seems Certain.

A close affiliation between the American Legion, the G. A. R. and the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada, is the aim expressed in a resolution that the executive council of the Canadian organization recently adopted at Winnipeg. It was recommended that negotiations be opened with the American bodies. The resolution is to be presented to the Great War Veterans' association for approval, and it is believed that its adoption is certain.

Patriotism Is Normal.

No one may impugn the Americanism of the Upper Michigan peninsula without getting a rise out of Bossmer Post No. 27, which at a recent meeting adopted a resolution denying in unmistakable terms that the patriotism of that section was other than normal. The action followed a recent statement by a legionaire accusing the peninsula of harboring "alien slavers."

A Grateful Letter

It is in trying conditions like that related below by Mrs. Geo. L. North of Naples, N. Y., that proves the worth of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. "Two years ago last summer" she says "our little boy had dysentery. At that time we were living in the country eight miles from a doctor. Our son was taken ill suddenly and was about the sickest child I ever saw. He was in terrible pain all the time and passed from one convulsion into another. I sent my husband for the doctor and after he was gone thought of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the cupboard. I gave some of it and he began to improve at once. By the time the doctor arrived he was out of danger."—adv. 63-5w

Summer Complaint in Children There is not anything like so many deaths from this disease now as before Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say that fully ninety-nine out of every hundred cases recover. Mr. W. G. Campbell of Butler, Tenn., says "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for summer complaint in children. It is far ahead of anything I have ever used for this purpose."

LED TO FORTUNE

Pierre's Long Trail of Silver Tip Rewarded.

Determined Hunter Trained Bear Over Miles of Snow, and Finally Stumbled On and Killed Valuable Arctic Fox.

Of all fur-bearing animals, none is so highly prized by the trapper and patron as the silver fox of the arctic circle. So rare are they that hunters do not devote themselves exclusively to the pursuit, but the story of Pierre Baptiste of that far country is peculiarly thrilling, as it recounts how one of these animals fell before his trusty rifle while he was on the trail of a marauding bear which had been devastating his traps. The Hunter-Trapper of Columbus, O., tells the story, as reported by Robert E. Hewes.

"When Pierre Baptiste swore to trail Silver Tip down, he did so with a full realization of what he was swearing to do. But the fiery blood that ran in Pierre's veins when aroused knew no cooling till justice was done," says Mr. Hewes. "And so with his lips set firmly and a light of determination burning in his eyes, he took up the trail of Silver Tip—the sworn Nemesis of that outlaw of the North.

"Two hours later Pierre stopped. The last blur of the timber line had melted away behind him and on the north and on all sides stretched interminable snow. Pierre was sweating from his super-exertion and during the momentary rest his clothes froze to boardlike stiffness. His legs were dog-weary and even the weight of his rifle seemed tons, but still the bear's trail led on and on into those God-forsaken regions.

"After a while, Pierre began to lose sense of time. He just plodded doggedly ahead, his eyes glued to the bear's trail. He knew he was getting far, far into the arctic regions. That a bear should wander so far—again he marvelled. Pierre halted, dropped to his knees and stared at something. Hairs, he saw, that the jagged edge of the ice had pulled from the bear as he clambered over—but they were white!—white as the snow itself! He, Pierre Baptiste, was trailing a bear that knew no boundary of snow and ice. A chill wind began to creep over the snow wastes, and Pierre's snowshoes seemed to be tugging to drag him down. But had he not sworn to trail down Silver Tip?

"Within an eighth of a mile, Pierre saw something moving, a lumbering figure plodding over the snow, a figure brown-haired and with a silver nose—and a splash of white on the belly as the snow-dragged. A smile of grim satisfaction cracked Pierre's frosted features as he slipped off his mitten and raised his rifle to his shoulder.

"As Pierre pressed his cheek against the stock of his rifle he thought he saw something out of the corner of his eye that made him turn. He lowered his rifle and scanned the snow field on all sides, but as far as eyes could reach there stretched only the white barrens. The only living thing besides himself was that lumbering ball of brown. Something, the barest bit of a glimpse, had drawn his attention, but he saw no moving thing other than the bear.

"'Eet ees so ver' funny,' muttered Pierre, and prepared to raise his rifle determinedly. Then, on a ridge, and the color of the ice it moved against, he saw something move. One moment he stared, and his keen eyes distinguished the silver fox from its icy background.

"With steel-like steadiness Pierre raised his rifle and sighted. A spurt of flame cracked the frosty air and shattered the white silence into a million echoes. The next moment Pierre was stumbling madly across the snow to where a growing red blotch showed clearer than the fox. The trapper fell to his knees by the dead animal and examined it most reverently, running his fingers through the silky fur with the tenderness of a connoisseur. Fortune of fortunes! There was not even a blemish; the bullet had passed into the brain through the eye."

Explorers Will Travel Far. H. A. Snow, Oakland (Cal.) naturalist, accompanied by his son, Sidney Snow; Donald Keyes, a writer, and Frank S. Wilton, a camera man, are on their way from San Francisco to collect big game specimens and films of obscure native tribes in Africa and Asia.

They will join Leslie M. Simpson and Kenneth Quintinn in Africa, both Oakland men, who have been on that continent since May, preparing the expedition that the rest will join in Cape Town. They purpose to traverse Africa from the Cape to the Sudan, reuniting their journey by a boat trip down the whole length of the Nile. Thence they expect to enter Asia, returning to the United States by way of Siberia. They hope to obtain specimens of the Manchurian tiger.

Yakima Indians Run a Bank. At Wapato, Yakima county, Washington, is perhaps the only bank in the United States owned and controlled by Indians. The American Commercial bank in the center of the Yakima Indian reservation, was established about a year ago and is on a solid financial basis, doing an exceptionally good business. All of its officers and directors, with the exception of the cashier, are Indians.

TEN POSTS ADOPT ORPHANS

A. E. F. Men, Home Again, Show They Have Not Forgotten Fatherless French Children.

When the A. E. F. packed all its troubles in its old kit bag and sailed for home loaded down with German helmets, it left behind in France 3,000 little war orphans which it had adopted during the war and for whose maintenance and education it had been paying. There was hardly an outfit in France which at one time was not in communication with its tiny mascot, a communication of a delightfully friendly nature that shellfire, mud and cooties could not interrupt.

Now the A. E. F. is back home again and hundreds of thousands have enlisted in the ranks of the American Legion. Consequently, with the memories of the letters of petite Jean and petite Jeanette fresh in their minds, the one-time godfathers of the expeditionary forces are again adopting the war orphans of France.

So far ten posts have adopted orphans, and a heavy enrollment on the list of godfathers is expected. It costs only $75 to maintain an orphan for a year, the funds being forwarded to national headquarters in Indianapolis, where they are turned over to the American Red Cross, which is assigning the children and attending to all the details of the work on the other side.

Chronic Catarrh Our manner of living makes us very susceptible to colds and a succession of colds causes chronic catarrh a loathsome disease with which it is estimated that ninety-five per cent of our adult population are afflicted. If you would avoid chronic catarrh you must avoid colds or having contracted a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is highly recommended as a cure for colds and can be depended upon.
