

EXCLUSIVELY REPORTED.

Baptist State Convention.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

The Convention was called to order by the President, and at his request, prayer was offered by Rev. John Mitchell.

On motion, it was agreed to suspend the regular exercises of the Convention, and have a free conference on the state of the churches.

Following committees were announced by the President.

On special messages—Elders J. J. James, R. B. Jones and G. W. Purdy.

To fill vacancies in the Board of Trustees of Wake Forest College—Elders W. T. Brooks, R. H. March and Mr. Jas. Poter.

To nominate Baptists of the Convention—Elders John Mitchell, A. J. Emerson and N. B. Cobb.

On time and place for next meeting of the Convention—Elders R. R. Overly, T. B. Kingsbury and G. W. Purdy.

To select preachers for the next session of the Convention—Messrs. W. J. Palmer, Peterson Dunn and J. H. Foote.

The hour for adjournment having arrived the proceedings were closed with prayer by Rev. A. D. Cohen.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

The introductory sermon was preached to a large and attentive congregation at 8 o'clock, P. M., by Rev. J. B. Harwick, Pastor of the Baptist Church in Goldsborough.

The Convention was called to order by the President. The proceedings were opened with prayer by Rev. W. M. Young of Wilmington.

Rev. W. M. Young moved that a committee be appointed to consider and report on the action proper to be taken by the churches and associations, in reference to the colored Baptists among us.

An invitation was extended by W. J. Poter, Secretary of the Convention, to the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind to visit that Institution and witness some exercises by the pupils.

After prayer by Rev. T. B. Kingsbury, the Convention adjourned to listen to a sermon by Rev. F. M. Jordan of Orange County.

The number of delegates was considerably increased by arrivals since the last meeting.

Remarks of Messrs. Maynard and Botts in the Virginia Union Convention.

Hon. Horace Maynard, of Tennessee, was here called upon for a speech.

He said he was anxious to know what this gathering would do, what it would present, and he made up his mind to be present.

The Union men of the Southern States, he always believed, were far more numerous than generally known, or than was generally supposed by themselves.

He believed the Union element was as strong as ever in the South, when it referred to the masses of the people.

He was exceedingly glad to hear of an attempt to reorganize and gather together the scattered Union men, and thus once more strengthen the Union cause.

It was a very great mistake to think that treason and rebellion had triumphed, and would hereafter succeed. The leaders of those who had such views would go down to their graves unloved and forgotten.

Treason would be made odious, and crime would surely be punished, and the Government would be sustained.

Men who had stood faithfully by the Union, and were staunch friends of the federal government, would be respected and honored.

They could not tell him that treason would be made respectable, and he did not propose to suggest any line of action for the convention to pursue.

The members had wise heads, and would attend properly, he felt, to the matters which would be brought before the convention.

Hon. John Minor Botts, of Virginia, here arose and announced that he did not know whether he was a delegate or not.

He was a self-confessed rebel, and he had been no effort to select delegates made in Calpel County, and he did not believe any man in the County but himself would be seen in a Union meeting.

He determined to do the convention the honor to add one to the number of persons present.

A number of persons here said they cheerfully welcomed Mr. Botts as a delegate, and could vouch for his loyalty.

One of them said the fact that Mr. Botts was confined for some time by the rebel government in McDaniels' jail in Richmond, was the best evidence of his loyalty.

Santa Anna.—He Defines the Object of His Visit.—He Repudiates Maximilian and the French.

Gen. Santa Anna is still at Elizabethport, N. J., where, it is stated, he will remain for a few days longer.

The New York Herald of yesterday publishes the following account of an interview between one of its representatives and the General.

You wish to know the object of my unexpected visit, and I also wish to have it well and clearly understood by the great mass of Americans who sympathize with the struggle for the Republic.

I have no other object in view than to see the Republic in the last light, as I once saw at Vera Cruz, when I drove the invaders from the city.

For months past, in my quiet retirement of St. Thomas, I have been receiving letters from all parts of Mexico, and from friends and quondam adherents, but even from Mexicans who have been antagonistic to me.

Complaining of the utility of the efforts made by Mexican republicans to throw out the foreign yoke and Maximilian and his French usurpers from my native soil, and urging me to once more present myself as the champion of the Mexican people and the Republic.

There are many reasons why I cannot do so at this time, and I have no other object in view than to see the Republic in the last light, as I once saw at Vera Cruz, when I drove the invaders from the city.
