Copper Colored Splotches.

There is only one cure for Contagious Blood Poison—the disease which has completely baffled the doctors. They are totally unable to cure it, and direct their efforts toward bottling the poison up in the blood and concealing it from view. S. S. S. cures the disease positively and permanently by forcing out every trace of the taint.

I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These spots broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured. Before I became convinced that the doctors could do no good, I had spent a hundred dollars, which was really thrown away. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S. S. S. I was greatly improved and was delighted with the result. The large red splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger, and my appetite greatly improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass.

Wheat shippers on the line of the Northern Pacific have made application for a reduction of 20 per cent on grain rates for a period of sixty days to assist them in getting their grain on the market. It is urged that this reduction would cause a heavy movement of wheat and cause a large increase in the earnings of the road, even at the reduced rates. Although this application had not reached the offices of the company, the officials gave it out unofficially that there was little prospect of a reduction.

At about 6 o'clock fire was discovered in the rear of Bangs & Co.'s general store, in the clothing department, and, owing to the lack of fire protection, it was impossible to get the blaze under control and it immediately spread to the surrounding buildings. In two hours one of the main business blocks in the city was a mass of ruins, 12 buildings being destroyed.

BROME GRASS.

Value of Brome Grass as a Fodder Stated by Prof. Sheppard.

The value of Austrian brome grass as a fodder is something that interests stock raisers in the western part of the state. In view of the fact that land is being taken up and free range limited, stockmen will soon have to supplement their supply with forage plants. Prof. Sheppard of the Agriculture college says of the experiments that have been made: It is grown under cultivation in the interior region of Russia known as Steppes, a region which is a high, dry plain country similar to our own, with a more rigorous climate than we have in North Dakota. It has been grown at the North Dakota experiment station for nine years and has endured our climate perfectly during that time. It stands dry conditions well, making a good growth in Williams county, Stark county and upon certain light soils in the southern part of this state. Under correspondingly severe conditions in the Canadian provinces of Manitoba and Assiniboia it has made a splendid showing and is now past the experimental stage.

Beside a long list of cultivated grasses at this station, it has proved to be the earliest to start growth in the spring, leading all others by several days. It also shows green earlier in the spring than any native of the prairie. In autumn it shows the same disposition—remaining green correspondingly later than the native and other domestic grasses.

It forms a very dense sod, more dense than any other I have ever seen. It is also a very deep rooting plant. It produces a good yield of hay upon good land from one and a half to two and a half tons per acre, and I have seen some fine crops of it upon sandy and gravelly soil. The hay is equal to timothy hay in quality and is little if any harder to cure when cut.

The time of cutting it affects the quality similarly, but to a less marked degree than it does timothy. When timothy ripens its seeds the blades dry and its straw becomes harsh and woody, while brome grass leaves remain green. Brome grass cut high leaves a stubble with leaves enough to have some value for hay.

A pasture upon the station farm at Fargo which consists of eighteen acres of timothy and two acres of brome grass, has been pastured with cattle regularly each season for the past three years. The cattle have eaten off the brome grass much more closely than they have the timothy each year. This station has sent out several hundred pounds of the seed in pound packages to the different counties of the state for trial. Some of these trials have been reported upon, and I have reports from many persons who have obtained seed from other sources.

In a large percentage of these cases the experimenter has said: A pet lamb, a stray horse or a loose bunch of pigs have accidentally discovered the plot of grass and persisted in revisiting it until the ground was practically bare. I have seen horses in Williams county crop it off to the ground in the month of June in preference to prairie grass which was in good condition. In all of the above cases it should be remembered that the brome grass was offered in limited quantity and would be relished as variety, but it certainly proves that it is palatable and of good flavor. I have noticed that the brome grass remains green during dry weather when timothy dries up badly.

The price of seed is high at present, making the cost of seeding a dollar and seventy-five cents to two and a half dollars per acre. It yields a large quantity of seed and requires no extra machinery to handle it more than the grain binder or ordinary separator, followed by the fanning mill. That means, it seems to me, that as soon as the country is stocked with seed it will cost no more per acre to put land into brome grass than it does now to put it into timothy.

Headstones for Soldiers' Graves.

Dickinson Recorder: Capt. Auld has received notice from the quartermaster general at Washington that his application for a headstone for the grave of Corporal Harold Davis has been received and that the stone will be prepared and forwarded to him as soon as possible. There are many applications for headstones for deceased soldiers at this time, and as the different applications are rein getting out. It was dark and I carried Mrs. Walker to the fire escape window. Hand over hand we descended to the landing at the first story. There was where we had the hardest part of our experience. Thirty-five degrees below zero and nothing to protect us but our stockings and night clothes. It seemed an age ere the firemen braced a ladder for the last stage of our descent, during which time broken window panes, satchels and innumerable other articles falling from above showered about us.

