Diplomacy and the Brute.

"Listen," said the girl as the woman came in from the party at 3 o'clock in the morning and stood at the head of her bed. "Do you hear her sob, the woman above? She has been sobbing like that for an hour. Now, listen to his big, gruff voice storming at her." "I'll put a stop to that!" the woman declared as she hurried out of the flat and on upstairs. "Well," said the girl when she had come down again, "what did you do—threaten him with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Wives?" "Not at all," said the woman. "I simply rang his bell and asked him if there was anything I could do for his wife. Wasn't she ill? We could hear her crying beneath in our bedroom, I told him. He thanked me and said there was nothing I could do. But you don't hear any more sobbing, do you?" —New York Press.

Webster's Compliment.

While it is well known that Daniel Webster in speaking of General Taylor's candidacy for the office of president pronounced it "a nomination not fit to be made," he never failed to do justice to the general's military abilities and eminent service in the field. On one occasion he paid the old soldier a delicate and well deserved compliment. General Taylor was complaining of the crowds of people who daily besieged him soon after his accession to the presidency. "They interfere," he said, "with my official engagements and violate my domestic retirement, but still I do not wish to turn my back upon my friends."

"You never did upon your enemies, general," Mr. Webster instantly replied.

Holmes on Domestic Economy. The laughable and the pathetic are sometimes strangely mingled in little exhibitions of domestic economy—a plate of apples, for instance, with the defective parts cut out for the children; a small basket of homemade gingerbread, with one or two pieces of poundcake carefully disposed on the surface so as to appear to the best advantage. —Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.

The Neighborhood Traveler. It is written, and the world believes it, that travel is the infallible, exclusive cure for provincialism. Perhaps! Ultimately that depends on what the man takes with him in his wanderings. Merely to go accomplishes naught. In the main, one need not travel at all. If the man with the common eye will but use his eyes he may bring all the world to him. The Alps and the Rockies are worth seeing, indeed, but the man who is capable of really seeing them, if among them, is capable also of beholding landscape and glory in his own neighborhood. —Booklovers' Magazine.

Wanted the Record.

A taxicab caught fire in New York. The flames reached the gasoline tank. The two passengers, who had come a long way, tumbled out. The fire department was summoned. "Play on the meter!" shrieked the distracted driver to the firemen. "Never mind the cab, play on the meter!" —Exchange.

Larger Wants.

"Does your wife want the vote?" "No. She wants a larger town house, a villa on the seacoast and a new limousine car every six months. I'd be pleased most to death if she could fix her attention on a small matter like the vote." —Washington Star.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF CONTEST. Serial No. 011377. Contest No. 882. Department of the Interior, United States Land Office, Bismarck, N. D., April 30, 1913.

To George McClure, the sole heir of Joseph L. McClure, deceased, Contestee:

You are hereby notified that John Engdahl, who gives Bismarck, N. D., as his postoffice address, did on April 2nd, 1913, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your homestead entry, No. 50, 19013, Serial No. 011377, made March 10, 1908, for the East half of the Southeast Quarter of Section 30, Township 141 north, Range 78 west, 5th Principal Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that Joseph L. McClure, who made said homestead entry, died about the fall of 1909, that said Joseph L. McClure was an unmarried man at the time of his death, that George McClure, his father, was his sole heir; that said George McClure, said heir or anyone else has not resided on said land since the death of said Joseph L. McClure, about the fall of 1909; that there is no dwelling house on said land; that said George McClure, said heir, or anyone else, has not cultivated or improved said land for more than two years last past and that said defaults continue to this date.

You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken by this office as having been confessed by you, and your said entry will be canceled thereunder without your further right to be heard thereon, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the fourth publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically meeting and responding to these allegations of contest, or if you fail within that time to file in this office due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail. If this service is made by the delivery of a copy of your answer to the contestant in person, proof of such service must be either the said contestant's written acknowledgment of his receipt of the copy, showing the date of its receipt, or the affidavit of the person by whom the copy was mailed, stating when and where the copy was delivered; if made by registered mail, proof of such service must consist of the affidavit of the person by whom the copy was mailed, stating when and the postoffice to which it was mailed, and this affidavit must be accompanied by the postmaster's receipt for the letter.

You should state in your answer the name of the postoffice to which you desire future notices to be sent to you.
