

How to Take Care Of a Pipe

BRIAR PIPES

To obtain the best results from a briar pipe and increase the pleasure of smoking, the following hints will be found of value:
Moisten the inside of the bowl, fill the pipe well, light the tobacco evenly, and smoke slowly. This will avoid excessive heating of the wood and will prevent it from burning. See that the tobacco is entirely consumed, so that the cake may form all over the inside of the bowl. Do not refill a new pipe until it has cooled off. Remove the cake which forms inside of the bowl, frequently, as if cake is allowed to become too thick it will split the wood, because, when heated, the cake expands more rapidly than the wood. Care should be taken when removing the cake to leave a thin crust next to the wood. When the cake has been scraped away the same care should be taken as with a new pipe. Always keep your pipe clean; this will prevent it from getting strong. Best of all, keep several pipes in use and change frequently.

MEERSCHAUM PIPES

It is no easy task to give directions that will insure the life and coloring of every meerschaum pipe. Much depends on the quality of the material, as also on the care exercised by the smoker. We would advise:
Always smoke slowly; use a meerschaum button; allow the pipe to cool before refilling; keep the hands away from the bowl while it is hot; use a top bowl if the smoker desires to color the pipe to the top; avoid smoking the pipe out of doors in rainy or extremely cold weather; uncrowd the mouth-piece only when necessary; that is, when the pipe is clogged and needs cleaning; use a knife with a rounded edge when it becomes necessary to remove the caking in the bowl; if cake is allowed to become too thick it may expand and crack the bowl.

Senate Passes Valued Policy and Temperance Commissioner Bills After Debate and House Kills Dual Office Bill and Passes Apportionment Bill ### HOUSE.

Several very important measures were acted upon in the house during the two sessions of the latter on Tuesday and perhaps the one more paramount than any of the bills acted upon was the apportionment bill as framed by the house committee on apportionment. It was adopted by a vote of sixty-nine ayes and twenty-four nays after a sharp and decisive debate; the members from the northwestern tier of counties being in the minority, their contention being that they were not getting a square deal on the basis of their population.

Another important measure, that went down in defeat was S. B. 4, the celebrated dual office bill, designed to prohibit a man from holding more than one office.

House Bills Third Reading.

A bill which was quickly disposed of was H. B. 232, making it a misdemeanor to tamper with, injure or obstruct electric wires in this state. It passed by a large majority.

Unsecured Deposits.

Mr. Simpson's bill providing for the creating of a fund by each of the state banks of this state for the payment of unsecured deposits in banks which may hereafter become insolvent, was not looked upon with favor and it failed of passage. Mr. Stevens opposed it because of unjust discrimination. Mr. Pugh said he should have to vote against it because it placed a premium on loose banking methods and also placed a premium on bank failures.

Mr. Gjed's bill providing for the organization of villages, towns or cities in territory embracing more than one county, passed.

Another bill which passed was Mr. Thoreson's bill relating to the bonding of certain officers.

Dual Officers' Bill Defeated.

Under special order, S. B. 4, a bill for an act relating to the qualifications of all state, county and city officers, was called up at the appointed time with Mr. Pugh in the chair of the committee of the whole. It was not long before the proponents and opponents of the measure were in the maelstrom of debate and the space beyond the bar of the chamber was crowded with interested listeners.

Mr. Buttz started the fireworks by moving that when the committee arise it recommend the bill for indefinite postponement. He said the bill originated in a local fight in Bismarck and should not pass.

Mr. Tofte moved as a substitute that when the committee arise it recommend the bill for passage.

Mr. Treat referred to the excellent work done in Fargo by a man who was an alderman and county auditor and there was no reason to legislate good men out of office simply because there were extraordinary conditions existing in just one city in the state and of which there were no pronounced complaints from any other parts of the state of similar conditions.

J. M. Anderson, the young man from Grand Forks, wanted it understood that local conditions in Bismarck well justified the passage of the bill—as it appeared to him the entire official bodies of city and county were composed of the same men.

Mr. Mockler after referring to local conditions said that the situation here had become so heated that a bet of $100 had been placed as to whether the house would pass the bill or not. He contended that the people were supreme rulers of the situation; if they wanted a man to hold one or more offices and they placed confidence in him to that extent they should have the right to say as to who should be their officers. The members had no right to come here and say who shall or shall not hold office. He asked his colleagues to be reasonable and not condemn the people of Bismarck as outlaws. Principles are right or they are wrong. In the elections for local officers in Bismarck there had been no opposing candidates. Bismarck was a good town and the people of the city loved their homes just in the same degree as the people of other towns loved their homes. True, there are dissensions; where are there places where such do not exist to a greater or lesser extent. He asked the application of the Golden Rule. If Ed Patterson is wrong, keep hands off and let the people run the town just as people elsewhere like to run their towns.

Mr. Casey declared that people have a right to elect a man for two offices if they see fit. Bismarck treated people right, no one has been harmed in the least. He urged broadness in the consideration of the matter, and that local conditions ought to be divorced when weighing the merits or demerits of the bill.

Mr. Twichell said that the dual office idea had worked to advantage in the city of Fargo and in the county of Cass. The services of Alderman Lewis and County Auditor Lewis, one and the same man, had been valuable in their different spheres. The speaker warned his colleagues that the passage of the bill may hurt the schools, for there are numerous instances where men make careful studies of both municipal and school affairs and make eminent success in the administration of both branches of city government.

