Cariyle and the Book of Job. Cariyle was once asked to take the reading at family prayers during a short visit paid to his friend, the prophet of Kircaldy. The Bible chanced to open at the first chapter of the book of Job, and Cariyle immediately became absorbed in his subject and read on and on to the end of the last chapter, when, closing the volume, he remarked: "That is a marvelous lifelike drama, only to be appreciated when read right through."

It is fair to infer that it was appreciated for once. Any one who has taken a long, solitary afternoon and attempted to give the book of Job an opportunity to be appreciated by reading it honestly through at one sitting can realize the consternation of the prophet. Such a one will not be likely to wonder with Cariyle why he was not asked again to assist at family prayers in that household.

Women of Influence. We are, all of us, whether young or old, famous or obscure, women of influence. We cannot live a day without affecting the world somewhat for good or ill, whether we will or no. We are all a part of life's forces, whether we know it or not. Be as humble as you like, you are still a person of influence, if not by your own choosing, then often by God's decree. It may be only a smile or a simple kindness that you have given to a little child, but it starts agencies you little dream of; or it may be some selfishness and lack of honor, some weakness in you that sets in motion a long train of hurtful and sad influences or circumstances. For all life is connected, and whether you wish it or not your life affects the lives—Woman's Home Companion.

ON THE FIELD OF WATERLOO Memorial That Marks the Scene of One of the World's Greatest Battles.

Great among the landmarks of the world stands the Lion of Waterloo on its mound 200 feet high, says the Strand. Ten miles from the city of Brussels it marks the plain where over 60,000 men were killed, wounded and missing. It is hardly necessary to say that it was fought on June 18, 1815, and that it culminated the campaign following Napoleon's escape from Elba and stopped his mighty effort to conquer all Europe.

The Duchess of Richmond gave a ball in Brussels on June 15; at midnight Wellington, having already heard that the outposts had been engaged, went to the ball. Here he found the Prince of Orange, the man who seemed fated to cause useless loss of life through his blunders. When now he sought to have been at Bladon, where the duke promptly sent him, after inquiring for news.

Far from being surprised at the evening's attack, as some writers assert, the duke had dispatched his orders before he went to the ball, for at 2 a. m. strange sounds broke the night's silence, and great masses of troops were on the move, bugles were blowing everywhere and people opened their windows to see the various regiments tramp past. A Highland band were playing their bagpipes to the swing of the "Black Watch" as they went out to battle through the murmur. Curiously enough, many of the officers were still wearing their silk stockings and dancing pumps, but the heat was so intense that many went mad and died on the march; but for the rest, they pushed on and were soon under fire. The battle itself is eclipsed by the thought of the awful aftermath; the plains so filled with the dying and the dead that for three days parties brought in the wounded.

In the hurry 300 bodies were lying down a well. For 30 years the corn crops were of a deeper color when they grew over the blood of the slain on the scene where the Lion of Waterloo now forms the greatest of the landmarks of the world.

RICHES IN HOUSE PLASTER Ruins of Abandoned Town in Montana Found to Yield Gold in Paying Quantities.

Shipping plaster from a house to a smelter for the gold, silver, and lead in it is a new departure in the way of making money, but that is what is being done by Frank Fish.

For about fifteen years Fish has been working the tuffing at the old Gregory mine, near Wickes. The property is owned by the Helena and Livingston company. Recently a big chunk of plaster fell from the ceiling of one of the houses. Fish found it was very heavy, and he had it assayed. The returns were satisfactory, and then he obtained from the company a lease, with the right to smelt all of the plaster in all of the houses in the town. As the town has long since been abandoned and the houses were going to decay the leases did not disturb any one.

Fish has already shipped eight tons of the plaster to the East Helena smelter, and the returns are said to be satisfactory to him. The richness of the plaster is not surprising. When Gregory was on the map and a booming camp and houses were built the sand used was taken from the valleys out of the ore were getting the tallings were rich. This sand comprises the larger portion of the material in the plaster, and now it is to smelt it—Helena (Mont.) special to the New York Sun.
