PROUD OF DISTINCTIVE GARB

Japanese Carpenters Wear Peculiar Coat Blazoned With the Name of Their Employer.

The artisan of old Nippon is a walking advertisement for his employer. At work he wears a long blue coat blazoned between the shoulders with a huge white Japanese character denoting the name of the contractor for whom he works.

Down the front are figured in white other names of the contractor; whether they may be called given names or Christian names I cannot say. At any rate, the name on the back is the one the contractor is known by to the world, like our Smith or Jones. Below this name is a rectangular design in white covering the entire skirt of the coat.

When the Japanese artisans first came to the exposition grounds to erect their national pavilions spectators thought they were some part of a pageant rather than carpenters, for their long coats are like the tabards worn by heralds in ancient times. The coat is a perquisite of the carpenter. Twice a year his employer has to give him a new one.

GOT CORNER ON BAD EGGS

"Entertainer" Must Have Been Some-what Doubtful of His Power to Please Audience.

Aprons of Marie Corelli's new novel Butler Glaeser, the critic and essayist of New York, said at the Players' club:

"Miss Corelli is the only novelist in existence who sends no free copies of her novels to the press for review. Miss Corelli has been roasted so hard by the press that she is resolved to undergo no more of it."

Activities of Women. New York has nearly seven thousand women boarding and lodging housekeepers.

Over 60 per cent of the females in the United States are unmarried. Women school teachers in Denmark receive from $364 to $520 a year salary.

Quebec (Canada) nuns have a complete bookkeeping establishment in their nunnery, where girls entering are taught and trained in the rudiments of printing.

In Denmark the widow of a public school teacher is entitled to a pension of one-eighth of her husband's average salary during the last five years of his life.

A Dazed Inspector. From a backwoods town where a new post office had been established there came complaints that mail was not being sent as promptly as it should be, and an inspector went to the town to investigate. He told the postmaster pointed at a mail bag about one-fourth full and said: "Wal, I send the mail out ev'ry time I get the bag full. You don't expect me to send it out when it ain't got more'n a dozen letters in it, do you?"

Soon as I get that bag full I'll send it out all right. I reckon that will be within a week or so, the way letters air comin' in now!"

Dates in California. Date growing is rapidly becoming one of the most promising fruit industries of California, so it is stated in the annual report of the United States bureau of plant industry recently printed for public distribution.

Wheat Purchase by Sweden. The Swedish government has decided to purchase 120,000 tons of wheat as a reserve in case of lack of food products. This quantity is considered sufficient to last two months and the cost is estimated at $4,000,000, of which amount $1,875,000 has been placed at the disposition of a purchasing commission during December.

TELLS WHEN STORM IS NEAR

Electric Companies Have Arrangement Which Warns Them When Extra Light is Needed.

When a heavy storm comes up in the daytime and the sky gets dark we all turn on the electric light. Sometimes this happens so suddenly that the companies which supply the electric current are taken unawares with only the normal daytime current that is entirely inadequate to meet a general demand.

Hence electric companies have to keep a man with a keen weather eye constantly "on the job." One of the latest concerns in New York has recently installed a storm detector similar to a wireless telegraph receiving apparatus, which is affected by neighboring thunderstorms and announces their presence by ringing a bell. The nearer the storm the more frequently does the bell ring, and within an hour to a half hour before the storm breaks there is ample warning to prepare additional generators for service, when abnormal demands for current are felt.

Topknots. A letter of Stewart R. Oglesby in the New York Sun with caption "Topknots, Come Down!" protesting against the ungodly and unwholesome colors worn by women in nightgowns, recalls the ingenious method of an English clergyman of the last century to abolish a similar abuse. At that time it was the fashion for ladies to wear topknots on their foreheads. The clergyman could not bear the sight of those topknots. He styled them ungodly, ungodly and assured them that on the following Sunday he would prove that they were unscriptural. On the following Sunday he ascended the pulpit and gave out as his text, "Topknot come down, Matthew, xxiv, 17." The people who had their New Testament looked up the chapter and found the passage, "Let him who is on the housetop not come down."
