John French for Sheriff

The announcement of John French, of this city, to the effect that he is a candidate for sheriff will be welcome news to the vast majority of the people of Burleigh county.

Everybody knows Mr. French, for he is one of the pioneers, having come here from Maine in 1834—just thirty years ago, when a boy, and settled with his parents in Gibbs township. During the last twelve or fourteen years he has been in the hardware business, and has made many friends.

Four years ago Mr. French was a candidate for the office of sheriff, and notwithstanding the fact that he was opposed by a strong political combination, he was defeated by only about sixty votes. This defeat was by no means a discredit to Mr. French, for he conducted a strictly clean campaign, and the fact that he ran so well in the face of the combination which had been thrown against him, was indeed a recommendation for him.

Mr. French has established a reputation which cannot be shaken; one which is absolutely unassailable, and this, taken in connection with the fact that he is noted for being conservative, always cool-headed, and always square in his dealings, places him above reproach, and in position to command the respect and support of all.

His candidacy is receiving the approval of all who know him, and it is a safe prediction that the people of Burleigh county will make him their choice, not only at the primaries, but at the fall election.

It is rather disappointing to find that after all these years Gen. Coxey could not think up any improvements on his "march-to-Washington" idea.

Republicanism Coming Into Its Own

Patterson, N. J., April 7.—Dow Drukker, Republican, contractor, of Passaic, was elected Congressman of the Seventh district, to succeed the late Robert Brenner, by over 5,000 plurality over James O'Byrne, personally endorsed by President Wilson and aided by some of the foremost campaign speakers at the call of the administration.

Drukker made his fight on a platform opposed to legislation wrought by the Wilson administration.

O'Byrne called upon the voters to send him to Congress as a token of their approval of the President's policies.

The above item is an Associated Press dispatch, and appeared in the newspapers on the morning of the 8th inst. When analyzed it contains much more food for sober thought and much more political significance than appears upon the casual reading. This case seems to have been the one by which the Democratic party hoped to show the citizens of the United States the Democratic popularity of President Wilson and Democracy in the state where the President had long lived and of which he was governor before entering the White House.

In 1912 Brenner, who was a newspaper man, was elected to Congress by a majority of 3,320, having been unanimously nominated by his party. Owing to Mr. Brenner's recent death, an election was held to name a successor for the balance of his unexpired term. Mr. James O'Byrne was named, as stated in the Associated Press dispatch above quoted, as the one man in that district who should represent the Wilson Democracy in all its old, as well as its new, policies, including "the new freedom." Against him the Republicans nominated Dow Drukker, a contractor, a plain, matter-of-fact business man, and put the plain proposition of endorsement of the President's policies up to the people. Result—In a district composed of two townships less than one county, instead of a Democratic majority of 3,320 as of two years ago, the people took a landslide the other way of over eight thousand votes, and elected Mr. Drukker, Republican, by over five thousand majority, exact figures not yet to hand.

Imagine the surprise and chagrin of the administration when the people spoke so discouragingly. This is proof against the Democratic claim that the Wilson administration is giving such eminent satisfaction throughout the east. And this happened in Mr. Wilson's home state, and in a Democratic stronghold. It is one of the many instances that show which way the straws are blowing.

No doubt Secretary Houston's farmer friends will feel encouraged by the fact that his state gets two of the bank prizes. The agricultural interests of the country have too long slighted the advantages to be gained by financial foresight.

The belief expressed by Senator Lewis of Illinois that we have no friends among the great European nations is disquieting. Maybe we could win some of them over if the Senator would consent to speak to them.

After looking the Baltimore platform over and recalling the history surrounding it, Mr. Bryan concluded that it was not entirely to be relied upon as a great peace promoter.

The Printers vs. Tuberculosis

The International Typographical Union has issued a booklet dealing with its battle with that dread disease, tuberculosis.

It may be news to many to learn that the International Typographical Union is making a decided fight against disease, for such is generally considered outside the calling of labor unions.

