

BIGGEST NAVAL BATTLE OF WAR

The German Victory of Coast of Chile Disastrous for the English

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 4.—No word has been received today from the British ships that engaged the German squadron off Coronel Sunday, so the British side of the story remains untold.

According to the Germans their armored cruisers, Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and the light cruisers, Nürnberg, Leipzig and Bremen, escaped unscathed while the British cruiser, Monmouth, was sunk and the cruiser, Good Hope, was disabled, and the cruiser, Glasgow, with the transport, Otranto, were sent scurrying for shelter in the neutral port of Talcahuano, where they were bottled up by the Leipzig and Bremen.

It is certain that the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Nürnberg have arrived safely at Valparaiso, though some what worse for the encounter with the Britishers. One report says that the Glasgow, badly damaged, arrived in Coronel bay while the Otranto escaped to Puerto Mont. Despite the fact that the British had only three fighting ships against the five of the Germans, the decisive defeat of Rear Admiral Gradock's squadron appears to have produced a profound impression.

German Marksmanship Good. The battle occurred in a heavy sea. The Germans opened fire at ten kilometers and for a time all the British shots fell short. Later within range, their guns scored only a few hits, and casualties among Germans are said to be only a half dozen wounded. The German fire is described as excellent.

Allies Work Against The Turks From Three Angles; Balkans Stir

RUSSIANS INVADE TURKISH TERRITORY IN ASIA MINOR. BRITISH DESTROY FORT

German Fleet Was Attempting to Raid English Coast When Attacked

London, Nov. 4.—Turkey has definitely broken off diplomatic relations with Great Britain, France, Russia and Serbia.

The powers which Turkey defied are already taking warlike action against the Ottoman government. The British destroyed the fort of Akabah in Arabia; the Russians invaded Asia Minor, and the Anglo-French fleet is bombarding the Dardanelles forts.

Balkans Stirred Up. With Turkey allied against the nations warring, speculation is rife as to what the Balkan powers will do. Greece is said to be preparing to side with the Allies. Bulgaria has given assurance of neutrality, but is mobilizing for as a Balkan diplomatic aid. "With Turkey in the area of war, Bulgaria must be prepared for any event."

Fear German Raid. Next to the Turkish situation, the appearance of German war ships on the coast of England is causing the most discussion in this country. The disposition of German naval men is to believe that no serious raid is intended. Official reports regarding the land fighting, recorded only advances at various points and the repulses of the enemy's attacks at others. In fact, there is no change in the situation, according to the reports. The fact that the naval engagement off the South American coast is not mentioned in the above dispatch is an indication that the English censors have not permitted the information to become public.

Little Change in North. "There is no important modification in the situation," the war office says tonight.

"In the north we made slight progress toward Messines. To the east artillery duels at several points on the front occurred without great results, notably at West Lens, between Samme and Aune, in Arsonne, in the forest of Apremont."

Russians Gain in East. The Russians claim successfully to have met the German offensive from East Prussia, the Germans retreating across their own frontier, leaving large quantities of arms and ammunition. In Poland, the Germans are continuing to fall back further south, the Russians forcing the Austro-German forces. The Russians occupied Kielce, in Sandomir, and have taken 200 officers, 15,000 men and several dozen guns.

Tried to Raid Coast. Four German dreadnoughts and four German cruisers participated in yesterday's engagement off the east coast of England, according to the crew of the steam drifter, "Garri-gall." The steamer said that the Germans appeared through the mist, evidently intent on raiding the English coast. He added that two British submarines, in addition to the D-5, which was sunk by striking a mine thrown out by the Germans, pursued the invaders.

Pete Stevens of Monmouth lost a valuable dog in the swamp near that place. The dog was valued at $150.

SUBMARINE NOT VERY VALUABLE

Navy Officials Puncture Idea That Under-water Craft Is Supreme

Washington, Nov. 3.—Ever since the sinking of the British cruiser Hawke by the German submarine U-9 in the North Sea, the Navy Department has been deluged with letters containing suggestions from individuals all over the country for the improvement of the submarine and for a great extension of its usefulness. Satisfied that most of the writers of these communications had acquired an exaggerated idea of the fighting abilities of the submarine and that there was very present danger of a serious interference with the naval building program and perhaps an almost total suspension of the construction of additional battleships if erroneous ideas obtain common credence, the naval officials have been trying to correct this impression. They have made it a point to reply to each of the letter writers, setting out in detail the reasons why, in the judgment of the department officials, it would be disastrous to abandon other naval construction entirely in favor of the submarine, and pointing the limitations which surround these little boats.

These arguments have been reduced to form in the following statement which it may be said accurately represents the views of the technical officers of the navy in regard to the merits of the submarine:

"The land operations of the war have shown so comparatively few naval conflicts so comparatively few that the importance of the sea operations of the various nations is apt to be lost sight of. It is the brilliant feats which strike the eye, the dash of the British against Helgoland, the destruction of three cruisers by a German submarine, rather than the slow bearing down by sheer weight of the allied fleet against the whole German coast line."

