

FOUND SWORD OF GREAT AGE

Supposed to be That of a Soldier of the Revolution Who Was Banished.

TOLD TO GO WESTWARD Then to Bury Weapon With Point to the East; Indians Have Legend About It.

Rhame, N. D., May 30.—A few days ago while Henry Holm, who works the J. H. Frey farm 10 miles north of Rhame, was breaking some new ground, he turned up a relic dating back to Revolutionary days in the form of a sword, bearing the thirteen stars, and with an inscription on one of the flanges of the hilt, so erased and worn as to be unintelligible. When he attempted to pick up the sword, the blade crumbled away in rust, the hilt alone remaining as evidence. This is of bronze, and of a design peculiar to swords of that period. The sword was buried about six inches deep in the soil, the point of the blade pointing due east.

Near Old Fort.
About 12 miles west where the sword was found is the remains of an old breast works fortification dating away back to the latter part of the eighteenth century.

Verifies Legend.
The finding of this sword seems to be the verification of an old legend handed down by the Indians of that section from generation to generation, and which was thought to have had little if any foundation of truth up to this time. As told now, however, by Chief Two Bare Spots, one of the last remnants of the early Indian inhabitants of this section, the story has a new phase of reality.

As the Indian Tells It.
Told in the flowery, idiomatic language of the Indians through the medium of an interpreter, the story has a simple charm to it, which is interesting, even though there should be no foundation of truth to it.

"Many, many great suns ago, said the old Indian, 'while the buffalo were still on the plains of the Dakotas, and before the white men came to disturb the peaceful life of his red brothers, a white man came among us with a band of 20 Indians, and pitched his tepees near where the Little Beaver joins its waters with the Little Missouri. The white man was always and mixed never with his red brethren, and was known to us as Sore Heart.'

The story of the white man's coming might better be told leaving out the figurative expressions of the Indian.

A Lonely Man.
Sore Heart was apparently a soldier in the Continental army which spent the winter of 1777-78 at Valley Forge. In a quarrel with one of his brother officers, to whose sister Sore Heart was to have been married, Sore Heart drew his sword and slew the other. A court of inquiry was held, the result of which was a decree that the murderer should take with him a few of his Indians and travel 350 leagues west towards the setting sun, where he should bury the sword with which he committed his crime, with the point towards the east. It was apparently thought that he would die in the attempt expiating his crime.

According to the old Indian legend, Sore Heart did as commanded, dying of a broken heart, a few months afterwards.

J. H. Frey, on whose farm the sword was found, is immigration agent for the Milwaukee road at Aberdeen, S. D., and now has the hilt of the sword in his possession.

SOO LIVE STOCK SPECIAL TRAIN

Delightful Time spent at Home of Mrs. E. E. Morris on Sixth Street.

"North Dakota's first 'Livestock Special' will be operated over the Soo lines within the state June 8 to 18, traveling more than 1,000 miles of the state's best agricultural regions and visiting more than forty cities and villages. Arrangements for the special were completed yesterday by director Thomas P. Cooper of the State Experiment station and W. L. Martin, vice-president of the Soo Railroad Company.

Live Stock Only.
Although special farm demonstration trains have been frequently operated by the various railroads of the state, this is the first time that a special train has been devoted exclusively to the interests of livestock in North Dakota. The train will be well equipped for its work. Palace stock cars will carry types of the best grades of livestock; flat cars will be fitted for lectures and demonstration purposes and Pullman coaches will be attached for the experiment station experts who will accompany the special.

Two-Hour Stops.
Each stop will be for at least two hours. Lectures on live stock topics and demonstrations will be given and visitors will be given ample opportunity to inspect the types of livestock represented.

The trip will take eleven days.

THE DAILY HINT FROM PARIS

Dark green gabardine, the skirt short and draped, topped by a tunic that takes the same curve as the short coat edge. The collar is pleated, attached to a round yoke. Wide and narrow black braid decoration on the coat.

The train will be fitted out in Fargo but the start proper will be made from Cogswell, in the southeast corner of the state. Practically every mile of the Soo lines and branches will be traversed by the special and the long trip will end at Westby in the extreme northwestern corner of the state.

Educational Purposes.
The purpose of the train, according to Director Cooper who is making the plans for the trip, is educational, pure and simple. It is the aim of the experiment station authorities to call attention to the value of livestock on the farms and in this connection to call attention to the types and classes of stock best suited to North Dakota conditions. Attention will also be called to the factors which enter into livestock maintenance in North Dakota. While the Soo lines furnish the train, the speakers will be experts from the State Experiment station.

MRS. MARSHMENT'S RECEIPTS.

Foamy Sauce.
The juice from a can of apricots, 1 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoonful cornstarch, 2 tablespoonful cold water, 1 egg, white sugar if required, 1 tablespoonful lemon juice. Method of preparing. Put the apricot juice and boiling water into a saucepan, bring to boiling point, adding a little sugar if required. Stir in the cornstarch, moistened with the cold water. Cook about five minutes, then pour over the stiffly beaten egg white, stirring constantly while doing so.

Pittsburg Potatoes.
Wash, pare and soak in cold water enough potatoes, cut in cubes, to make one quart, cook five minutes in enough boiling water to cover, to which has been added half a teaspoon of salt and one small onion minced. Then add 1-2 can of pilentons, cut in fine strips, and cook five minutes longer. Drain and melt five table-spoonfuls of butter, add four table-spoonfuls of flour, stir until well blended. Pour in gradually one pint of milk, bring to a boil. Season with three-quarters of a tablespoon of salt, a dash of paprika and a half a pound of American cheese grated. Add the potato cubes to this sauce. Turn into a well buttered baking dish, cover with buttered bread crumbs, and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Sweet Potatoes in Syrup.
To one can of canned sweet potatoes, separated and placed in casserole, add half a cup of melted butter, half a cup of sugar and half a cup of lemon juice. Bake till the potato is glazed and serve from a Manchester casserole.

Mock Duck.
Take two large pork tenderloins, split them lengthwise, and get them as flat as possible. Lay them one over the other and sew them along one side. Make a dressing of 1 cup of bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon sage or 1-2 teaspoon each of Dry's sauce, 1 tablespoon minced onion, pepper and salt to taste, 2 tablespoonfuls melted butter, mix; lift the upper tenderloin and put the dressing on the under one; place in pan and sprinkle with

COMB SAGE TEA IN LIFELESS, GRAY HAIR
If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this oldtime recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.