And right here it may be permissible to digress a little, by stating that the Typographical Union is by far the most powerful of all unions in existence. The printers are, by right of their profession and calling, a bright and brainy combination, and the fact that they exercise excellent judgment in their dealings with the subjects which arise, has made them a tower of strength.

Many years ago the idea of building a home for the unfortunate members in later life was conceived and a plan laid for the carrying out of the same. The writer remembers well when, over a quarter of a century ago, he was one of that vast army which cut off 1,000 ems from his "string" each month, the proceeds of which went to the creation of a fund which was to establish this Home. The Home today is the only one of its kind in existence, is a magnificent institution, is supported wholly by union printers, and is the home of many a worthy old "print," who "carried the banner" through the good old days of long ago.

The institution is not only a great success as a Home, but is now taking up the fight against tuberculosis. In every union shop the proprietors are being prevailed upon to assist by providing more cleanly quarters, by providing better ventilation, and doing what they can to make their shops better for the health of the workmen.

Truly, the union printers have done a great work in this line, and have set a new pace for fellow-craftsmen in other trades, and their work is sure to carry good results throughout the world for those who work in shops. In cases where the proprietors fail or refuse to observe the requests of the union, the health authorities are appealed to, for if they cannot maintain healthy quarters peacefully, they will force them.

The action of the printers is to be commended. The Panama canal represents water power on such a colossal scale that even the conservationists hesitate about taking it under supervision.

Governor Hanna's Announcement

Grand Forks Herald: Governor Hanna has made formal announcement of his candidacy for re-election. The announcement has been expected for some time, for it has been generally understood that the governor would be a candidate, and the plans of opposing candidates, as well as of the governor's friends, have been made with this end in view.

Governor Hanna has been a good executive. He has not been a loud talker, but he has brought to the performance of his official duties sound judgment and the habits acquired in a long business training, and without disparagement to any other man who has been governor of North Dakota, it is admitted by all well informed men as a fact that during the short time of his service in this position, Mr. Hanna has performed a work in the business organization of the affairs of the state which has not before been equaled.

The recommendations which Mr. Hanna makes in his brief announcement indicate the practical side of his character. He knows, as others have discovered, that no governor can, in a two-year term, do himself or the office full justice. The time is too short for the formulation and working out of important policies, and, if a man is to serve for a longer period, and have the time that is needed to do the subject justice, a considerable portion of his time and attention must be devoted in the interim to a campaign for re-election. Governor Hanna repeats what he has urged on many occasions in the past, that the governor should be elected for a four-year term and be made ineligible for another executive term.

The other suggestions made by the governor are of the same practical character. He would have such steps taken as will result in the attraction of settlers to the state, and not settlers on the farm lands alone, but men who are willing and able to take a hand in the development of its wonderful mineral resources, which are as yet practically untouched.

Even the most clerical patriot must admit that the ancestral warnings against entangling foreign alliances have not been fully regarded.

The Advent of Spring

Winter has once more retired and bonny spring has made her appearance. Meadow larks are already gaily singing on the fence posts, the merry robin will soon arrive to hold his concert in the treetops, soon the cheerful cricket will be chirping in the grass and the philosophical bullfrog croaking in the pond. Spring is the optimistic season of the year. After the long months of repose, Nature rejoices in her awakening.

The spirit of spring is the spirit that should animate everyone who lives in this great, throbbing Northwest. If at the end of this Lenten season—on this Easter morning—there is anyone who feels despondent and discouraged let him remember that spring is here, with the promise of new opportunities. If there is a "knocker" in this community now is a good time for him to throw away his hammer and commence to boost. That is the spirit of the West.

The buoyant optimism of the Westerner has become proverbial. He truly lives according to Brownie's precept:

"But what if I fall in my purpose here?"

It is but to keep the nerves at strain, To dry one's eyes and laugh at a fall, And, baffled, get up and begin again."

It is now asserted that England is being as much misunderstood by the American press as America used to be by the English press.

Occasionally a South American political economist writes a few pages about the Monroe Doctrine in order to prove there isn't any.