Submarine Not Great. "So far, the submarine has carried off the honors, and at the same time has greatly disappointed its admirers in that it has not done more. It was freely predicted before the war that the day of the dreadnought was passed; that the submarine would drive it from the seas."

"The destruction of the three British cruisers Haguen, Cressy and Aboukir, by the German submarine U-9, and later the sinking of the Hawke by the same submarine was taken as proof of the impotence of surface craft."

"Nevertheless, the advocates of submarines are beginning to evidence signs of impatience at the paucity of results. They realize that there are two hundred submarines in the navies of the warring nations, and so far only one has done anything. Not a dreadnought has even been menaced. The cruisers which were struck were old, hastily commissioned with naval reserve crews, two of them were engaged in lowering boats and picking up the survivors of the first when they, too, were torpedoed."

"The loss of these vessels has had no more effect on the result of the war than the reported capture of a German aeroplane by a British submarine. No one would seriously advocate submarines as a proper weapon to use against aeroplanes, but it is nevertheless reported that an aeroplane which had alighted on the water was captured by a submarine which emerged close at hand."

"The ideal conditions for a submarine attack consist in finding the enemy motionless in the water; then and only then can the submarine hope for success."

Odds Against it. "But even so, the odds are against the submarine. If proper precautions are taken as is shown by the actions of the allied sea forces which have been shelling the German bank for several days. These vessels have been operating in a very restricted area for some time, certainly sufficiently long for a group of submarines to proceed against them from any German port. Their position has been known to everybody and it would appear an ideal chance for a few submarines to either destroy them or to drive them off. But nothing of the sort has happened. These ships have been left unmolested to harass the German bank, to prevent their approach to the coast, and to entangle their trenches for several miles inland. They are small vessels of such low speed that they could not escape from a submarine if attacked."

"If the submarine is all that its admirers believe, it is inconceivable why these vessels have been left to interfere so seriously with the major operations of the German army. The fact that they have been so unmolested on an open coast, testifies to the power of the British fleet to protect itself against all forms of attack."

"The war is only at its beginning, yet, and many lessons may be learned before its finish, but so far nothing has occurred to encourage the belief that the submarine is supreme; on the contrary, it is losing prestige daily."

Look Before You Eat

Better still, look before you buy Big Can Baking Powders. Look beyond the big bulk. Consider the quality. Think of what the can contains—of what it must contain to be sold at so low a price.

Think of the uncertain leavening power. Think of the bake day failures. Think of the double quantities often required to leaven bakings.

And Remember

that when these Cheap Powders do raise foods they sometimes leave the bakings bleached and acid, or yellow and alkaline—you don't get the sweet, light and tender baking you should have.

And Don't Forget

that big can powders are cheap in price because they are cheap in quality, that they are often unreliable. They are made to sell, not to serve and satisfy—they are not economical, either to buy or use.

Then Memorize These Facts

Calumet Baking Powder prevents failure and waste; it is absolutely pure—and absolutely dependable.

Only the best of materials of tested strength are employed in the making of Calumet. These ingredients are so perfectly proportioned that all Calumet Baking Powders come from the oven light, fluffy, evenly grained, beautifully raised and absolutely wholesome.

Then

Go to your dealer and demand a can of Calumet—be sure to get Calumet. Watch results. Compare them with the best bakings you ever turned out, seen or tasted. Then if you are not fully convinced that Calumet is better as well as more economical than the brand you are now using, your dealer will refund the full purchase price—25c. Calumet is used in millions of homes—recommended by the best chefs, cooks and domestic science teachers.

GERMAN COIN AT ITS FACE VALUE

London, Nov. 4.—Sir W. Pender, the treasury controller, announces that the affairs of the British establishments of the German banks have been so satisfactorily arranged that a full 20 shillings in the pound is to be paid.

"The affairs of the Austrian bank are much so favorably situated, but further steps are being taken to arrange as early distribution as possible."

The political notification under date of October 15 is as follows:

"The British establishments of the Deutsche, the Dresdner, the Disconto-Gesellschaft and the Anglo-Austrian banks will, on and after Saturday next, the 17th inst., on the expiry of the moratorium affecting redemptive notes, pay the same in full, and on and after the 31st they will pay 20 shillings in the pound in respect of other liabilities as and when they mature for payment. No moneys will be paid to or for the benefit of alien enemies."

"As regards the Oesterreichische Laenderbank, the funds which are immediately available do not permit of such procedure. A large part of its funds is placed in neutral and enemy countries, where collections for

YOU should send all your washing to this laundry for the very good reason, that it will pay you to do so.

Have you ever counted the cost of the old way? Wash day the bluest of all days in the week—steamy rooms—mixed odors—hard work and rasped nerves, besides the cost of soap, water, fuel blueing, starch, washwoman's wages, meals and car fare.

And after all, you cannot equal the quality and purity of the work that goes daily from this modern laundry to many happy homes in this city.