Mr. Stevens said he appreciated the fact that in his opposition to the bill he was talking for a divided constituency. He pointed to the fact that the chief justice of the supreme court of the United States held two offices. In addition to being on the bench he was a regent of the Smithsonian institution. In the judiciary committee the majority were in favor of indefinite postponement. The argument that one man was on two boards of equalization had no effect; the work of the city board had to do with individuals, the county board equalized cities, towns and villages as a whole, individual assessments were not within their province. He knew of several towns where there were dual official conditions and he had heard no complaint from them. No city in the state of like population had progressed in a greater degree than Bismarck. He asked fair treatment and sincerely hoped that a blot or stain would not be put on the city. He had no concern for the Pattersons, Jewell or anybody else; his only concern was for the fair name of the city of Bismarck. Had any man, woman or child been harmed in any way during their sojourn here during the past sixty days?

J. M. Anderson of Grand Forks again jumped into the arena. He read some figures collected from the department of internal revenue which indicated there were thirty-four blind-piggers in Bismarck; that the question at issue was the last crying voice of "the old gang," it was the last crying voice of Alex, McKenzie and the McKenzie gang.

Mr. Streeter, with considerable warmth and shaking his finger at Mr. Anderson, said he had promised to vote for the bill, but after the remarks last uttered by the gentleman from Grand Forks he honestly felt himself absolved from the promise he had made and would now vote against the passage of the bill—he abhorred such tactics.

Mr. Piper said all Pattersons looked alike to him. He was decidedly opposed to the dual office idea and he considered that it worked to the detriment of Cass county and he quoted a number of figures in support of his contention. He cited unequal assessments in the city of Fargo; he quoted figures of insured values and assessed values.

Mr. Burdick with force contended that the power to select men for any office should be vested in the people. If a man is qualified to fill more than one office he should be left to the choice of the people; he should vote against the bill.

Mr. Stevens moved the adoption of the majority report, that the bill be indefinitely postponed, and the motion prevailed by a large majority.

Bills Introduced.

H. B. 325, Aaker—Concurrent resolution amending the constitution relating to revenue and taxation; exemption of property used exclusively for school, religious, cemetery and charitable purposes and personal property in value $200 each individual. Also provides for gross earnings of railroad companies.

The following bills were reported for passage by the several house committees on Tuesday: Nos. 305, 308, 313, 263, 250, 205, 278, 279. Senate Bills Nos. 255 and 67. Bills indefinitely postponed were: Nos. 246, 285, 126, 145, 257, 86 and 178.

DOWN THE RHINE

REV. HARRIS TAKES LARGE EXCURSION THROUGH SWITZERLAND AND DOWN RHINE.

DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL PROGRAM GREATLY PLEASURES BIG AUDIENCE LAST NIGHT

What is more delightful than a trip down the Rhine, with its historic memories, its ancient castles, grand scenery, or through that charming country immortalized in song, of "O, Switzerland, Thou Art So Fair." Such was the entertainment that delighted a large audience at the Presbyterian church last evening. It was one of those happy combinations of foreign travel and music that is always enjoyable to those who have experienced the joys of touring, as also to the expectant traveler who lives in pleasant anticipation.

The program opened with two very fine selections by Prof. Schulz' orchestra, followed by a cornet solo by Prof. Schulz in "Il Travatore," responding to an encore with "The Palms," both much enjoyed. Miss Ethel Moore accompanying on the piano.

The lecturer started his tour at the cathedral of Cologne and described its wonderful architecture and told of the many legends connected with its history—the course was down the Rhine to Bonn, the court was down the Rhine to Bonn, with its colleges; Coblenz and its system of fortifications, to the pretty village of Ems, famed famous in the opening chapter of the Franco-Prussian war; to Bingen and Frankfurt, with their ruins of castles, magnificent palaces, gardens and lakes, all made so realistic by the splendid recital of its history, from the days of the "robber baron" and the old legends connected with the poetry of the Rhine. The German tour ending with Heidelberg and the home of Goethe.

A quartette composed of Mesdames Winslow, Hinckley, Vandever and Quirk then sang that soul-stirring national hymn "The Watch on the Rhine," followed later by "How Can I Leave Thee."

The company was then taken through Switzerland to Geneva and the home of Calvin and Voltaire, Interlaken and Lake Lucerne, to Gothard and other places of interest, each being illustrated with colored pictures of valleys, mountains and glaciers.

Mrs. Grace Tubbs then sang "The Lorelei" in her ever sweet and pleasant manner, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Frances Smyth.

In their pastor, the Rev. C. W. Harris, the church has a splendid entertainer, who not only has had the benefit of travel in foreign countries, but has an observing eye, a retentive memory of scenes visited and the happy faculty of pleasing his audience in his word pictures.

WHAT THEY SAY

S. W. Derrick: I notice in Tuesday morning's paper that you say there are "over seventy cars of freight awaiting shipment at Garrison and the elevators have over 300,000 bushels of grain—about forty per cent still being in the hands of the farmers." I want to say that there are no cars of freight at Garrison awaiting shipment, that I am reliably informed there are but 240,000 bushels of grain in the elevators and that not more than 30 per cent of the crop remains in the hands of the farmers.

"Glencoe," by letter: Inclosed is a cutting from a weekly church paper, published in London, England, January 30, 1907. From it you will note under the heading of "deaths" the fact that of forty-four persons deceased in that month, eleven were aged 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96 and 97. Two were 82, one was 84 and two were 85. This appears to me, in this alleged "fast age" to be a wonderful record of longevity. Yours truly, GLENCOE.

Mr. Freeman of Bottineau county moved that the minority report be substituted for the majority report, that the bill do not pass.

Mr. Putnam moved the adoption of the majority report, that the bill do pass.

Mr. Freeman made an impassioned appeal for equity and fairness and boldly asserted that this bill was the most vital one of the session; it affected every man, woman and child in the state. He contended that the census of 1905 was
