 For North Dakota: Fair tonight and Friday; colder in eastern and central portions tonight; somewhat warmer Friday.
 OKRIS W. ROBERTS,
 Section Director.

YANKTON'S ENTERPRISE
 Charles Mix county, South Dakota, of which Yankton is the county seat, has just voted $300,000 bonds to assist in building a bridge over the Missouri river. This indicates enterprise of a high order.
 Burleigh and Morton counties are vitally interested in the success of the Yankton citizens. The project will be watched with considerable interest both on the part of Bismarck and Mandan citizens.

Just because we are looking revenue stamps is not any sign that we will vote the Democratic ticket.

COMMENDABLE CO-OPERATION.
 The bi-monthly bulletin of the Mayville Normal school is interesting evidence of the manner in which the various educational institutions are co-operating with the board of regents. Of course, the success of the new system depends upon the response given by the heads of the educational plants. Their hostility, while it cannot defeat the object of the system, could seriously hamper it.

President Hillier of the Mayville school discusses the board of regents frankly in the current issue of the Normal's bulletin. He says, in part: "What the new board will accomplish in the way of improved management of the state educational institutions can hardly be seen until it has had a fair opportunity to get acquainted with the situation under its control, to formulate a policy, and to put it into practice. The board has so far shown a thoughtful and conservative attitude which is encouraging and seems to mean that any reforms which it may make will be undertaken only after carefully considering their worth in the efficient upbuilding of the educational system of the state. But the board has so far shown no lack of courage to take hold of difficult problems and to work them out without fear or favor, and with less regard for local and personal interest than for the interest of the state as a whole and a square deal for everybody."

"The board is fortunate in being able to employ expert ability outside of the state to make a survey of the institutions under its control and to report with recommendations of needed changes. So far no such reports by experts within the state have amounted to much. Home experts, especially those of long residence, naturally have 'leanings,' sometimes unconsciously, which make them unbalanced in knowledge and judgment and consequently less fit to give sound advice than outside experts who can approach and study the situation with a surety as much technical knowledge of education, and with nothing at all of the bias that a home expert would be very likely to have. It will do us no harm to look through the eyes of competent outsiders at our educational institutions and it may do us much good. At any rate, the new form of administration of these institutions means much closer attention to both their business and educational management and it will undoubtedly bring about many readjustments and changes of policy of permanent value."

WAR NOT AN ISSUE.
 Although Republicans admit that the European war has the center of the stage and that they believe the Democrats will take advantage of the situation to confuse political issues, the G. O. P. leaders assert that by campaign time the soup kitchen will take precedence over the diplomatic situation between this country and the Central powers of Europe. According to a statement sent out by former Senator Jonathan Bourne, from the Republican Publicity association: "The trenches of Artols will recede from the American vision as winter approaches; and the soup kitchen of New York will loom up bigger than ever. Europe will not decide the presidency of the United States. We shall decide that matter for ourselves, and the decision will be based on a full consideration of which party is the better under a complete desire for 'America first.'"

Mr. Fourne declares the Democrats have violated pledges, and specifies as follows:
 "Reduction of the cost of living, economy in administration, free canal tolls for coastwise American shipping, maintenance of the merit system in the civil service, protection of the rights of American citizens abroad and avoidance of legislation inimical to legitimate business interests. Every citizen who reads either the newspapers or government reports knows that this administration has been the most extravagant in American history; that it reverted at every opportunity to the spoils system, which the Republican party overthrew, and that it enacted tariff legislation which was bringing wreck and ruin to American industry until the European war served partially to check the further importation of foreign labor and enterprise.

"I am well aware that the Democrats will seek to avoid such comparisons as I have made, and that they will try to make the campaign for Mr. Wilson's re-election turn upon his management of our foreign relations. The men whom his policies have kept out of work will not, however, be cajoled by a plea that he has kept them out of a war in which we never had any business to be, anyway."
 "Nevertheless, the Republican party will not hesitate to accept this issue, even if we are not willing to say that it shall have first place. We are entirely willing to contrast the diplomacy of Seward and Blaine and Root and Hay with that of Bryan and Lansing and Wilson. We are willing to put in parallel columns Mr. Wilson's notes to Germany and Mr. Blaine's notes to Italy. We do not regard a 'strict accountability,' which was not enforced, as equal to a 'Pericardis alive or Raisouli dead,' which produced results."

THE GARY PLAN.
 History tells us that many reform movements come as reactions from an era of blackness and peril. Art came to Florence as a reaction from extreme ugliness and squalor. Universities like those of Bologna and Paris came as a reaction from the ages of darkness and ignorance. Emancipation comes as a reaction from the cruelty of the slave market and the slave driver. Out of the sense of national peril and the blackness of the crime wave has come this Gary plan. The workers in this steel town are chiefly foreigners. New in the republic, the parents had little appreciation of American institutions. Too much food undigested may mean cancer, and vast masses of raw peoples mean possible disease or death to the republic. The problem that confronted Principal Wirt was the problem of assimilation. Your fathers were reared in schools whose readers included the great passages of the Bible. Teachers, also, like Horace Mann, gave one-half hour every day to training in morals. Professor Wirt knew that there is nothing denominational about the Ten Commandments any more than in the multiplication table. The question was whether the State has any right to hang a boy at 18 if at 8 the boy was left in ignorance that it was wrong to steal and kill.

Wirt worked out a plan, therefore, that for one hour, from 2:00 to 3:00, on Friday, the public school should be closed, and all the children be sent to their church—Protestant or Catholic—or to their synagogue, and there drilled, line upon line, precept upon precept, as to the Ten Commandments and the laws of sound morals in this republic. The result was instantaneous for good. Parents became interested in their children; children became interested in their school, and their country; the institutions of home, school, church and state began to knit together; children began to come to school at 8 o'clock in the morning, and to remain until 6 o'clock at night. Boys and girls asked that the vacation be shortened, and many continued their work during July and August.

