Expert Watch and Clock Repairing

Our department of repairs has special facilities for handling the most complicated watches or clocks.

Our workmen are thoroughly experienced, and we employ no apprentices. Our workshop is located at the back of our store, as a workman can't do good work if disturbed by having to wait on customers.

Our prices, like our work, will please you.

Detective at Miami Made Arrest With Flying Boat After Aerial Ride

Overtook Vessel After Leaving Port and Recovers Woman's Brooch

Miami, Fla., March 30.—Flying 21 miles in an aeroplane, Harry Schade, a detective of this city, overtook the steamship Miami after she had left this city and, boarding her, arrested a negro hotel employe, recovered a missing brooch belonging to a woman prominent in New York society, then flew back to this place with his prisoner.

The owner of the brooch, who is stopping at the Royal Palm Hotel, reported its loss several days previously. Efforts to find the ornament by the hotel management and detectives were unsuccessful. It was determined to watch the employe of the house.

It was not until the vessel had steamed that the presence of the negro aboard was learned. Wireless messages to the captain of the Miami confirmed the report that the negro had taken passage. It was also learned that the Miami was detained off Cape Florida by low tide.

Despite the drizzling rain the vessel was overhauled in less than half an hour. Witmer dropped to the water alongside the Miami, and leaving Hallett to guard the flying boat went on board with the detective. They found the negro, who was placed under arrest without resistance, and was lowered to the waiting aeroplane which immediately ascended with its pilot and three passengers, quickly making the return voyage to Miami.

A search of the prisoner resulted in the recovery of the brooch from his person. The ornament was restored to its owner. Schade learned, however, that he acted without due authority in arresting the man outside the three mile limit of shore. He, therefore, released the prisoner.

TWO ROUND OUT 50 YEARS IN SERVICE

Secretary McAdoo Sends Congratulatory Letters to Thomas C. Bailey and T. C. Keene.

Washington, March 30.—Half centuries of public service, just completed by two employes of the Treasury Department, were the occasion of congratulatory letters to them from Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department. The two employes so honored and remembered are Thomas C. Bailey, eighty-three years old, and Thomas P. Keene, who has three quarters of a century of life behind him.

The congratulatory letter of Mr. Bailey reads: "My Dear Mr. Bailey: Auditor Woolley has called my attention to the fact that you completed, on March 21, 1914, a half century of service to the government, and that notwithstanding the fact that you are eighty-three years of age, you are auditing the heaviest of the Indian accounts and doing it with great satisfaction to the auditor."

Please allow me to send you my hearty congratulations and best wishes. I hope that you may long be spared to serve your country and that each year may bring added happiness and renewed vigor and health."

In his letter to Mr. Keene, Secretary McAdoo wrote: "My Dear Mr. Keene: Auditor Woolley has called my attention to the remarkable fact that, although you are seventy-five years of age and a veteran of the civil war, you are discharging your duties in connection with the auditing of the complicated Indian accounts with full mental vigor and complete satisfaction to your chief, and that you have recently completed fifty years of service to the government."

OLD PRISON KEEPER DEAD. New York, March 30.—James Connaughton, who for thirty-one years was principal keeper of Sing Sing prison and who had been connected with the prison for thirty-eight years, has died at his home in Ossining, N. Y.

He was appointed a keeper at Sing Sing June 10, 1876, and was assigned to duty in the laundry, which was at that time considered the most difficult post in the prison. He soon won the recognition of his superiors, and was appointed principal keeper in April, 1883. He served under nine wardens. He was a prison keeper of the old style, and did not believe in modern methods. He was not in favor of the honor system, and was opposed to granting favors to the men.

KENTUCKY FEUDISTS TO BE TRIED

Winchester, Ky., March 30.—Another chapter in the history of the Breckinridge county feuds will begin here on Monday when a special term of the Circuit Court will convene for the trial of fourteen defendants, charged with the assassination of former Sheriff Ed. Callahan of Breathitt county. Callahan was assassinated in 1912 and the cases of those accused of complicity in the crime have been dragging through the courts ever since. Several have already been convicted and at the special term of court next week decision will be given on the motion for new trials in their cases.

QUIMET SEEKS NEW WORLDS TO CONQUER

Boston, Mass., March 30.—The thousands of American golf enthusiasts will wish success to Francis Quimet, the American open champion, when he sails for England next week to take part in the British amateur championship tournament.