Aviation has not yet developed any public benefits that compensate for the loss of life it has caused.

News of the State

All the barber shops in Devils Lake have been unlicensed.

The exodus to Norway for the centennial festivals has begun.

More pure blood Polled-Angus cattle and Chester-White hogs have been imported into Morton county.

There were only two jury cases tried at the spring term of the district court for Tower county.

There are said to be six candidates in the field for the office of commissioner of agriculture and labor.

The Leland hotel at Minot will be reconstructed. It is planned to make this hotel the finest in the state.

The women of Devils Lake have petitioned U. S. Senator La Follette to speak in their town on woman's suffrage.

Cash prices aggregating $625 will be offered to farmers over Williams county who grow the best corn and alfalfa.

Wallhalla boasts five rural delivery routes and two star route deliveries which is more than any other town in the state.

Two quarter section farms were sold a day of two ago near Warrington, one for $2,000, unimproved, and the other for $37.50 an acre.

More than 200 acres of potatoes will be planted by the farmers near Sheldon. This is a result of the potato meeting held there recently.

In the "20 Years Ago" column in the Jamestown Alert is the following: "Ice in the Missouri river went out quietly at Bismarck on March 16th."

The Gascoyne Advance says that spring conditions in that part of Bowman county are considerably more encouraging at the beginning of April this year than they were in 1913.

A chemical fire extinguisher and a prompt response of the fire boys saved a home at Maxwells from destruction. A combination of a little girl and some matches was the cause of the trouble.

An ambitious concert program was given under the auspices of the Methodist church at Inkster. There was some orchestra music and a splendid rendition of the Loria from Mozart's Twelfth Mass.

The postoffice at Grand Harbor was robbed last week and Geo. McDevitt has confessed to the robbery. He says he did it when he was drunk. He secured a little over $100 but the government recovered the money.

This year will witness a large increase in the acreage sown to corn and alfalfa. The farmers are rapidly learning how to properly plant and cultivate the corn and alfalfa crops and also to realize their value as a fodder crop.

Somebody at Gascoyne was mean enough to steal a quantity of lumber from the front door of the Congregational church. The material was some that was to be used in connection with repair work, which was being done and had been bought by the Ladies' Aid society.

The Pingree Patriot: As an extra inducement to the farmers' children in this vicinity to kill the gophers the Pingree State bank will give a prize of $3 to the one turning in the largest number of tails at the bank during the 1914 season; the prize of $2 to the one turning in the second largest.

The Tribune at Edinburg is very complimentary towards the Farmers' club at Conway, which it says is a live and very active organization. It meets regularly and has always a good attendance because its meetings are both interesting and instructive.

The commercial club at Devils Lake will run a special train on the Condo branch, to accommodate the hundreds who will attend the concert to be given by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, when the crack musical organization appears at Devils Lake, April 16.

The new steel bridge that the Canadian Northern is building across the Red river at Emerson is meeting with objection from the people of the gateway city. It seems that the drive-ways are too narrow, only 13 feet wide and the railing which are about four feet high are too low.

The Wilton News: The first thunder and rain shower of the season arrived Wednesday afternoon and from the appearance of the sky for a few minutes, one would be led to believe that summer was here for sure; the rain was of short duration however, and Thursday morning the temperature took a decided drop.

An enterprising young lady who operates a busy photograph studio at Flaxton, has established branch studios at Crosby and Ambrose. She has bought a Ford touring car and will spend a great deal of her time taking views for commercial purposes and pictures of homes and surroundings; for the latter she has already got a large number of orders.

The young ladies who write the school notes for The Rhame Review refer rather caustically to the bad condition of the roads leading from the country to town. They say some parts of the roads are so rough and muddy that young children have great difficulty in getting to the school-house—they think some of the big men ought to fix things before they get too busy.

The county commissioners of Ward county expect to do some good road building during the summer. They recently bought 26 road drags to be used on the roads this spring. Several "good roads" meetings have been held in the different towns in Ward county and as a result there will be a big improvement in roads before the season is over.