Vocational training was developed. Children began to educate themselves toward self-support. The length of the school years was shortened because the achievement was doubled. One school building was found when used the same number of hours as the factory and the store and the bank. To do double work, thus halving the taxation for land and buildings. Here is a manufacturing town, filled with poor working people, doubling its enthusiasm for the schools, at the very moment when New York and Brooklyn are proposing to drop the night lectures for young foreigners who have to work by day and have never had a chance to study our language or our political institutions. Our politicians want the results of education, but are not willing to pay the price through taxation. All this is like a farmer who says, "All I want is the shade and the fruit, but I don't want to be bothered with taking care of the tree."

COMING PLAY IS FULL OF THRILLS

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" Replete With Most Thrilling Situations

Local theater-goers who enjoy the unusual in stage performances will appreciate a view of Geo. M. Cohan's mystery farce, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," when it is presented at the Auditorium, Wednesday, November 17.

Talk about melodramatic thrills and surprises, this play, according to general report, will lift the lookers right out of their seats, it's full of them. From the story of the same name by Earl Derr Biggers for his foundation, young Mr. Cohan has constructed the only new thing in playwriting that has been offered in years. There's a punch in every line of its dialogue and a volley of laughter following every punch.

In "Seven Keys to Baldpate," Cohan runs the gamut of human emotions. His weird manner of introducing the characters, who, one after another, let themselves into a summer hotel that has been closed for the winter, all of them under the impression that theirs is the only key to the hostelry, the tangling plot, the exciting experience of the hero and the heroine in their endeavor to outwit their adventures, the crooked mayor, the scheming railroad magnate, the blackmailer, the chief of police and an amateur detective, makes one of the most exciting evening's entertainments imaginable.

GERMAN WAR FILMS PROVE SENSATION
 Teuton Battlefields Shown on Screen For First Time.
 Real war films put in an appearance at the Forty-fourth Street theater yesterday. For once an audience was not asked to content itself with pictures of a monarch reviewing his troops. The firing of 30-centimetre guns, the bursting of shells and all the other deadly manifestations of war took place on the screen, and at times literally brought the audience to its feet.
 The pictures were taken under the auspices of "The Chicago Tribune," by Edwin F. Weigle, and have been brought to New York by Florenz Ziegfeld. They are in six reels and are accompanied by a lecture by Mr. Weigle. But the pictures speak for themselves.
 So many Germans crowded to see them yesterday that it was found necessary to ask for police protection at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. From that time until late at night there were never less than 1,000 persons waiting in line, and many were compelled to stand for hours before obtaining entrance.
 Beginning with scenes in Berlin when the troops left for the front, the German advance in Galicia is next shown. The fleeing population and the bombardment of Przemyel are among the most spectacular incidents. Views on the Italian front showed the Austrian army in operation, with Austrians, poised on apparently inaccessible Alpine peaks, firing down on the enemy.
 The pictures are far and away the best war films yet seen in New York. These same pictures come to the Orpheum theater of our city for one day only, next Thursday, November 18. In order to take care of the big crowds Manager Hauer will give two matinees, the first starting at 2:30 and the second at 4 o'clock, in order to give all the children a chance to attend in the afternoon, when the admission will be 10 cents for the children. The admission for adults will be 25 cents at night. Three performances will be given in the evening, the first starting at 7 o'clock, sharp.—Adv.

SNOW FLURRIES IN CITY LAST NIGHT
 Bismarck residents got their first real intimation that winter is close at hand last evening, when a little squall of snowflakes blew in from the north. Towns north of here reported quite a fall of snow, but Bismarck was lucky.
 Early in the week a heavy fall of snow was reported in the northern part of the state, but not any tell here.

ZEALANDIA WAS NOT IN NEUTRAL ZONE
 Galveston, Texas, Nov. 11.—The American steamer, Zealandia, which was reported ordered searched by men from a British vessel while lying in neutral waters in Mexico at Progresso, was able to enter the neutral zone because of her draft and the shallowness of the Progresso harbor, according to J. Menander, master of the ship, Mexican, who arrived here today. He reported that he had passed the Zealandia Nov. 3 and at that time, said the captain of the Zealandia, was five miles off shore, and a British cruiser was still farther out.

ITALIAN SHIP FIRED.

 more than it has been, all means of economizing at its disposal.
 Urges New Taxation.
 Earl St. Aldwys protested against delay in raising new taxation for the war. Large as the increases were, which have been made, he said, they were not large enough, especially in regard to indirect tax.

Earl St. Aldwys added that unless drastic measures were put into effect he did not think the issue of the war would be as successful as all hoped. Sydenham said he had reason to know that the bankers of the country felt strongly that they had done all in their power to help the treasury, but the government had not done their part.

DEFEAT FOR VILLA.
 Washington, Nov. 11.—Defeat of 3,000 Villa troops, who are at Pinaro, Mex., by a superior force of the de facto government was reported today in consular dispatches. The attack was said to have started on Sunday.

TOTTEN GRANTED REHEARING.
 May Yet Turn Tables on Rival Who Contested His Election to Office.
 Bowman, N. D., Nov. 11.—E. P. Totten, whom the supreme court recently declared had forfeited his title to the office of judge of Bowman county, because he promised to return to the county treasury a portion of his salary if elected, has been granted a rehearing before the supreme court. Mr. Totten maintains that J. Diehl, the former county judge, who brought the suit against him, was without right to contest and that he is not legally a holdover officer and cannot now hold the office. This feature was not brought out in the previous hearing of the case.
