

HARVEY-On-The-Soo

By C. R. Weber.

Harvey, North Dakota, has long been known among the first cities of the state, and is still holding her own as a trade center and from a commercial standpoint, having some of the largest establishments and institutions of any city in the northwest. Harvey is located in one of the rich farming districts, of which North Dakota is so well noted for. The Soo railroad affords the best of accommodations in passenger and freight service alike, making it possible for the merchant to always keep his stock in the best of condition and have nothing but first class merchandise to sell his customers, and the customer realizes this fact, and continues to make this point his trading place, even if he may have to travel a few miles extra. He can be sure of taking the best home to preserve the health of his family, and bring up the healthy kind of children that have and will be a credit to the great state of North Dakota.

Harvey has every facility with which to make it the largest trading center of any town in the state, and not only the facility, but the men with the ability and energy to push it to the front rank. There is not another town in the state that can boast any larger amount of ready capital, ready at any time, to be put into action for the betterment of any condition that may arise. Harvey has long been noted for her enterprise and progressive feeling, and there are men in the town that are there to further the plans that would better Harvey.

Beautiful Houses.
You can find some of the most beautiful and modern homes in Harvey built from the best of material, and from plans that leave no question as to the builders' intention, and that is to make Harvey beautiful, and these citizens have succeeded in their efforts.

Large Wheat Market.
Harvey has for many years been the largest primary wheat market in the world. It has a population of 1,500, a division on the Soo railroad, has its own electric light plant, water system and has the best fire protection of any town in the state. It has not only the rich agricultural community to support it, but has a great future and possibility as a center for the greater part of commercial fuel, as there are veins that run twenty feet, and some of these are in fact under the city. Now remember, stop and think that the coal fields of North Dakota are not developed as yet. We have no idea of the great amount of the coal that is hidden beneath the surface of the state. We can only think of the possibilities and conger up what may be as yet, but this we are certain of, and that is that the state of North Dakota is only in her infancy and will be the greatest state in the Union.

New York may have her millions of factories and people, but can she boast of the resources that we can and then have the data to back these assertions up. What would the state of New York do if North Dakota's great wheat fields would dry up? There would be nothing doing, think of the enormous amount of wheat that is raised and shipped out of this state every year, the number of loaves of bread that the territory around Harvey would produce would fill every car of every railroad, and the hold of every ship in the world, and the bread basket of millions of wage earners in this country.

The Banking Institutions.
The banking institutions of Harvey are of the best and can be relied upon to extend the right treatment that has been necessary to all new localities, and would do the same thing over again and gladly. These banks are of the progressive kind, and men behind that have the ability to cope with the every day problems that arise and make the banker the busy man that he is. These banks are conducted on the same principle that any good institution is, the most stringent of banking rules that are only in force to the safety of the depositor's hard earned dollars. This is a feature of Harvey. Three of the best banking houses in the northwest are located here, and there has never been a time when either has been embarrassed from the shortage of capital to supply their many customers. The control is in the hands of men that have helped to develop this state into what it is today, and still at work upon the same plan of work. They had faith in this state when it was young, and now see that their faith was not unsound.

The First National.
The First National Bank of Harvey has been organized for thirteen years and has enjoyed a business that was theirs through their efforts to please and accommodate the people that yearly contribute, and have helped to build up the large banking business.

The officers are as follows: R. W. Adkins, president; W. W. Brant, vice president; Aug. Peterson, cashier, and J. J. Reimer, assistant cashier. Board of directors: John Jorgensen, O. L. Jensen, Jno. O. Hanchett, and the above mentioned officers. The capital stock paid in, $25,000; 120,000 shares, and deposits $28,185. The total resources of this bank are $32,035. The gentlemen that are at the head of this bank are all that the word may imply.