"A brilliant comedy without coarseness."—From The Marquette Journal, January 23.

[First publication Jan. 19, 1900.]

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned will on the 24th day of February, 1900, present a petition to the governor of North Dakota, asking for the pardon of one Oscar Falck, aged 22 years, male, convicted of the crime of grand larceny at a term of the district court in and for the county of Burleigh and state of North Dakota, holden at the city of Bismarck in said court and date on the 25th day of May, 1899, and during the May term of said court, and sentenced on said day to the penitentiary at Bismarck for a term of four years.

could be found after having left Sullivan's saloon yesterday morning. Dan Sullivan was the first to become convinced that the men were beneath the ruins of the saloon and notified the officers last night of his conviction. The searchers were horrified to discover what appeared to be the charred remains of a human being. Willing hands quickly removed the debris and at 2 o'clock the remains of one of the unfortunate was hoisted from the cellar by friends. The body was identified as that of T. J. McAdam. Shortly after this the body of W. D. Kelly was raised and both were placed in a box and taken to the city hall to await the arrival of the coroner from Crookston. The night was the most dreadful ever experienced by the citizens of East Grand Forks.

GALLOWAY ROBES

WILL THE BONNY BLACK CAT TLE FURNISH THE FUR OF THE FUTURE?

Among the new enterprises that have lately come into our commercial life one of large and growing importance is the making of fine robes and garments from cattle hides, says W. E. Brown of Michigan. And now that the buffalo has passed from the plains and most of the richly furred animals from the forest the furrier must turn to cattle hides as one of the most desirable of his materials. To develop this trade we have only to remove the few obstacles which now retard it.

One serious trouble that we have had in the past in turning cattle hides into robes was that the cost of manufacturing was so great and the quality so poor on account of improper tanning as to limit the demand for the goods until the tanners turned to Chinese dog, wambat, goat, etc., and produced an inferior article, almost at a price that ought to buy a good robe. But with recent improvements in tanning the Galloway hide can now compete successfully with all others as material for robes.

The robe industry has grown up so recently that we have not yet learned to sell direct to the factory, but we sell our valuable fur hides along with the common stock for leather, and the middleman makes a leather profit before they reach the furrier or manufacturer, thus reducing the profit of the producer. Our association should keep furrers and manufacturers fully posted in regard to the names and locations of all breeders that they may be enabled to buy direct of the breeder and save this profit of the middleman.

Another trouble that tanners complain of is difficulty in getting hides of the pure bred Galloway. They complain that an intermixture of the blood injures the beautiful black and shaggy appearance of the hair, and, while they are willing to pay a premium over other cattle hides, ranging from 20 to 30 per cent for pure bred Galloways, they cannot even secure all of those that they need. So this industry may be greatly aided by breeding strictly the pure breeds. Another complaint made by tanners and which can easily be remedied by breeders is that barbed wire fences make scars on the hides that greatly mar them, and stanchions rub off the long, curly hair on the neck of the animal, which of course lessens the value of the hide.

An objection that has often been urged to a fur coat from a Galloway hide is that it tans stiff. The fact is that the improved processes make the hides soft as cloth. Another trouble to owners of fur goods is their liability to partial or total destruction from moths, but one factory has now developed a process of tanning from which they guarantee their goods against moths.

Another means of developing this industry would be to advertise more extensively and promulgate generally the facts that the robe from Galloway cattle outwears all other robes; that a robe from an imported skin, Chinese dog, goat and wambat is a very poor one compared with the product of our own hides; that a beautiful black robe for coat or other use can be tanned soft and pliable from our Galloway hides and that it can be made into a coat so that the fur will not wear off the edges, and the garment will preserve its perfect appearance for many years, and so tanned that moths will not touch it. I am told by manufacturers that our robes and coats are equally as good as the bear or otter, which are worth $75, while we are selling ours for $15 and upward.

From time away back, from the days when the Indian hunted along these shores, the warm robe from the beast has been the comfort of mankind, and in this fast age, when man discards the horse from his carriage and the wire from his telegraph, he still needs the fur robe. He will not discard that, and he demands the best in that line, and the best quality and price can now be found only in the Galloway herd.

GALLOWAY BULL.