Quimet will not be the only American player who will make a bid for the British title in the great tournament to take place on the Sandwich links in May. Other Americans who are scheduled to take part are: Jerome D. Travers, the holder of the national amateur title; Fred Herreschoff, twice runner-up in the national amateur championship, and Schmidt Lockwood and Marston, all crack performers on the links.

In this galaxy of American stars young Quimet is pretty sure to receive the most attention on the other side. His name has been as familiar in England as in this country ever since he defeated Vardon and Ray, the famous English professionals, in the national open tournament, last fall.

Vardon and Ray, the pick of the world's professional golfers, came over from England last summer and toured America, meeting all comers. What they did to the "all comers" was little less than brutal. All the two pros had to do was to walk out on the links, turn around and walk right off again, incidentally taking with them the winner's share of the prize money.

Then came the open championship tournament at Brookline, Mass. It promised pure soft money for Vardon and Ray, but the promise failed of fulfillment. The pair of veterans showed great stuff from Tuesday till Friday of tournament week and looked like sure winners. But after Friday's play they found themselves tied for the title with Quimet, a mere boy in years, and who had gained his first experience on the links as a caddy.

The triple tie was played off on Saturday. Quimet, eager for the fray, jumped right out, hustled over the course, turned in a card of 72 and was home eating his supper before the two English wonders realized they had been defeated. In recognition of his brilliant performance that day Quimet was presented with a gold medal, inscribed: "Francis Quimet, open champion, after tie with H. Vardon and E. Ray. The Country Club, Brookline, Mass., September 19, 1913."

So it is not to be wondered the devotees of the game in the British Isles are eagerly awaiting an opportunity to give the young victor the "big one."

Francis Quimet was born in Brookline, Mass., May 8, 1893, of French-English parentage. He learned his first golf at the Country club of Brookline, where he worked as a caddy in 1907. He won his first prize in 1909, when as a high school student he won the interscholastic title. Two years later he quit school to engage in business and thereafter his golf practice was confined to Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

On his Saturday afternoons Quimet won more golf honors than any other player in Massachusetts. He played without practice on links he had never seen before and in the majority of his tournaments he captured the premier honors against a field of the State's best players.

For three successive years Quimet tried to qualify in the national amateur tournament and failed. Last year he qualified in the final event, but was defeated in the finals by Jerome D. Travers, the title holder. Travers is quoted as saying that his match with Quimet was the hardest tussle he had on his way to final honors.

FOSDICK MAY HEAD NEW YORK POLICE

New York, March 30.—With the elimination of Col. George W. Goethals as a possible appointee as commissioner of police the names of Raymond B. Fosdick, ex-commissioner of accounts and an authority on theoretical police administration; Arthur Woods, a deputy police commissioner under Gen. Bingham and now Mayor Mitchell's private secretary; and George W. Perkins, a volunteer adviser to the mayor on police and other administrative questions, were mentioned as successors to Commissioner McKay.

McKay was a deputy under the dismissed Commissioner Waldo. He stepped into the breach when Waldo deserted his post. Mayor Mitchell has spoken highly of his work. McKay is expected to return to a deputyship when the mayor finds a commissioner.

Fosdick recently declined the position of commissioner of immigration at this port, telling President Wilson that he wanted to put his study of police administration at the service of the fusion administration. But it can be stated positively that Mayor Mitchell has not offered him the commissionership.

Among the officers elected were: Lady Drummond of Montreal, honorary president; Mrs. W. B. Lang of the Equal Franchise League, Toronto, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Campbell Macleod of the Equal Franchise League, Toronto, treasurer; Dr. Mary Crawford of Winnipeg was appointed chairman of a legislative committee.

RELIQS OF EXINCT FAUNA.

Discovery in Mojave Desert Sheds Light on Life Evolution.

Berkeley, Cal., March 30.—An expedition made recently into the Mojave desert and the discovery of relics of fauna now extinct that shed light on the origin and evolution of life in America were described last night by Dr. John Campbell Merriam, professor of paleontology and historical geology of the University of California, in connection with the "harder day" exercises. Dr. Merriam had been chosen speaker at the annual faculty research lecture, an honor awarded to the faculty member who has done most during the year in research work and dissemination of knowledge. The finding of pocene fauna representing a stage previously unknown on this continent was related by the speaker. He also told of the discovery of upper miocene fauna, hitherto unknown west of the Wasatch mountains, and of evidence of the relation of life in America to that of Asia in the miocene and pliocene periods.