Bank of Harvey.
The Bank of Harvey is another of the substantial institutions of this territory, and holds the respect due any house that has built up the reputation of honest and fair treatment to all. They consider this district as their working territory and have always been ready at all times to extend the helping hand that at times is almost indispensable. These kind of friends are the kind that we are looking for and find few. Every man connected with this bank has the respect of the community and people have the knowledge that their hard earned savings are as safe as the bank as if they were in the United States treasury. The officers of this bank are as follows: S. S. Rentfrew, president; D. D. Heibert, cashier, and P. J. Reimer, teller. Capital stock, $10,000, and their deposit account is one of the largest in the state. You are cordially invited to call and learn more of the modern methods of this bank in conducting its business.

Responsibility of stockholders over one million dollars, always looks good to the prospective depositor, and that is what the German State Bank of Harvey has as an inducement to its depositors.

This bank does not believe you can ask for better treatment than they give you, and they guarantee satisfaction. Their capital is $50,000; surplus and undivided profits, $1,600; deposits, $6,000; loans, $55,000. The officers of this institution are all well known banking officials and have been connected with the banking interests of this state for a number of years. They are as follows: T. L. Beiske, president; J. W. Shelly, vice president; N. M. Runyon, cashier.

Rush for Home Flour.
When you ask the merchant of Harvey for the best flour he has, there is always a rush for either of the two brands—Harvey's Best or the Golden Rod, made by the merchant's best millers, the Harvey Milling Co.

This company manufactures the best high grade flour on the market today and can supply the merchant with any part of the state, upon very short notice, as the Soo railroad affords them very good service, and another thing, Mr. Merchant, take into consideration the fact that this flour is made in North Dakota and is a home product. And we should try to patronize the manufacturers and "home-made" houses of this state, as they are helping to build the commercial North Dakota as well as the farmer's building the agricultural state.

You are always ready to throw out inducements to the farmer to trade with you, now is the time to throw out inducements to the wholesale and jobbing houses and the manufacturers to locate in this state, thereby bringing the source of supply closer to you state, you will know that competition is not for fear of business, and the more of these houses you can get into your territory the greater your profits. Why? Because you can buy your stock at a smaller margin of profit; if you continue to send your business outside of the state, the large companies will continue to sell you the goods from their point and if you cut them out this result will be that in a short time the companies will put a branch house in, or new companies will organize and give employment to more people, and we could go on here for some time and tell you why and what the result would be. But will you patronize home industry, and if the other fellow wants to sell his wares, let him come across the North Dakota state line and be one of us all the time, let us not for a few moments at a time. Let us keep the money in the larger part of it, here and we will find an increase in population, business and more profitable employment for the working man. The company employs a large force of men year around, and when buying our next shipment of flour, remember that this is not for a few moments, your patronage solicited. The Harvey Milling company of Harvey, N. Dak. The officers of this company are: D. D. Heibert, president; S. S. Rentfrew, vice president; W. M. Homering, secretary and treasurer.

Hotel Cook. One of North Dakota's best hotels is located at Harvey on the Soo. Mr. L. B. Molander has conducted this popular hotel in a manner that has met with all the commercial and home demands. Eleven years of hotel business and every body satisfied is a record for any house or proprietor to swell up over and get just a little chesty over, and we won't blame him, either. Mr. Molander was formerly of Stillwater, Minn., and conducted a large clothing establishment there for a number of years, leaving a fine trade to come to North Dakota and grow up with the country, and says that it is good enough for him.

The Big Store.
When you are looking for a place to do your trading you will naturally try and find the big store. Harvey has this place and is run under the management of the farmers of this locality. Harvey's Farmers' Store, where you can find anything that any necessity may call for. A trial will convince the most prudent buyer that he has found the place to trade and always sure that the square deal is his. The men behind this establishment are all men that have done their share in making this section of the state what it is today, and are still at the same old stand, boosting for Harvey and everything that is or would be good for the locality. G. Singer, manager of this company for the last two and a half years, will meet you half way any time when it comes to trading with this concern, you will find him courteous and obliging, always looking out for the interests of his customers, and his company.

Hardware Firm.
The C. H. Blanding Hardware Co. of Harvey is one of the most complete stores of its kind in the state, carrying a full and modern stock of hardware, furniture, harness and sundries. Dr. Blanding opened this establishment to the public eleven years ago, and through his courteous treatment and square dealing has built a trade that could be envied by many. Mr. Blanding believes in keeping nothing but the best and always strives to live up to this standard and you best of his knowledge has since entering into the business, and we can further verify this by the enormous trade that is continually keeping his clerks busy. Honesty is his motto.

Attorney-at-Law.
Fifteen years of squaring other people's troubles and doing the job so they are satisfied, is the record that Henry F. Jessensen, attorney and counselor at law, has made for himself. Mr. Jessensen is one of the oldest attorneys in Harvey, coming here in the town's infancy, and has argued for many points for the betterment of Harvey and territory, a gentleman and a' that the word implies.

Auto Garage.
Now here are facts concerning one of Harvey's best auto garages. Thirteen years of service and no one hurt through the carelessness of their employees or themselves, and still doing the largest business of any auto garage in the state. This record is held by the Lesmeister Automobile Garage. Your car made just like new if these people do the work, as they employ nothing but skilled workmen that know their business. All work fully guaranteed.

Columbia Clothing Company.
When buying that new suit, or in fact any article that pertains to the man or boys' wardrobe, don't forget to see the fancy line of clothes carried by the Columbia Clothing company. Boys' and men's outfitters is right, and the best is always to be had if you will only give them a chance to serve you. Mr. Otto Zschunke, the popular manager, opened this establishment to the public two years ago and has been very successful in establishing a trade that any store would be proud of. Mr. Zschunke knows the clothing business from A to Z, and can dress you up until John D. would feel like thirty cents. A trial will convince you we are right. Enough said.

Steam Laundry.
We want to congratulate Harvey on one big count and that is the steam laundry they have. We have some business with these establishments and wish to say that Harvey has one of the best in this section of the state. Mr. Victor J. Kardell, the proprietor, can recommend his laundry to anyone who has a chance to try it. There are none better, and we will verify the statement. Don't forget the phone number when wanting good work done. Just call No. 60 A and they will do the rest. They know how.

Harvey is noted for the complete stocks carried by her merchants, and when you find the article that you want, you are certain that it is the best that money can buy.

Chicago Clothing Store.
The Chicago Clothing Store is another one of the up-to-date stores that Harvey can be proud of. You will find their shelves loaded with the best that the manufacturers produce—hardware, groceries, saddlery and furniture. Mr. Julius Sgutt, the manager and proprietor, opened this mammoth store to the public sixteen years ago and through his efforts to please his many customers has one of the largest trading houses in the city.

Aloys Wartner, Attorney.
For real estate and loans do not forget Aloys Wartner the popular attorney. He can show you some of the choicest pieces of land in this section of the state, and what is more, the price is right. Mr. Wartner knows this district from A to Z, and when you tell you anything you can depend upon it being right in every respect. Mr. Wartner is also one of the leading attorneys of this locality, so when trouble troubles you just drop in and have a talk with him and you will be on the right trail. We know.

Barber Shop.
When you want a first class shave and hair cut, don't forget the place. Peterson's barber shop, on the corner of the up-to-date shops, is being found west of the city. Five years of pleasing the male population of Harvey is record enough for anyone to satisfy the fact that this is the place to have your next work done.

"Creators of Concentrated Joy."
Henderson's, creators of concentrated joy in the form of incomparable fish and oysters season, repur, and sundries in service, scintillant fruitfully, cooling confections, their ice cream and sundries are prepared from material purified purity, and of flavors found with fragrance of sun-kissed fruits and dewy blossoms, the fairest of Pomona's offerings. Fit for a Duchess—sold for a dime, you will find this to be one of the best and most up-to-date stores of its kind in this part of the state. Follows, get wise, if she says she is through with you, a visit to Henderson's will change her feeling. A try won't hurt.

Meat Market.
Another one of the large enterprises located in Harvey is the Harvey meat market, Eberlein & Wolfs. Wholesale and retail dealers in fresh, salt and cured meats, poultry, fish and oysters season, repur, and sundries. Eberlein & Wolf located here about five years ago, and deal in everything that pertains to the meat business and live stock. Their shop is one that Harvey should be proud to have, as good clean meat-shops are few and far between. This is an exception. A visit will convince you we are right.

Good Jeweler.
C. H. Nesbitt, the popular jeweler of Harvey, has the right to be considered one of the pioneer business men of the city, having established his business here at that time. Mr. Nesbitt is also the watch inspector for the Soo railroad for this point. You will find a complete line of watches, clocks, cut glass, diamonds and other articles too numerous to mention. If you are looking for good goods, you will find the best here. Watch and clock repairing a specialty.

Pool and Billiard Hall.
When looking for recreation don't forget you have one of the finest pool and billiard rooms in the country in your city. You can spend a half hour of this pleasure and feel like a new man, free from the toil of the office, and a clear mind. In addition, tobacco, cigars, soft drinks and confectionery, all at the A. J. Peyton billiard parlors.

Not a Knocker.
When we think of a Hammer we think of someone knocking. Well, this is not the case this time, as Mr. Hammer is the leading merchant, dealing in everything for the horse. Harness, flynets, blankets and saddlery. In connection you will find a complete line of traveling necessities equal to anything in the country. Remember the place—Hammer's.

Machinery.
When looking for the best in farm machinery, just drop into the Benz & Broders' implement establishment and they will show you all the latest machinery that the up-to-the-minute farmer would want to use. You will find anything from the small garden rake to the threshing and engine. A trial will convince the most prudent buyer that he has found the right place to deal and always get just what he wants. Now don't forget the place to get that next new piece of machinery—Benz & Broders.

Photo Studio.
Lee's Photo Studio, the only place in the city to obtain the best in photography. Twelve years of successful operation has placed Mr. Lee in a position to handle your work and give you your money's worth. Snaps photos made into life size, and in fact every kind of photography; work strictly done.

When it comes to the neatest and most up-to-date drug store that we have in the city, you will find it at the Harvey Drug store. Mr. H. C. Otto, the popular manager, has done everything that would make it convenient for his customers, prescriptions promptly filled. Drugs and all drug sundries, books and stationery are to be found at this popular store. A complete line of everything carried.

Harvey Herald.
The Harvey Herald Printing company, publishers of the Harvey Herald, and one of the best advertising mediums in the state of North Dakota. Special attention given orders from out of town parties. The best of job work neatly done, in English or German. They guarantee satisfaction. You don't want your subscription cut off from one of North Dakota's leading papers. And again you can't afford to have this thing happen, so send in and know what is going on outside of your own locality, as the Herald prints all the news of the world.

The officers of the Harvey Herald company are as follows: C. B. Thomas, president; F. E. Thomas, secretary; A. A. Vetsch, treasurer. Several of the news of the state and world has made the Herald almost indispensable to the modern man of affairs and the progressive farmer.

Big Grain Market.
The city of Harvey will stand as one of the largest grain market places of the world for all time. This "best year" nearly a million bushels of grain came into the elevators of this town, a record that any city in the world would be proud to have. Mr. Reader, could you imagine a million bushels of grain, oats, wheat and other grains that we raise in this state, being piled in one pile some place? This could not be conceived of because the amount is too large to even think of, still that is the record that your town holds, and held the name of being the largest primary grain market in the world for a number of years. Remember Harvey on the Soo is known from coast to coast and then some, then the question, where is Harvey? Why the little negro boy in Africa would tell you in North Dakota. We will give you a list of the elevators that participate in the handling of this enormous crop of grain each year. They are as follows: Harvey Farmers' Co-operative Association, dealers in grain, coal and agricultural implements, established in 1904; Fred Rasmussen, president; J. F. Traust, secretary, and Wm. Wright, treasurer. Bought 200,000 bushels, 1912. Mr. Wm. Lamb has managed this large business for the last five years. Mr. Adam Schupaker has taken care of the enormous amount of grain that has been bought and sold at this house for eight years. Some records.

General Merchandise.
Superior drills, Old Hickory axons and the Clark vehicles. Also the Avery line of threshing and plow outfits. This company bought 72,000 bushels of grain for the last year's business. Mr. Weber has only been in Harvey for about a year, and says that it is good enough for him and guesses that he will stay a while.

General Merchandise.
Gackie Billingsmer, everything in merchandise, dry goods, boots and shoes, groceries, hardware, stoves, ranges, furniture and harness. Their elevator bought over 126,000 bushels last year. Going some, eh? Mr. Billingsmer is manager of the grain end of the business; they also carry a large stock of the best machinery in connection with their elevator.

Christ Boettcher has been in the grain business at Harvey for the last six years and has made his residence here for eleven years. Mr. Boettcher deals in grain, wood and coal, and bought 100,000 bushels last year. You will do well to see him before selling your grain.

Osborne-McMillan Elevator.
The Osborne-McMillan Elevator company, one of the old line elevators in this state, have a branch here and they have done their share to make Harvey the grain center that it is, having bought over 90,000 bushels. This company is one of the strongest elevator companies in the northwest, having many houses doing a leading business wherever they are located. Mr. Gottfred Schimke, the local manager, has been located at this station for about a year, and says that he just seems to take to Harvey or Harvey to him, and he does not know which, but which ever way it is, he is satisfied.

The John Miller Co.
The John Miller Co. bought about 70,000 bushels of grain last year, through their manager, H. F. Kamps. Mr. Kamps has resided in Harvey for about eleven years and has been connected with the Miller company for six years. You will find him to be a man that will give all a square deal. Mr. Kamps can be counted among the old settlers of Harvey, and knew a good thing when he saw it, and stayed long enough to see Harvey grow into the prosperous town that it is today.

Another Elevator.
Then Rentfrew and Huff Elevator company has surely done their share of business for the past year, having bought something like 150,000 bushels of the product that has made North Dakota famous the world over. Mr. Rentfrew has been in business for the last twelve years in Harvey and is one of the pioneer merchants of this territory. In connection with the elevator business, Mr. Rentfrew is agent for the two best makes of autos in the state, the Buick and Hupp, and one of the best garages in this county.

Harvey Lumber Co.
Harvey Lumber Co. stands for everything in the building line, from the shingle nails to the best of finishing lumber. This company is successor to the Bogges Lumber Co. J. A. Fredericks, manager of the company, came to Harvey about four years ago and thinks there is no place just like Harvey, or the good old state of North Dakota, and when it comes to the act of boosting for his home town, Harvey sure has some boosters. In connection with the lumber business, you will find all the best grades of coal for sale, at the lowest price. A trial will surely make you continue to do your lumber and coal business at this yard.

Oliver for Harness.
Are you going to buy a new set of harness soon? Well, if you are, just take a tip from us and see J. D. Oliver. He has some of the finest horse goods to be had and the best price. A trial will surely make you continue to do your harness and harness business at this yard.

Blacksmith Shop.
One of the best equipped blacksmith shops in the state is located here, having all the latest machinery with which to turn out the kind of work that brings satisfaction to the user, and makes the maker popular as a shop man. Mr. Ole Larson settled in Harvey fifteen years ago and made the remark that anybody that was not satisfied with Harvey would not be satisfied when they got to the pearly gates on high. So get wise, you few with a kick coming, and fine out what is the matter with you. It is not with Harvey. Mr. Larson is among the first business men to establish a business here and he had right to know whether it is Harvey or you, and when he says you it means you to us; we believe him.

A quiet half hour will rest those weary bones and make a new man out of you. Don't forget the place—the J. E. Roland Pool and Billiard Hall. The best of tables, and if you do not play the game, come in and watch the other fellow play. This parlor has the name of being one of the best in the state and enjoys a large and profitable business.

Going to Build?
Are you contemplating that new house or barn? If so, do not forget to get the Langworthy Lumber company's figures on the material. They are pioneers in the lumber business and will be willing at any time to give you an estimate, as to cost of any structure, from the main frame of the house. They carry one of the most complete lines of lumber of any company in the state.

In Conclusion.
In conclusion we wish to say something about the early history of Harvey as to the time of platting the town, etc. Mr. F. J. Herd, the original owner of the land, proved up on this claim, and sold it to the Soo railroad May 22, 1894, and on June 23 the city plat was made, and filed at the county court house. The Minnesota Loan and Trust company placed the lots on sale July 2, 1894, and as a result one of the best cities in the state was created, and the state is proud to have a Harvey in her boundaries. Let us have more Harveys.

VISITING OLD HOME.
Judge W. P. Costello has left for his old home at Graceville, Minn., where he will spend Christmas holidays with relatives and friends. The judge expects to visit points in Tennessee, where he has real estate investments, during his absence, and, before returning home, he will visit at New Orleans.

A Mean Man.
"I never was so embarrassed in my life. I came face to face with my first husband."
"What did he say?"
"Nothing much. He just looked up at me and smiled and then said, 'Who are you nagging now, Mary?'"—Detroit Free Press.

Woodpecker's Waterloo.
"That woodpecker may be persistent, but I think he's beaten this time."
"What is he trying to do?"
"Drill a hole in an iron trolley pole."—Pittsburg Post.

Wrestling With a Razor.
"Little Minnie—Oh, mamma, what's that dreadful noise? Mamma—Hush, darling, papa's trying to save the price of a shave."—Puck.

THE ILLUSTRIOUS DEAD OF THE NATION THE PAST YEAR

New York, Dec. 26.—In looking back over the toll of the months which make up the year now nearing its close, it seems as if death had exacted an unusual harvest from the ranks of men who had attained, for one reason or another, special prominence in the theater of the world's activities. Of course, no year passes without leaving an impressive necrological roll, but the one about to take its departure has made some rather startling erasures from the scroll of living fame.

Two rather interesting facts serve to distinguish the death list of 1913 from those of most previous years. The first is that the names of comparatively few women are included, and the second is the almost total absence of deaths by violence. The only person of world-wide prominence who met a violent death during the year was King George of Greece, who was assassinated by a fanatic. The American world of finance and industry has made distinguished contributions to the mortality record, that of J. Pierpont Morgan naturally attracting the greatest measure of public attention. Other notables in the list were Henry M. Flagler, the Standard Oil magnate and railroad builder; Adolphus Busch, the St. Louis brewer; Edward Morris, one of the heads of the Chicago meat packing industry; James R. Keene, famous as a Wall street speculator; Anthony M. Brady, lighting and traction magnate, and Benjamin Altman and Robt. C. Ogden, New York merchants.

In addition to Mr. Morgan and Mr. Flagler, both powerful factors in the railroad world, there passed away during the year a number of prominent railroad executives, active or retired. These included William W. Finley, president of the Southern Railway; Roswell Miller, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul; Thomas M. Emerson, president of the Atlantic Coast line; James McCrea, former president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Horace G. Burt, former president of the Union Pacific, and J. R. Parrott, president of the Florida East Coast railway.

The army and navy also have sustained serious losses, including Lieut. Col. David Du Bose Gaillard, who directed the Culbreth cut engineering work on the Panama canal, besides several other well known general officers. Eight rear admirals, active or retired, have joined the great majority. Great Britain lost her famous soldier, Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley, and Admiral Sir Archibald L. Douglas, former lord of the British admiralty. France lost Gen. Andre, her former war minister.

Royalty made few contributions to the mortality record of the year. With the exception of George I. of Greece, no reigning monarch in Europe died during the twelve months. The Dowager empress of China passed away and Menelik of Abyssinia was again reported dead. The British nobility lost the Duke of Abercorn and the Duke of Sutherland, the latter one of England's greatest land owners.

Death deprived the College of Cardinals of five of its members, among them Cardinal Oreglia, the dean of the Sacred College, and the famous Cardinal Rampolla, the former Papal secretary of state. The most notable loss in American church circles has been the Rt. Rev. William Crosswell Doane, the venerable Episcopal bishop of Albany. Other deaths recorded among American churchmen are those of two Catholic bishops, Hogan of Kansas City and Kenny of St. Augustine.

Some of the deaths, however, were not unexpected. John Fritz, inventor of the lamp that he played in the development of the iron and steel industry in the United States, had passed his ninetieth year. So had Alfred Russell Wallace, the famous British scientist. Earl Nelson was in his ninetieth year and Sir Richard Scott, senator and long a prominent figure in Canadian public affairs, was eighty-eight.

From the ranks of politics and diplomacy have been taken many figures of national or international prominence. Here again, however, the list of mortuary rolls is far in excess of that of the United States. The great majority of American statesmen and diplomats who passed away during the year had previously retired from the arena of public affairs. The most notable exceptions were William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York city; Jeff Davis, United States senator from Arkansas; Gen. Joseph P. Johnston, United States senator from Alabama, and Timothy L. Woodruff, former lieutenant governor of New York and later a leader of the progressive party.

Frank S. Black, ex-governor of New York and at one time an influential figure in republican politics, was included in the mortality record of former governors. Others were William J. Northern of Georgia and Gen. Samuel J. Crawford, who was the civil war governor of Kansas.

Under the head of diplomats may be placed the name of Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, who was the American minister to Spain at the beginning of the Spanish-American war. Among the serious losses sustained by other countries were Viscount Hayashi, Japanese statesman and diplomat; Prince Aoyama, three times premier of Japan; August Ferdinand Debe, the German socialist leader; Emile Ollivier, former premier of France; Edouard Lockrov, French statesman and writer; Sigismundo Moret, former premier of Spain; Rt. Hon. George Wyndham, former chief secretary for Ireland; Alfred Lyttelton, former secretary of state for the Colonies in the British ministry; Baron Fava, former Italian ambassador at Washington; Gen. Nicholas de Pierola, former president of Peru; Tancredi Auguste, president of Hayti; Dr. Mamel E. Arraigo, president of Salvador; Manuel Bonilla, president of Honduras; Dr. Theodor von Holta, former German ambassador at Washington, and St. John Gordon Sprigg, four times premier of Cape Colony.

In the ranks of the law, science, education, art, journalism and general affairs, the vacancies have been numerous and many of them conspicuous. Henri Rochefort is perhaps the best known representative of journalism and Alfred Austin and Joaquin Miller of the world of letters. American literature also lost Charles Major, one of the most popular of the modern novelists.

E. M. Holland and Aubrey Boucanau, the two best known of the modern novelists, were perhaps the most noted players who passed away during the year. Other losses sustained by the American stage were Della Fox, the light opera comedienne, and George Thatcher, the veteran minstrel.

The educational world is represented in the mortality list by Dr. Andrew S. Draper, commissioner of education for the state of New York and former president of the University of Illinois. The art of painting lost Sir Alfred East, president of the Royal Society of British Artists, and American sculpture Louis Saint-Gaudens and Franklin Simmons. Distinguished representatives of the legal profession were Lord Gorell, the eminent British jurist, and Henry Billings Brown, former associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. Among the scientists may be mentioned Dr. Lewis Swift, noted astronomer, and Prof. John Milne, the English authority on earthquakes, in addition to the famous veteran Alfred Russell Wallace.

The fields of distinction are multiplying and broadening and fame follows her gallants for an ever increasing number. Thus, when the Reaper appears, the swath must be a constantly widening one.

In a lone but unclassified list of the dead of the year may be mentioned the names of the following: Congressman Timothy D. ("Big Tim") Sullivan, a unique figure in the political life of New York city; Charles Teller, the discoverer of the cold-storage process; and Aubrey (Sig. John Lubbock), who was equally distinguished as a parliamentarian, banker and writer. Carl Harenbeck, the world's most noted animal collector; James Farley, who achieved wide notoriety as a strike-breaker; Bernard Quaritch, the London dealer in rare books; James Ross, one of the builders of the Canadian Pacific railway; Lady Dorothy Nevill, noted for her published reminiscences; Gen. J. H. Kioo, civil war veteran and noted Indiana fighter; Rosa Sartor, sister of Pope Pius X.; Thomas A. Sperry, founder of the trading stamp business; Bradley Martin, a well known social leader in New York and London; Sir George Orby Wombwell, the last of the officers who took part in the charge of the Light Brigade, and Harriet Tubman Davis, an ex slave who was known as the conductor of the "underground railroad."

TOM CASEY HERE.
Tom Casey, the Washburn real estate man, came down last evening and is at the Grand Pacific.
